by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau
SPRINGFIELD — Three state employees, whom Gov. James R. Thompson ordered fired in mid-June because they had no apparent duties, have been given new state posts.

The Herald has learned that the three, all of whom were active in Thompson's gubernatorial campaign, were retained on the state payroll after Thompson's director of operations, William Schilling, persuaded the governor to allow them to remain.

The three are David C. Canter and Martin C. Gorski both of Chicago, and Freddy C. Peavy of Oak Park.

TWO OTHER campaign workers who held similar state posts also were offered other government jobs but declined to accept. They are Sandra L. Wexler and John Gaters, both of Chicago.

Thompson said Wednesday his first impulse upon learning of the situation in June was to fire the five, but he said he did not like to "bounce" people.

The five were originally put on the Illinois Dept. of Transportation payroll Jan. 17, one week after Thompson's inauguration.

However, none actually worked for IDOT and instead were assigned to Thompson's Chicago governor's office in a practice known as "ghost" payroll.

THE PRACTICE was criticized by Thompson during his gubernatorial campaign and generally has been eliminated by the new administration, according to Thompson officials.

The five ghost employees were paid more than $30,000 over the five-month period, although no documents existed to show they were being supervised or had regular duties.

At least four weeks of pay for three of the employees was authorized by Schilling after the supervisor of the governor's Chicago office had refused to sign pay vouchers stating that the three had been working.

The three still on the payroll insisted Wednesday that they all had been given assignments in January and denied they had been collecting salaries without working.

GORSKI, 32, said he worked as the governor's liaison with the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, writing reports and attending meetings around the state.

Gorski, who had worked on Thompson's finance operations during the campaign and for a consulting firm ment reorganization began his new developing a report on state government Wednesday at the IDOT. Dist. 1 office in Schaumburg.

Peavy said he met with persons who wanted to have interviews with the governor at the first job.

"I don't know why anyone would say I was not working," Peavy said. He now works at IDOT's Schaumburg

Woman charged in lover's murder

A Palatine woman was charged Wednesday with the murder of her 32-year-old lover.

Shirley Biedrzycki, 40, was charged with the murder of Frederick E. Kurschner, a cross-country truck driver, after she walked into the Palatine police station at 1 a.m. with her 11-year-old son to report the shooting.

Authorities said Kurschner's body was found on the porch of the small frame house the two shared at 552 N. Easy St. He had been shot six times in the chest with two weapons, .32 caliber and .38 caliber revolvers.

POLICE REFUSED to give a motive for the slaying, but neighbors and Kurschner's mother said other love affairs might have been the cause.

"Fred said something once about catching Shirley seeing another man," said his mother, Betty Palm, 423 S. Taylor St., Oak Park.

The two had lived together for about a year and a half, Mrs. Palm said, but "Shirley was always leaving — just walking out.

"Fred told her a couple of weeks ago that the next time she left he'd throw out her clothes. Well, she did, and he threw the clothes out," Mrs. Palm said.

Mrs. Biedrzycki is divorced, and Kurschner is seeking a divorce from his wife, Val, who lives in California, Mrs. Palm said.

"HE WAS VERY sturdy and very strong," Mrs. Palm said. "He would be up early mornings and ready to work. He was the workingest fool who ever lived," she said.

Employees at the Palatine Car Wash, 101 W. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, said they had known the couple and were surprised by the shooting. The car wash is near the Kurschner home.

"As far as we could see, there was never any problem," said John W. Meeters, owner of the car wash and a friend of Kurschner.

"He was gone a lot and might have been seeing people on the road," Meeters said.

Rapp indicted in extortion

by TONI GINNETTI

Suspended Buffalo Grove village engineer Carl W. Rapp, was indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury for attempting to extort $5,000 from a developer.

Rapp, 34, had been arrested more than two months ago by FBI agents as he left a village board meeting moments after allegedly accepting the money from developer Louis P. Shassian, president of Wilmont Homes Inc., Deerfield.

The money was to be the first installment on a $100,000 payment Rapp allegedly demanded in exchange for speeding up zoning and plan approval of Shassian's Devonshire Unit One subdivision project at Mundelein and Busch roads.

RAPP, WHO ALSO is the director of community development, is charged with violating the Hobbs Act prohibiting extortion. Conviction on an extortion charge carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Rapp, 1170 Thompson Blvd., allegedly planned the shake-down several weeks before Shassian paid the $5,000 during the May 16 meeting of the village board.

Shassian earlier had complained to Rapp during a luncheon meeting about delays in getting approval for his project, a 19.2-acre, single-family home development. Rapp allegedly asked Shassian "what's it worth to you," then at a later meeting asked the developer for $100,000 in cash to influence the project's approval.

The amount later was cut to $50,000, with Shassian agreeing to pay the first $10,000 during the May 16 village board meeting.

SHASSIAN, however, went to federal authorities to report the incident. The FBI provided $4,000 of the $5,000 allegedly handed to Rapp during the board meeting and also wired Shassian with electronic monitoring devices to record the alleged payoff.

Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish suspended Rapp indefinitely following his arrest. Public Works Director Charles McCoy was named acting engineer and a consulting engineering firm was hired to review projects that had been approved during Rapp's tenure as engineer.

Rapp has had the post of village engineer since July, 1976.

'Taxes, utilities to drive area rent up by 10%

Northwest suburban renters will pay up to 10 per cent more for apartments on new leases signed Oct. 1, a real estate management firm said Wednesday.

Higher real estate taxes and increased utility bills are two major factors pushing rents up, said Marilyn McGee in the property management division of Baird & Warner, Arlington Heights.

"Rent increases in the Northwest suburbs definitely should not exceed 10 per cent this fall," Ms. McGee said, explaining that some Chicago and north suburban rent increases may be higher.

"We still have a surplus of apartments in the Northwest suburbs and it's a very competitive market," she said.

BUT THE SURPLUS of apartments is expected to dry up in the next several years because new apartment construction is almost at a standstill, she said.

"Most apartment owners and operators are working with a negative cash flow right now and the only new rental construction is government subsidized housing for low-income families," she said.

"The (apartment) market in the Northwest suburbs is really going to tighten up in the next couple of years."

Most renters whose leases expire Oct. 1 already have received their new rents. Most management companies send out new leases three months before existing leases expire.

Higher winter heating bills, combined with higher electric and water rates substantially increased costs for building owners last year and some city leases now include "escalator clauses" allowing landlords to increase rents in mid-year if they encounter extraordinary expenses.

"WE (BAIRD & WARNER) haven't put in 'escalators' but it may be the wave of the future," Ms. McGee said.

Hogan & Farwell/Marken Realty Group Wednesday said rent increases in Chicago and northern suburbs will increase 10 to 18 per cent Oct. 1.

Renters in Evanston, Wilmette, Skokie and Lincolnwood are in for increases of 15 to 18 per cent, the firm said. Northside neighborhoods in Chicago have smaller rent increases, generally in the range of 10 to 14 per cent.

Ms. McGee said there are fewer and fewer desirable apartments in Chicago and the north suburbs because of changing neighborhoods and the conversion of rental apartments to condominium apartments.

The Northwest suburbs, where the majority of apartment buildings are newer, have not experienced massive condominium conversion.

CIA hired prostitutes for sex study: Turner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director Stansfield Turner Wednesday revealed that the spy agency operated a sexual behavior study in New York and San Francisco and then spied on their activity through two-way bedroom mirrors.

During an appearance before two Senate committees, Turner also gave investigators the names of 185 private researchers and 80 institutions that conducted "abhorrent" CIA mindcontrol experiments on human "guinea pigs" in the '50s and '60s.

Under questioning, Turner disclosed the agency ran an apparent sexual behavior study called "Operation Midnight Climax" in New York and San Francisco "safe houses" rigged like fancy bordellos.

In questioning by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., another witness, former CIA official John Gittinger said a CIA psychologist, he was trying to get information on different cultures and subcultures and the way their members reacted to drugs and handled sexual relations. But he said he had no direct knowledge of how the "safe house" operation was carried out.

ANOTHER WITNESS, former CIA official Philip Goldman said he'd seen payment vouchers covering the purchase of red curtains and at least one two-way mirror for the "safe houses," but said he knew nothing more about it.

Turner and the other ex-CIA official testified before a joint session of the Senate Intelligence Committee and a Senate Health Committee.

"It is totally abhorrent to me to think of using humans as guinea pigs," Turner said. "There is no (such) experiment going on (now) in any way."

In Senate testimony on the top-secret human behavior research, he disclosed new details of the CIA's Cold War era testing of drugs, electroshock, poisons, chemicals and germs on volunteers and unwitting subjects, including "criminal, sexual psychopaths," in prisons, hospitals, colleges and elsewhere.

Turner testified about some 8,000 pages of newly discovered documentary evidence on a behavioral control project code-named "MKULTRA."

He said he will give Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell whatever materials he wants from the new evidence, for any investigation he may care to conduct.

MKULTRA, Turner said, hit its peak between 1953 and 1964 when 149 covert research projects were conducted, "many of which appear to have some connection with research into behavioral modification, drug acquisition and testing or administering drugs surreptitiously."

STANSFIELD TURNER

"We are now in possession of the names of 185 nongovernment researchers and assistants who are identified in the recovered material dealing with the 149 sub-projects," he said.

Other projects, he said, involved use of hypnosis, lie detectors and "aspects of magicians" are useful in covert operations, for example, surreptitious delivery of drug-related materials."

Bledrzycki was seeing other men.

"SHE KEPT TO herself most of the time, and I never noticed other men around," he said.

"He (Kurschner) was the kind of guy that if you needed something, he'd get it for you," Meesters said. He said Kurschner recently had purchased a minibus for Ronnie, Mrs. Bledrzycki's son to ride around the yard.

Kurschner drove a truck for Kar Products Inc., 461 N. Third Ave., Des Plaines. He was on the road from Sunday through Thursday or Friday, said Tony Rallo, distribution supervisor for Kar Products.

"He kept to himself but sometimes talked about starting his own trucking company," Rallo said.

ALTHOUGH OTHERS said Kurschner kept to himself, some said he occasionally lost his temper.

"He drank quite a lot, like everybody I suppose," Mrs. Palm said. "And he did have a hot temper."

"I saw him get mad at the boy and smack him once," Meesters said. "But that was only one time."

Mrs. Bledrzycki was arraigned in Cook County Circuit Court in Arlington Heights Wednesday morning, and a preliminary hearing was set for Aug. 11 in Arlington Heights.

Bail was set at $30,000. She was released on bond Wednesday afternoon.

Police said although an investigation into the shooting was continuing, they were seeking no other suspects.

U.S. will protect NATO lands: Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is prepared to use nuclear weapons to thwart a Communist attack on NATO members and would back efforts to regain any land lost through invasion, his chief spokesman said Wednesday.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said a suggestion that the United States would accept Soviet occupation of parts of West Germany or other NATO lands was "flatly wrong."

He said the administration is confident lands lost through an attack could be regained by force.

SYNDICATED columnists Roland Evans and Robert Novak Wednesday reported that Carter's national security advisers have drawn up a new defense strategy conceding one-third of West Germany to communist invaders. They said the advisers concluded the administration could not win increased defense spending to shore up military power in Europe.

Powell denied the report. "Our policy remains unchanged in its totality," he said, adding that nuclear weapons remain a key part of defense strategy.

"What is appropriate to use, when and where," would depend on the specific situation, he said.

"The idea that our policy would accept a Soviet occupation of NATO territories is flatly wrong."

"WE ARE committed to having the capability, along with our allies, to halt any Warsaw pact attack as quickly as possible and to restoring pre-war boundaries, thus maintaining NATO territories," he said.

Powell said the Evans-Novak column was based on information from "a wide-ranging discussion of responses available to us in the event of an attack, which included political options but certainly was not limited to them."

"This review reaffirms existing strategy," Powell said.

He said response to any attack "will rest" on a policy that "involves conventional, theater nuclear and strategic nuclear" weapons.

Declining to go into specifics on dealing with an invasion, Powell said "our response to such a situation would be other than words."

AND HE SAID, "It is our policy to regain any territory that might be lost in an invasion."

Defense Sec. Harold Brown, testifying before a Senate Armed Services subcommittee, also denied the Evans-Novak report.

"I do not advocate, and would not support a policy which called for the United States to accept a loss or defeat in Europe," Brown said. "I believe deception would be a poor policy and unacceptable as a way of running a government."

The report brought heavy response from several areas of the government.

"IT IS THE policy of the United States to engage in a forward defense of all of western Europe," State Dept. spokesman John Trantner said. "That long-standing policy, which has been shaped jointly with our NATO allies, remains unchanged in its totality."

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Sam Nunn, chairman of the man-power subcommittee, John Stennis, D-Miss., and Harry Byrd, I-Va., expressed deep concern over a leak from a recent National Security Council meeting, which led to the Evans and Novak column.

The columnists said the security council will present Carter this week with a new defense strategy conceding West German territory. National security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski was quoted as saying:

"It is not possible in the current political environment to gain support in the United States for procurement of the conventional forces required to assure that NATO could maintain territorial integrity if deterrence (of a Soviet attack) fails."

House approves natural gas lid in Carter plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, picking up steam in efforts to pass comprehensive energy legislation this week, handed President Carter a victory Wednesday by rejecting removal of price controls from natural gas.

The 227-199 vote kept in the bill the essentials of Carter's proposals to maintain ceilings on natural gas — although the House made some modifications in his plan.

Carter, speaking through press secretary Jody Powell, said he was "extremely pleased" by the outcome and called it "a great victory for American consumers. It saved them millions of dollars."

IN GENERAL, the provision would increase price ceilings on gas newly brought into production, but would shield consumers by reserving the lowest-priced gas for residential use only.

Another major issue still to be resolved is taxing of gasoline, with the House Democratic leadership rallying behind a proposal to reduce consumption by adding an extra five cents to the current four cent per gallon levy on this fuel.

The proceeds would be divided evenly between mass transit and secondary highways.

Other parts of the bill would have utilities help homeowners "weatherize" their homes for more energy efficiency; tax industrial use of oil and gas to encourage switching to other fuels; impose taxes on fuel-efficient cars, and offer tax incentives for insulation of homes and use of solar energy.

THE LOSING effort to take all controls off natural gas prices was made by Representatives Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, Robert Krueger, D-Tex., and Timothy Wirth, D-Colo.

Carter's victory on the issue came one day after both houses approved his proposal for creation of a new Dept. of Energy — legislation he is expected to sign on Thursday.

Before killing the proposal to deregulate natural gas prices, the House made some minor changes in Carter's proposals, which had called for:

- Federal controls over interstate sales of natural gas would be extended for the first time to sales within the state in which the gas is produced.

- Producers of (new) gas could charge up to $1.75 per thousand cubic feet, compared with the current federal ceiling of about $1.45. Gas already in production would be allowed at prices up to $1.45.

- The lowest-priced gas would be reserved for residential uses, to protect homeowners from sharp increases in gas bills.

- The price of gas would be tied to the price of oil — when oil prices rise, so will gas prices.

CARTER WANTED the higher price restricted to truly new production, from wells at least 2.5 miles distant from or 1,000 feet deeper than existing wells.

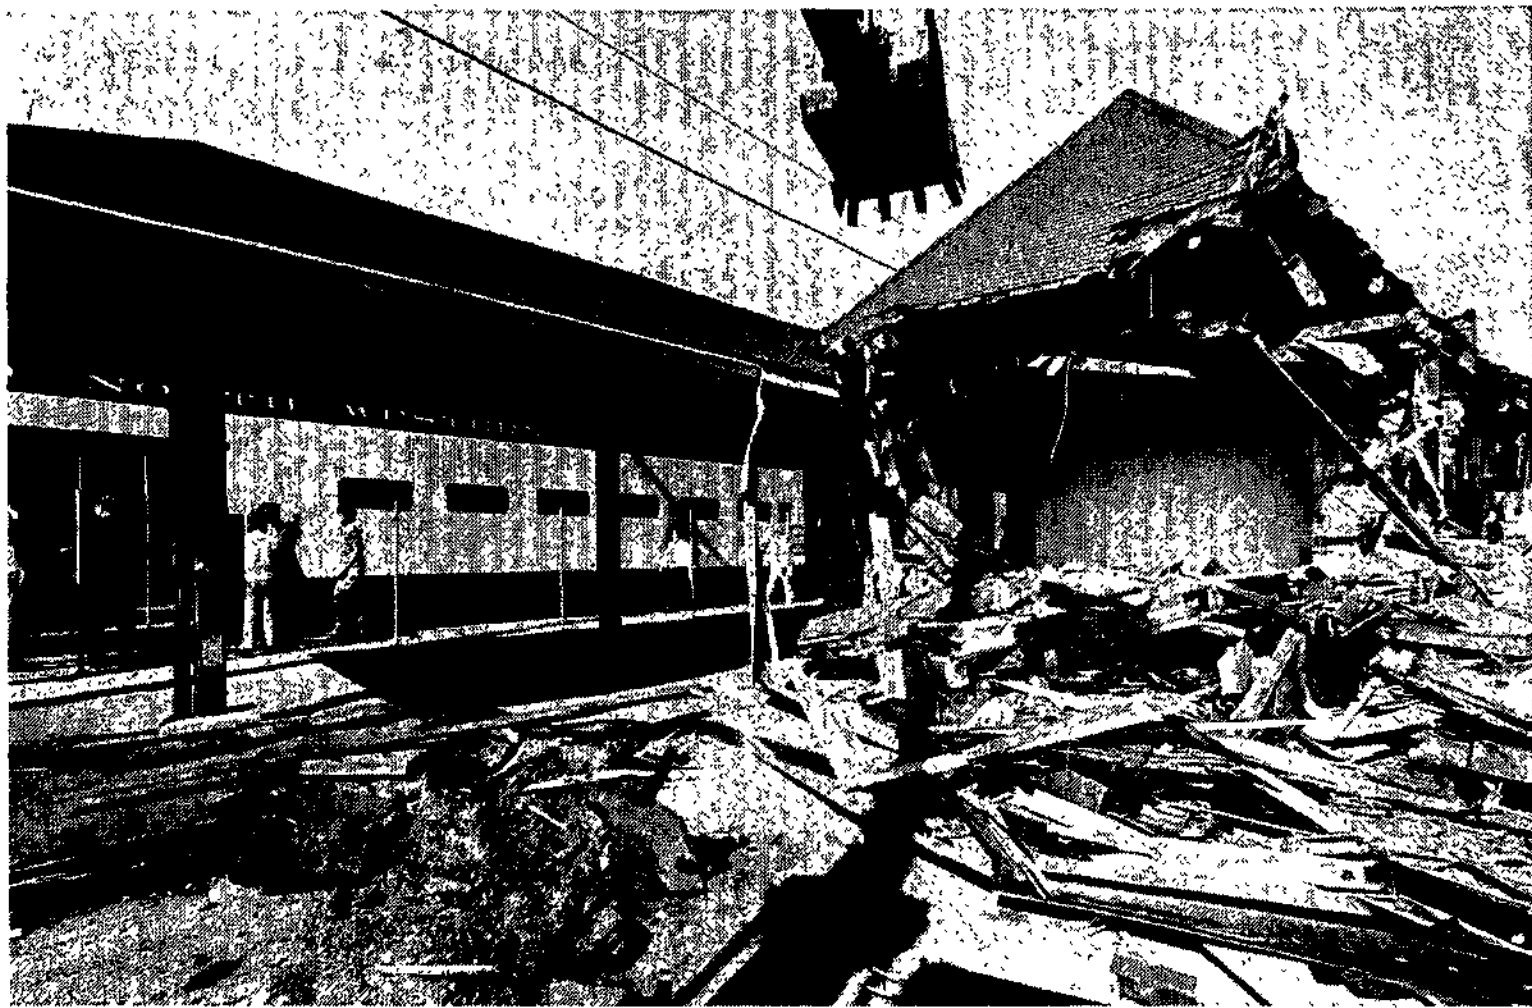

The House voted to modify that, allowing state agencies to certify as "new gas" the production from a well short of the distance requirements, if it involves a truly new reservoir.

That was a key compromise enabling Carter's plan to survive, House strategists said.

For the average homeowner, the price paid to the producer is only 18 to 20 per cent of the home gas bill — the rest is in pipeline and distribution costs. Therefore, a doubling of the price to producers, for example, would increase the consumer's bill by only about one-fifth.

Brown, arguing on behalf of gas price deregulation, said the action would encourage enough new production to avoid shortages that hit the nation last winter.

Rep. Henson Moore, R-La., said Carter's plan would bring only 1 trillion cubic feet more gas production, perhaps 5 per cent of a year's use, whereas deregulation could be expected to bring 4 trillion more cubic feet.

DEMOLITION OF the 83-year-old Chicago and North Western Ry. commuter station in downtown Arlington Heights began Wednesday to make room for a new, larger station. The 1,600-square-foot building will be completed within 90 days. It will contain two waiting rooms. Officials said construction will not disrupt train service and that part of the old building will remain intact to serve commuters.

NIU chief indicted in hit-and-run

DE KALB, Ill. (UPI) — A De Kalb County grand jury Wednesday indicted Northern Illinois University President Richard Nelson on two counts of leaving the scene of a personal injury accident and driving without a valid license.

De Kalb County Circuit Court Judge Carl A. Swanson set arraignment for Friday, Aug. 5, and ordered a $2,500 bond set.

An NIU spokesman said there would be no official statement from the university because the indictment is considered a "private matter."

MARY MICHALOWSKI, 20, was knocked from her bicycle by a passing car about 9:30 p.m. the night of May 27, suffering minor injuries. The motorist talked briefly to Miss Michalowski but left the scene before police could be summoned.

Leaving the scene of an accident is a Class 4-A felony, while driving without a valid license is a Class A misdemeanor, said De Kalb County State's Atty. Jordan Gallagher, who announced the indictment.

The grand jury also said it has found no evidence of a criminal cover-up during investigation of the hit-and-run accident that has focused on a state car assigned to Nelson.

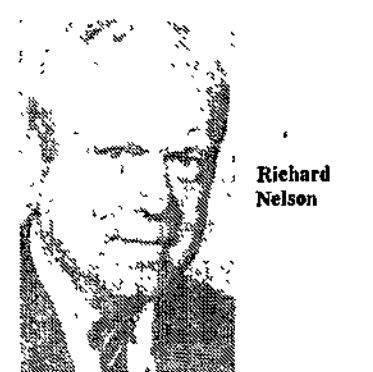

However, the grand jury said in a statement that "appropriate reviewing bodies" should look into the quality of the DeKalb police department's investigation and "whether or not proper judgement was used by an NIU security officer" on the night of the accident.

POLICE REPORTS show Nelson, 61, was questioned briefly by police the night of the accident after a witness took down the license number of the auto. Both the number and the vehicle description checked out to the NIU car assigned to Nelson.

Nelson admitted he was in the area the night of the accident, but denied he was involved. Miss Michalowski said Nelson closely resembled the driver, but said she was "unsure" he was the man.

The Chicago Daily News reported that NIU police officer George Boyle, shortly after the incident, had alerted

Richard Nelson

Nelson that his car was the target of a hit-and-run investigation. Nelson later told DeKalb police officer Ralph Peterson that his car was going to be taken to the shop for some body work and Peterson offered no objection.

Barbara Eden to marry Daily News exec Sept. 3

• "I Dream of Jeannie" star Barbara Eden will tie the marriage knot with Chuck Fegert, vice president of The Daily News and The Sun-Times on Sept. 3. The site for their wedding will be the law of a 200-acre farm in Long Grove that belongs to Jim McHugh, a friend of Fegert. Ms. Eden, who recently closed in the Chicago play, "Blithe Spirit," plans to sell her Los Angeles house and take up residency in Chicago.

Cuban raid plot foiled by talks with State Dept.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Dept. admitted Wednesday it has given the Cuban government information "on possible terrorist acts," and left open the possibility the exchange foiled a planned raid on Cuba by Miami-based exiles.

Miami television station WTVJ reported members of the Bay of Pigs Veterans Brigade 2506 abandoned plans for a sea invasion of Cuba earlier this summer because the United States had informed Havana of the plans during diplomatic talks at the United Nations.

"I can confirm that we have exchanged information with the Cuban government on possible terrorist acts," State Dept. spokesman John Trantner said. "We do this in such a way as to be sure there is no compromise of sources of our information."

"BUT WE CANNOT go into any details, because this is a matter of sensitive intelligence."

PUBLISHED REPORTS in Miami said members of the Cuban exile group planned to retaliate for seizure by Cuba of seven U.S. boats in one month by raiding Cuban shipping and the army's communications system, then invading the island.

Asked if he would agree his statement left open the possibility the United States passed on information to Cuba about the reported invasion plans, Trantner replied:

"Yes, I would . . . I am not excluding that, but I don't know for a fact."

QUESTIONED WHY the United States is following this information exchange policy with Cuba when the two countries, although negotiating, still do not have diplomatic relations, the spokesman said "the United States condemns international terrorism wherever it occurs and for whatever reasons."

"That's one basic answer I can give you. I can't go beyond that."

In Miami, Pedro Pablo Rojas, speaking for the 2506 Brigade, said he thought the State Dept. was acting against Cuban exiles "because they cannot have (diplomatic) negotiations interrupted or tarnished by a group of Cubans whom they consider crazy."

Both Rojas and Fico Lopez, the brigade's press director, denied the invasion reports.

Illinois briefs

Thompson orders licensing review

A "widesweeping" review of tests used to license 33 professions in the state has been ordered by Gov. James R. Thompson because of problems throughout the licensing operation. The Dept. of Registration and Education operates the licensing program. Thompson's office said Wednesday many irregularities have been found, particularly involving license tests given to physicians, podiatrists, nurses and other medical specialists. Thompson and DRE Director Joan R. Anderson set up a three-member commission to review licensing examinations. Members are Fred F. Herzog, dean of the John Marshall Law School, Chicago; Lloyd G. Humphreys, professor of psychology at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana, and John J. Swalec, Libertyville, a vice president at the College of Lake County.

Ducks force down Ozark airliner

An Ozark Airlines DC-9 struck several ducks northwest of Peoria at an altitude of about 12,000 feet Wednesday, causing minor damage to the plane but no injuries to the passengers and crew. The plane, flight 942, returned to the Greater Peoria Airport. Passengers on the flight to Minneapolis continued the trip on another plane. After a brief inspection, Ozark crew members ferried the plane to St. Louis for repairs.

Metropolitan briefs

Embezzlement cited in MSD bribe case

The government's chief witness in the Metropolitan Sanitary District bribe case embezzled alleged payoff money from the Ingram Corp. of New Orleans and did not use it to bribe Chicago officials, defense lawyers charged Wednesday. Documents filed in U.S. District Court disclosed that defense attorneys are accusing William J. Benton, former senior vice president of the Ingram Corp., of a "massive embezzlement scheme" against the firm. Benton is the star prosecution witness in the $1.3 million sanitary district bribery case. He is expected to testify under immunity that he paid bribes to Chicago officials to obtain $43 million in contracts for Ingram to haul away Sanitary District sludge.

E. Bronson Ingram and Frederic B. Ingram, owners of the firm, are facing trial next month along with two sanitary district officials, a former sanitary district official, a former Illinois legislator and two Chicago-area businessmen. The Ingram Corp. had exclusive contract with the MSD dating back to 1971 to haul sludge from its treatment plant at Sikeston to a 16,000-acre reclamation site in Fulton County on the Illinois River.

Ozone alert in Chicago area

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency declared a special ozone advisory Wednesday for Waukegan, Skokie and the Kenwood High School area on the South Side of Chicago. Levels of ozone passed the "yellow alert" stage in the two areas, an EPA spokesman said, but a yellow alert was not declared because "all the weather conditions aren't there. We don't expect these levels to reoccur Thursday."

Levels reached 195 parts per billion in both Waukegan and Skokie and 190 p.p.b. in the Kenwood High School area.

Marquette marchers compromise

Lawyers for the city of Chicago and the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Movement Coalition agreed Wednesday to compromise about the civil rights group's plans to march through the predominantly white Marquette Park area. The coalition agreed to postpone a march until at least Aug. 22. Both sides will meet to set a firm date for a march.

Drug sale takeover tied to Ned Brown fighting

by PATRICK DOYLE

The 20 persons who attacked a gang of 80 persons with bats, knives, chains and B-B guns at the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Sunday night were trying to take over drug sales there, a gang member said Wednesday.

The man, a member of the gang that was attacked, said he did not want to be identified because he feared retaliation. One hundred persons were involved in the fight, which lasted about 45 minutes before police could break it up.

Cook County Comr. Carl Hansen Wednesday called on forest preserve district officials to find out more about the incident and what can be done to avoid further fighting.

Recreation Park area residents meet

Residents in the Recreation Park area will meet tonight to form a homeowner's association.

Organizers of the Central Citizens Homeowners Coalition will meet at 8 p.m. in Windsor School, 1315 E. Miner St. to address problems in their neighborhood.

They will discuss how to solve proposed changes in the area such as the possibility of Miner School 1101 E. Miner St., Arlington Heights being used as a branch campus by Roosevelt University, the construction of a bandshell in Recreation Park and problems caused by a nearby industrial park, that residents say is deteriorating.

"I WANT TO find out if this is a one-shot deal or if these groups are continuing this over a longer period of time," Hansen said.

Richard Sloan, chief ranger of the Cook County Forest Preserve District, said he did not know if drug dealing between rival gangs led to the melee.

Two days before the fighting erupted, Michael Wynn, forest ranger, arrested four persons near Grove No. 6 in Busse Woods in the preserve, Sloan said.

A man had identified them as the robbers who took an undisclosed amount of cash from him earlier in the day, Sloan said.

The complainant was one of the 30 young persons who gathered at the forest preserve Sunday, Sloan said. The four accused robbers came into the forest preserve with 16 companions seeking revenge, he said.

"They went in to get him and they got him," he said. Sloan said he believes the complainant was one of those injured. Only two persons were hospitalized.

ASKED IF DRUG dealing was behind the whole affair, Sloan said, "I can't verify it."

But one gang member who was beaten by members of the smaller gang said, "I think they are trying to take over drug sales in the preserve."

The men said he used to be active in dealing drugs in the forest preserve.

"You wouldn't even imagine how much money goes through that woods," he said. "It's a flea market of drugs."

Marijuana, hallucinogens and cocaine are a few of the drugs dealt in large quantities in the preserve, the man said.

HE SAID OTHER members of his gang also dealt in drugs and that the smaller group has wanted to control the business.

Harry Jenkins, Elk Grove Village police chief, said he is concerned about crime in the preserve threatening surrounding residential neighborhoods in the village.

He said he hopes the additional policemen can be used to patrol around the preserve.

"There is a chance that a major breakout could spill into the village," he said.

Both Hansen and Jenkins said robbers assigned to the preserve are not able to handle its problems.

But Jenkins said he has to tell worried residents who call that there is nothing the police department can do outside village limits except assist rangers when needed. The preserve is in Elk Grove Township.

BASED ON WHAT he knows about the preserve, Jenkins said, it is safe to assume that drugs were behind the dispute.

Hansen said he believes rangers should take the same training as regular Cook County sheriff's deputies. Although they attend the same academy, the training to become a ranger is less stringent, he said.

Four rangers were in the preserve when the fight broke out, but were unable to control it and called for help from at least 12 police departments. Three persons were arrested.

Blazes spread; shortage of firefighters continues

Nearly 400 fires, many unfought because firefighters and equipment were spread thin, burned throughout drought-dry California Wednesday scorching 16,500 acres of brush and timberland. Other fires were reported burning out of control in Alaska, Oregon and Colorado.

The California Division of Forestry said most of the blazes were ignited by lightning. It said prison inmates, hand crews from as far away as Louisiana and fire engines flown in by National Guard planes were being rounded up to fight the main hot spots.

Jackie Harrison, information officer of the Division of Forestry, said at least one major blaze that has burned 2,300 acres six miles east of the Big Sur resort area was completely unfought because of the shortage of firefighters and rugged terrain.

AT LEAST 376 FIRES were reported, mostly in Northern and Central California, and that the number was rising, she said.

"Some are biggies, but the remarkable thing is that no one has been killed and no homes have been destroyed yet," she said.

Another fire roared through 5,000 acres 12 miles south of Big Sur.

And a 4,750-acre blaze, driven by erratic winds, roared through Mt. Diablo State Park, a popular vacation area 35 miles east of San Francisco, causing evacuation of 150 persons from their homes. "We have no idea when the Diablo fire will be contained or controlled," said Miss Harrison.

IN ALASKA, where one million acres of tundra and other wilderness was burning from more than 50 blazes that threatened eight villages, firefighters narrowly stopped a wildfire that made a jump for the new $9 billion Alaska pipeline.

Elmer Hurd, directing fighting of the blaze, said he did not know whether his 166 firefighters could continue to stop the fire from moving toward the pipeline six miles away.

In Colorado, a fire blackened 840 acres was out of control in the White River National Forest and the Flat Top Wilderness Area, 15 miles north of the town of Rifle.

In Oregon, 500 fresh firefighters were sent in to battle a 200-acre blaze in heavy timber in the Mt. Hood National Forest.

LBJ denied knowing of ballot box stuff

Lyndon B. Johnson, in a press statement written during the 1948 Democratic Senate primary but apparently never released, denied knowing that a South Texas political boss had stuffed a ballot box with 202 votes to give Johnson a narrow victory. The press release was among 5,500 pages of Johnson's personal papers released Wednesday by the LBJ Library dealing with the election and with Johnson's connection with George B. Parr, the head of the family which ran South Texas for 60 years. It has become accepted that the Parr machine was guilty of election fraud, but a former Jim Wells County election official last weekend involved Johnson, saying Johnson asked Parr for the illegal votes and that Parr supplied them. For more than two hours reporters searched eight boxes containing the files, but the documents failed to produce evidence that confirmed or denied any voting irregularities. The only document with direct connection to the rumors of fraud was the press statement.

Hint significant Korea case points

House Ethics chairman John Flynt said Wednesday "extremely significant developments" have suddenly cropped up in his panel's investigation of Korean influence-buying in Congress. Flynt, D-Ga., said he could probably not disclose any details before the Ethics Committee's next scheduled meeting, Aug. 24, because of an agreement that "any such announcement should be made jointly by this committee and another agency of government." The Justice Department is conducting its own investigation of the alleged South Korean bribery operation, but Flynt refused to say whether Justice was the other "agency" he was referring to. "Within the last 24 hours, there have been some extremely significant developments and as soon as these developments can be made public, they will be," Flynt told reporters.

Vance heads to Damascus

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance flew to Damascus Wednesday to win crucial Syrian support for his plan to set up a "working group" of Arab and Israeli foreign ministers in advance of Geneva peace talks. Vance was scheduled to meet Syrian President Hafez Assad today. On the first stop in his 11-day Middle East tour, Vance met Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Alexandria and the two later proposed the "working group" idea. The plan would involve a meeting of Arab and Israeli foreign ministers in the United States in mid-September.

Mail shows Carter opposition

A secret White House memorandum analyzing President Carter's mail shows strong public opposition to some of his policies and to U. N. Ambassador Andrew Young. Scripps-Howard News Service reported Wednesday. Scripps-Howard said the memo covering a two week period in late July showed every letter received about Young was critical. During the same period, 97 per cent of more than 1,000 letter-writers opposed the proposed neutron bomb which Carter tentatively endorsed, Scripps-Howard said. Only 55 per cent endorsed Carter's stand denying federal funds to poor women seeking abortions.

Riot cops kill Soweto teen

Riot police shot and killed a black teen-ager Wednesday when a stone-throwing mob attacked officers outside the volatile township of Soweto, officials reported. The 16-year-old youth, who was not identified, was the third person to die this week — and the fifth since Friday — in clashes between riot police and demonstrators in Soweto. The worst race violence in South African history exploded in Soweto in June 1976 and claimed 618 lives in the six months that followed. The sprawling, segregated township is located on the southwestern outskirts of Johannesburg.

Hostage-holder kills self in Tokyo

A young man wearing a hunting hat and gauze mask and saying he wanted to set a world record for holding a hostage kept a coffee shop waitress at knife-point for nearly 22 hours, then suddenly stabbed himself Wednesday in the abdomen, harikari style. Police said the man, identified as Suehiro Yasumoto, 28, was rushed to a hospital for treatment of his injuries. His condition was not known. The waitress, 43-year-old Mariko Asazuma, was unharmed. Police said the drama took place in the Blue Bird coffee shop in Tokyo's fashionable Aoyama District.

Mine blast kills 150 in Mozambique

The worst mine explosion in Mozambique history buried 150 men at the Morteze mining complex Tuesday and sparked a riot in which nine foreigners died, the government said Wednesday. It was the same complex where 100 miners were killed in an explosion last September. The Mozambican Council of Ministers said in a statement the explosion occurred in mid-afternoon at the coal mining complex near the town of Tete in the northwestern part of the country. "About 150 miners on the afternoon shift were buried, with little hope of being rescued," the statement said.

Pharmacist has "tried them all..." discovers weight control program that really works!

Pharmacist Dan Smith of Burger's Drug Store in St. Charles, Illinois is a NaturSlim "believer" after losing 18 pounds in just two weeks. After hearing so much about the NaturSlim program from customers and seeing the excellent results they were having, Dan decided to try it himself.

"In my many years as a pharmacist, I've seen and tried numerous weight-loss plans, but none have worked as well for me as NaturSlim. And NaturSlim is very nutritional too!"

After three months, Dan has not regained any of the lost pounds either, as so often happens when "rebounding" from starvation diet plans. He maintains his weight by taking NaturSlim once daily... and eating normally otherwise.

Dan says, "It was surprisingly easy, too! I didn't have to attend any weigh-ins, starve myself or do any special exercises!"

With the NaturSlim program, there are no shots, drugs or long lists of forbidden foods. In fact, you are encouraged to eat a normal, well-balanced dinner every day.

The next time you are in the St. Charles area, stop by Burger's Drugs and see Dan yourself. He'll tell you personally what he thinks about NaturSlim!

McKinley Ave. crossing stalled by railway's appeal

The Chicago and North Western Ry. has filed an appeal of a court ruling that the Village of Arlington Heights does not have to compensate the railway for property taken for railroad crossings.

The appeal is expected to delay indefinitely the completion of a crossing at McKinley Avenue, which will link Northwest Highway and Davis Street.

Arlington Heights has finished its portion of the work at the McKinley Avenue crossing and traffic signals are now operating, but the railway company still needs to install the asphalt crossing and crossing gates.

"The intersection could be working if the railroad would do its part of the work," said William Bachem of the village's engineering department.

THE CROSSING IS considered important for emergency vehicles traveling north and south on the east side of Arlington Heights and from Mount Prospect. There now is no crossing between Central Road in Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights Road, a distance of about two miles.

The railway's appeal was filed Friday in the Illinois Appellate Court, said Stuart Gassner, attorney for the railway.

The dispute over right-of-way compensation began in 1971, 1½ years after the Illinois Commerce Commission ordered the railway company to install a crossing to connect Ridge and Walnut avenues. That crossing was finished last August after the village agreed to put the $16,500 demanded by North Western into an escrow account until the controversy was settled.

But the ICC has ruled that North Western does not have to complete the McKinley Avenue crossing until six months after a final court ruling on the right-of-way compensation issue.

THE RAILWAY COMPANY insists that it should be compensated by municipalities when railroad crossings are built because of the reduction in railway property, Gassner said.

Arlington Heights officials say that no payment should be required because the crossings are ordered by the ICC and that such compensation is not regularly part of grade-crossing agreements.

Gassner, however, said North Western has not had similar disputes with other municipalities. In most cases they are settled without even going through condemnation proceedings, he said.

Gassner estimated that arguments in the case will not be heard until October or November, with a ruling near the end of the year.

C&NW special lays on PR track

by LYNN ASINOF

Once each month a special train leaves the North Western Ry. station in Chicago. It covers 300 miles of track in seven hours and no one pays a fare.

It's called the division managers' special. Its purpose is to check the quality of the ride on the Chicago and North Western Ry.'s three suburban lines operating at full speed with no stops.

Usually the train is full of a dozen or more engineers who talk about track conditions, train speeds and equipment. With clipboards in hand, they jot notes so that track crews can make repairs.

AT 8:35 A.M. WEDNESDAY when the 42nd managers' special pulled out of the station, there were some new passengers aboard — officials from the Northwest suburbs. They were the first to ride the line as part of a program to acquaint the public with the railroad and the Regional Transportation Authority.

For Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Volberding, the train ride was a new experience. It was only his second train ride — the first being his trip down to the station Wednesday morning.

Although Des Plaines is a big commuter town, Volberding said he has always worked in town. "I've always worked in Des Plaines," he said, referring to his years as a policeman.

Volberding saw the North Western's west line, stretching 36 miles west to Geneva.

"IT'S REALLY fascinating. It's like a different world. I've never seen any of these towns," Volberding said, watching the landscape pass at 70 miles an hour.

The schedule of the managers' special is tight. The run to Geneva gets only 50 minutes, but the special is not supposed to run on time.

"We can't operate on that schedule," said Bob Drengler of the North Western, explaining that the tight schedule is supposed to keep the train moving as fast as possible.

Although the train hits speeds of 70 m.p.h., it often slows for construction, poor track conditions and unprotected crossings.

Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Robert Eppley got to watch first hand on the northwest line as the engineer used track orders to set speed limits along the track.

"IT WAS VERY informative," Eppley said. "Speed is relative and deceiving. I felt like we were crawling along at about 20 miles an hour and we were really going about 50."

Also on board were Bob Fialkowski of the Northwest Municipal Conference and Edward Geick, personnel manager for the Village of Mount Prospect.

More officials are expected to take the managers' special in the future, and Robert Hurrie of the RTA said he hopes to take similar trips on the other commuter lines.

N.Y. rocks under terrorist bombs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Terrorist bombs exploded Wednesday at two office buildings and threats of more explosions forced thousands to flee Manhattan's tallest skyscrapers, including the Empire State building, the Pan Am building and the gigantic World Trade Center whose population is larger than most American small towns.

Bombs went off on the ground floor of the Mobil Oil Building in midtown Manhattan, killing one person and injuring seven others, and outside the 21st floor office of the Department of Defense in a building several blocks away.

The FALN, an underground Puerto Rican nationalist group, claimed responsibility for the attacks.

THE FALN DIRECTED police to a letter which said the bombings were the beginning of an all-out terrorist campaign for an independent Puerto Rico.

A spokesman for the Chicago Police Dept., meanwhile, told The Herald a "bomb watch" was put into effect to locate all people known to have a past history of bombings.

Charles Steinberg, 26, of New York, was killed in the Mobil explosion. Of the seven injured, two were seriously hurt. There were no injuries in the defense office blast.

The worst explosion occurred on the ground-floor Mobil travel office of the oil company's building on 42nd Street.

MRS. PAULINA Adkins, 35, was sitting in the office waiting for a job interview when she heard a noise — "like a giant firecracker or something."

She said plastic ceiling material fell, hitting her on the head. "There was glass all over and a lot of blood on the floor. I saw a man lying on the floor. A receptionist and two men ducked under desks."

The police bomb squad said it received about 150 reports of bomb threats or discovery of suspicious devices following the initial explosions. All proved unfounded.

A MAN INJURED in the bomb blast in the Mobil Oil Building Wednesday is put into an ambulance. Bombs exploded at two midtown Manhattan office buildings. The Puerto Rican terrorist group, FALN, has claimed responsibility.

The rash of bomb threats forced tens of thousands of workers to flee several major buildings, including the 102-story Empire State Building and 59-story Pan Am building behind

Grand Central station, and from the twin 110-story towers of the World Trade Center in the downtown Wall Street area.

In addition, U.S. District Court in Brooklyn was evacuated.

FOR SEVERAL hours shortly before and after noon, police, fire and ambulance switchboards were jammed. Sirens wailed throughout Manhattan. Traffic was snarled by emergency vehicles, blocked streets and the thousands of workers forced out of their offices and onto the streets and sidewalks in the rain.

The evacuations were orderly and workers were allowed to return to their offices after police bomb squads swept through the floors and determined the buildings were safe.

A man claiming to represent the FALN, which advocates independence for Puerto Rico from its U.S. commonwealth status, called television station WABC-TV and claimed responsibility for the bombings and threats.

The FALN has claimed responsibility for several bombings in New York City in recent years, including one at Fraunces Tavern in which four persons were killed and 53 injured Jan. 24, 1975.

IT TOOK ROUGHLY an hour to evacuate 23,000 occupants from the towers of the World Trade Center. Trading on three commodity exchanges was halted for the day but most workers returned to their desks when the towers were declared safe at mid-afternoon.

"This is an outrageous act of terrorism," said Mayor Abraham Beame, surveying the damage at the Mobil building. He called for the death penalty "as a deterrent to terrorism."

The first bomb went off at about 9:33 a.m. outside the Department of Defense office on the 21st floor of the 22-story Christian Science Building at 342 Madison Ave.

FALN takes credit for 40 bombings

NEW YORK (UPI) — The group calling itself FALN has claimed responsibility for more than 40 bombings in New York City, Washington, Chicago and Newark, N.J., over the past three years in a campaign to win independence for Puerto Rico.

Police intelligence experts are said to know little of the group's inner workings, but have expressed the belief it is a small unit, perhaps containing no more than a dozen persons.

The former governor of Puerto Rico, Rafael Hernandez Colon, has charged that FALN members received sabotage training in Cuba.

Federal authorities have been seeking a man identified as Carlos Alberto Torres as a suspected member of FALN, the acronym for Fuerzas Armadas de Liberacion Puertorriquena, or Armed Forces for the Liberation of Puerto Rico.

NU students indebted to medical school (bills)

by DIANE GRANAT

By the time 23-year-old Howard White finishes Northwestern University Medical School next year he will be up to his ears in debt.

He already has used the $6,000 in savings with which he started medical school. This fall he will take a job working all night in a hospital to pick up an extra $40 a night. But in the end, he still will have to pay back $24,000 in loans.

The source of White's exorbitant debt is Northwestern's tuition, which has climbed from $3,300 annually when White began three years ago to $6,855 for the coming school year. The tuition at the Chicago medical school is the sixth highest in the nation.

THE ANGER GENERATED among students by the size of next year's tuition increase led 260 freshmen and sophomores to file suit this week in Cook County Circuit Court charging that the 57 per cent increase from last year's price of $4,350 was unreasonably and unexpectedly imposed.

Naming Northwestern University Pres. Robert Stolz and the board of trustees as defendants, the suit accuses the university of violating an implied contract with students that tuition would not rise by more than the average 10 per cent increase of the past decade.

White, who is studying at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights this summer, will pay the higher tuition until his graduates this January. To show his support for fellow students, however, he pledged $50 to a legal fund paying for the lawsuit.

While he doesn't think the students' lawsuit will stop the tuition increase, White said he hopes at least the university "gets some bad publicity from this."

White said he doesn't expect much public sympathy for the plight of the medical students because he knows they are entering the nation's highest-paying profession. YET THE SYSTEM that lets physicians justify high fees because of the high price of training has serious social implications, he said.

"I'm completely against the idea of people having to give an arm and a leg to get through medical school, and then using it as a rationale to be greedy afterward," White said Wednesday, pausing from his duties on the obstetrics floor at Northwest Community.

University officials, however, say they have a plan to counteract students' temptations to enter lucrative specialties to earn back money spent on education.

"Realizing there may be someone that would like to go into missionary medicine and earn $1,000 a year working in Africa," the university doesn't expect a person of that type to repay all of their loans, said Jack Snarr, associate dean.

STUDENT BORROWERS do not have to repay more than 6 per cent of their income each year after they graduate, Snarr said. If the loan is not paid back within 13 years the remainder is erased and chalked up as a "scholarship for alumni," he said.

In addition to the easier loan arrangements, university administrators said they have made more scholarship money available to students who face severe hardships because of the tuition increase.

To Tom Perille, a sophomore on the lawsuit committee, providing more scholarships is ridiculous.

"They are charging us higher tuition to give us grant money to pay higher interest on loans so we can pay higher tuition," Perille said.

"MONEY TALKS"

They managed to be $42,500 in debt on a $27,000 income

How does a couple in their late 30s, described as "exceptionally intelligent," manage to pile up $15,000 in debts (in addition to a $27,500 home mortgage balance) on an annual salary of $27,000?

This was the situation that prompted the couple to seek the counsel of a financial magazine to resolve their plight, as described in a recent issue of the magazine.

It was not lack of brain power that prevented this pair from solving their problems by themselves. He had graduated from Michigan State University in the top 10% of his class and had proceeded to add, ironically enough, the degree of master of business administration.

It was not that they were careless buyers. Everything purchased was carefully researched in product-testing magazines and priced in a half-dozen outlets. She was a careful food shopper, seeking good buys and avoiding expensive convenience foods.

What, then, brought them to a state that sought group therapy to resolve their marital conflicts and approached the magazine for financial help?

This is a situation that financial people and personal counselors encounter all too frequently. An MBA or PhD is of little help when homespun wisdom, which many illiterates possess, is lacking.

It is a condition which is found in childhood — the "gimmies" as youngsters desire all the goodies that meet their eye. With adulthood, most persons come to realize that everything cannot be theirs and that choices and postponements, even denials, are facts of life.

It was a recognition that this couple had not yet acknowledged. She stated their problem succinctly: "Whenever we need anything, we just buy it." In all their careful shopping, the decision not to buy the object of their research was seldom reached.

Quite recently, despite their debt awareness, he bought a new tape deck for his stereo — he still rejects the idea that he could have gotten along without one — it was a good buy. They acquired an electric broiler they didn't need. "It just sits there on the refrigerator most of the time; I don't know why we bought it, except it was on sale," she says.

The magazine's counselors advised what the couple must do to put their financial house in order. The information will be of little value, however, if they don't recognize they have to grow up.

Payroll scandal hits Circle campus

Seven University of Illinois employees have been fired and 13 others have resigned in a payroll padding scandal that netted them $200,000, a university official announced Wednesday.

The employees were janitors and building services supervisors at the Chicago Circle and Medical Center campuses, said Ronald Brady, vice president for administration.

Brady said a routine audit turned up falsified timekeeping documents, ghost workers and falsified overtime over an 18-month span. Auditors then conducted a six-month investigation resulting in the resignations and firings.

Brady refused to identify the 20 persons. He said results of the investigation will be turned over to Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey for possible prosecution.

The university has initiated management procedures "to correct this situation and minimize (the possibility) of its recurring," he said.

Brady said workers in some instances claimed on their time cards to have worked overtime when they did not. Ghost workers actually applied for jobs in the university, were hired and paid but had never worked, he said.

"A human being showed up to pick up the check, which was made out to a real person with a real Social Security number and a real address," he said.

University officials contended the actual employees split the paychecks with the ghost workers. Supervisory personnel cooperated in the scheme, signing the cards for work never done, Brady said.

He said university officials are convinced the scheme was limited to the 20 former employees.

office as a project monitor in the program bureau.

Canter, an attorney, said he had been given confidential assignments by James Fletcher, Thompson's deputy governor in January, but declined to discuss the nature of the work.

CANTER, HAD been working for the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services under former Gov. Daniel Walker's administration, but he said he began working for the Thompson campaign after Walker was beaten by former Sec. of State Michael Howlett in the March primary election.

Canter now is working as a board of review referee in the Illinois Dept. of Labor in Chicago.

Gates, a campaign advance man, was offered a position on the Illinois Commerce Commission staff in Springfield, but he wanted to stay in the Chicago area. He left the state payroll after being paid for several months.

Ms. Wexler could not be reached for comment.

The group was paid salaries ranging from $14,400 to more than $25,000. Those who remained on the state payroll are making the same salary they received in their former jobs.

THE SITUATION involving the five was discovered June 15 when Schilling, who also is coordinator of the governor's Chicago and Springfield offices, began his own investigation into the matter.

Schilling said he began the inquiry after Thompson fired Michael Dunn, his patronage chief, because he had altered records concerning the use of state airplanes.

Thompson asked Schilling to look into the personnel in the Chicago office and to determine who was being paid by what state agency and which employees should be retained.

'Roots' heads Emmys list, receives 37 nominations

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) "Roots" captured 37 nominations Wednesday to lead all other shows in the 29th annual Emmy Awards race for television excellence during the 1976-77 season.

The 12-hour mini-series of Alex Haley's novel, tracing the cavalcade of a black family from Africa to the post Civil War era, also established all-time Nielsen Rating highs during the season.

Members of the newly formed Academy of Television Arts and Sciences also voted 16 nominations, the second highest, to "Eleanor and Franklin," a dramatization of the Roosevelt family.

Other dramas receiving multiple nominations included "Raid on Entebbe" (10), "The Adams Chronicles" (9), and "Captains and the Kings" (8).

"The Mary Tyler Moore Show," in its final season, topped all weekly series with 12 nominations, followed by "M-A-S-H" with 11.

ABC, WHICH LED the networks in ratings throughout the year, posted 101 total nominations, compared with 95 for NBC, 71 for CBS and 40 for the Public Broadcasting System.

Larry Stewart, president of the academy, said nominations covering the broadcast period from March 16, 1976, through March 13, 1977, were made by members voting in their own branches of the arts and crafts.

The academy was formed during a dispute between the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences and its Hollywood branch. The new academy took over sole administration of the prime-time entertainment Emmys in a settlement of the dispute.

The awards will be presented Sept. 11 at the Pasadena (Calif.) Civic Auditorium, in a show to be televised nationally over NBC.

Despite the new academy and the new site for the awards, most nominations went to old familiar shows and established stars.

"The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and "M-A-S-H" were nominated for outstanding comedy series along with "All in the Family," "Barney Miller" and "The Bob Newhart Show."

NOMINATED FOR outstanding drama series were "Baretta," "Columbo," "Family," "Police Story" and "Upstairs, Downstairs."

Actors nominated for best performance in a comedy series were Jack Albertson of "Chico and the Man," Alan Alda of "M-A-S-H," Al Linden of "Barney Miller," Carroll O'Connor of "All in the Family" and Henry Winkler of "Happy Days."

Actresses nominated for best performance in a comedy series were Bea Arthur of "Maude," Valerie Harper of "Rhoda," Suzanne Pleshette of "The Bob Newhart Show," Jean Stapleton of "All in the Family" and Mary Tyler Moore.

Nominated for best actor in a drama series were Robert Blake of "Baretta," Peter Falk of "Columbo," James Garner of "The Rockford Files," Jack Klugman of "Quincy" and Karl Malden of "Streets of San Francisco."

Nominated for best actress in a drama series were Angie Dickinson of "Police Woman," Kate Jackson of "Charlie's Angels," Michael Learned of "The Waltons," Sada Thompson of "Family" and Lindsay Wagner of "The Bionic Woman."

FOUR ACTORS from "Roots" — John Amos, LeVar Burton, Lou Gossett and Ben Vereen — were nominated for best single performance in a drama or comedy series. No other actors were nominated in that category.

LEVAR BURTON was one of four actors and two actresses from "Roots" to be nominated for best single performance in nominations revealed Wednesday for Emmy Awards.

Two actresses from "Roots" — Madge Sinclair and Leslie Uggams — were nominated for best single performances in a drama or comedy series. They will compete against Susan Blakely of "Rich Man, Poor Man — Book II," Beulah Bondi of "The Waltons" and Jessica Walter of "Streets of San Francisco."

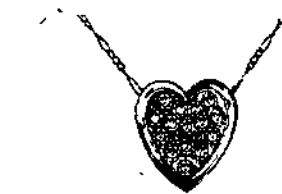

"Roots" was favored to win the Emmy for outstanding limited series in competition with "The Adams Chronicles," "Captains and the Kings," "Madame Bovary" and "The Moneychangers."

Nominees for outstanding special or drama are "Eleanor and Franklin," "Harry S. Truman: Plain Speaking," "Raid on Entebbe," "Sybil" and "21 Hours at Munich."

CONSERVE and SAVE on heating and cooling costs with Insul spray

THE CASE FOR INSULSPRAY

It's unavoidable — the cost of energy is going up. So it only makes sense to do all you can to insulate the very best way. And that's with Insul spray — the foam insulation that prevents the escape of heat (or cool air in the summer) through your walls. Insul spray is nontoxic and easily installed from the outside — usually in just one day. And what's more you get other advantages: like a quieter home and the elimination of space for pests and rodents in your walls. But the biggest plus of all is in your pocketbook:

Sex offender was named to Illinois Film Dept.

CHICAGO (UPI) — A state employee who was hired to encourage movie companies to produce films in Illinois is a convicted sex offender who lied about his police record when filling out his job application, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Frank J. Cacciatore, 31, Chicago, a member of the state's two-member Film Dept., was convicted of deviate sexual assault in 1969 and was named an undicted co-conspirator in an auto theft case in 1973, the Illinois Dept. of Law Enforcement said.

Cacciatore, whose family runs a real estate firm in Chicago's Bridgeport neighborhood, is a nephew of Victor Cacciatore, who contributed between $5,000 and $10,000 to former Gov. Daniel Walker's 1972 gubernatorial campaign.

CACCIATORE WAS hired by the Walker administration on April 16, 1976, according to records of state Comptroller Michael Bakalis. He is paid $1,524 a month to persuade movie companies to produce films in Illinois.

Tyrone Palmer, director of the Dept. of Law Enforcement, said Cacciatore lied on his job application by failing to disclose his police record.

Investigators said the deviate sexual assault conviction grew out of a 1967 arrest in suburban Lyons on a rape complaint by a Crystal Lake woman. He and another man were convicted in 1969 and placed on probation for five years.

Investigators said Cacciatore became a federal witness in the investigation of a Chicago area car theft ring after he and a number of his friends were arrested in 1973. The ring, which resold between 500 and 1,000 cars in a five-year period, grossed $300,000 annually, authorities said.

Olympic flame to light Chicago?

The 1984 Chicago Olympiad.

Who knows what sports immortals Olympic Games in Chicago might draw? Athletes destined to join the ranks of Jesse Owens, Roger Bannister and Bruce Jenner would come to compete.

So, too, would tourists from all over the world. Fans of the sport and spectacle would be drawn to Chicago's lakefront, plazas and nightlife. World and national media coverage would put Chicago in the forefront of the news for the two weeks of the games.

The image of Chicago's own Olympics is so tantalizing that it is easy to see why Mayor Michael Bilandic has announced the city will put in its bid for the games. And because the suburbs will bask in at least reflected glow from Chicago's glory, it is equally easy to prepare to cheer the city on as it applies for the games.

Particularly heartening is the fact that Bilandic, like New York City Mayor Abraham Beame, has said Chicago will need financial support from the federal government in order to host the games. Because even Olympic sparkle cannot obscure the fact that there are problems with hosting the games and the problems are mostly economic.

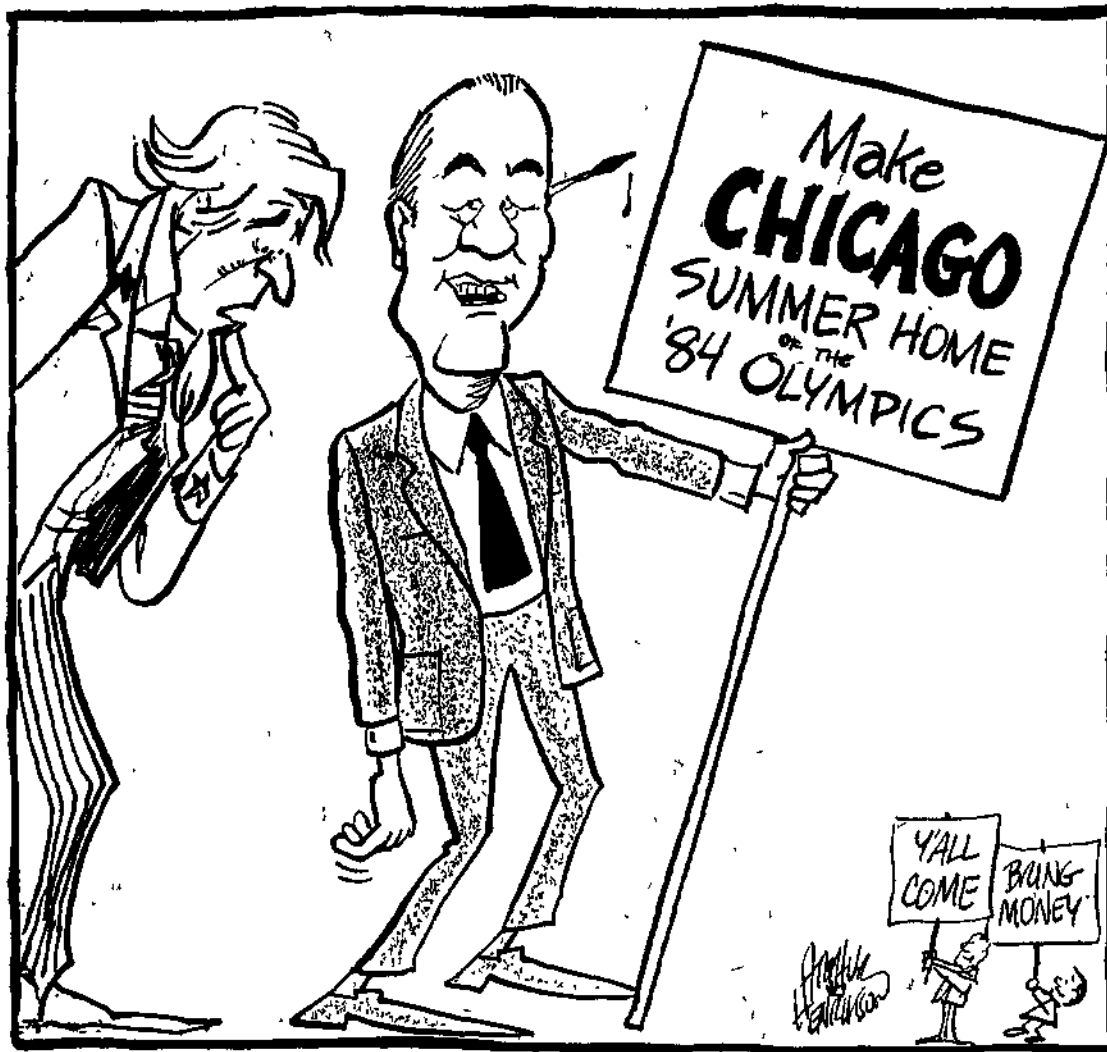

Montreal, the site of the 1976 Olympics, had to substantially raise taxes in order to pay for massive building programs. Munich also had financial problems with the 1972 games.

Chicago will have the advantage of having many sports facilities already built, cutting the need for an expensive construction program. Even so, outside help on the games will be necessary if the area is to reap the benefits of the games without paying an exorbitant price.

Mayor Beame has said he will ask the federal government to pay up to $300 million to support a city putting on the Olympics. Bilandic has put no price tag on the games but has endorsed Beame's proposal.

As long as Chicago's Olympic bid is contingent on such outside aid, it's hard not to be enthusiastic about it.

After all, through all the strife and political wrangling that have dogged the games, the glamour of the world's best athletes gathered for competition is exciting.

Let me get this straight. You're ready, willing and able to host the Olympics — on my money?

Lower taxes through cuts

TODAY'S QUESTION: Should government services be cut to lower taxes?

Four of the 14 billed items on the 1976 Property Tax bills account for 79 per cent of the total dollars. Three of these are school district, high school district and community college district. The fourth is the village's share.

Minor reductions in educational and village budgets are not the answer, because we want the current level of education and services maintained. Any reductions made would be quickly overcome by yearly salary increases and inflating costs of non-personnel items.

How then can we reduce this growing burden that is forcing some to sell their homes? Combine education districts and villages, thus eliminating four very expensive administrative staffs and a village board.

The idea of combining is not original. I am sure it has come up several times over the years. Our former Mayor Robert D. Teichert of Mount Prospect at his final village board meeting recommended that thought be given to a study of merging Mount Prospect with an adjacent community, possibly Arlington Heights. I would further recommend the combining of the educational districts.

Ralph W. Arthur
Mount Prospect

Start with schools

I heartily endorse cutting services to reduce taxes. Since schools are the largest part of my tax bill, it seems obvious to me that this is the place to start.

On my tax bill, support to Arlington Heights Dist. 25 increased by 69 per cent and Dist. 214 by 50 per cent. With declining enrollment and the projected closing of schools, how can this be necessary?

Margaret Andrew
Arlington Heights

Cut township, county

It is time for every taxpaying individual to give long and careful thought to the services for which he/she is willing to assume the cost burden. I believe it is time to consider just how much duplication of government is necessary now that municipalities share common boundaries; communications have vastly improved since the early 1900's and computerized record handling is readily available. A reduction in county government services and township services would save many millions of dollars.

It is no longer necessary to have a huge county and township administration (other than politically) as much of their present activities can presently be absorbed by existing municipalities who are already duplicating many of the services.

As for local government, I am certain we must all admit to having been very apathetic when it comes to researching the ability and credibility of those individuals seeking political positions in our municipalities. We have been especially apathetic toward the lax use of the "home rule" which allows every city, town, village, hamlet, county, township, etc. governing body to impose a tax without the voters voicing their opinions via a referendum.

I believe the state legislation must amend the state constitution to include a statewide tax ceiling on real estate tax. Thereafter, each municipality must vote on any increase or services they are willing to pay for.

Leonard E. Meyer
Mount Prospect

Don't expand library

We think the school tax is too extreme. With two schools closing, we do not understand the increase.

Also, the library was already functional and did not need enlarging at this time and place.

Mr. and Mrs. George Weiss
Arlington Heights

Employ part-timers

The services provided by property taxes should be critically evaluated periodically, as should the employees of the taxing body. To some extent, lower costs can be achieved by efficiencies in all areas. Some cuts could, no doubt, be made in less critical services such as library services.

More part time and fewer full time positions should be used where possible. The part time positions should be open for alert senior citizens to help supplement their fixed incomes. Cooperative attitudes between neighboring suburbs could lead to certain services being shared or pooled. Certain purchases could be made in larger quantities at a saving.

Finally, local newspapers should focus attention on local government spending more frequently. Everything should be included from salaries, benefits and pensions to vehicles, buildings, equipment and supplies.

Raymond Gibbs
Des Plaines

Tighten up on luxuries

In my opinion the following local government services should be and could be reduced. We who live in Arlington Heights enjoy many luxuries. The days of luxuries and high-living are on the wane — it's time to tighten the belt!

• Park Board: Arlington Heights has an overabundance of parks. The maintenance and upkeep is tremendous — let us cut down on the facilities. Since most of the families could afford outside facilities, I suggest we cut some of the facilities offered. The golf course should be shelved and these monies put in a bank to draw interest until the time when the park board could afford to finish the course. The cost has already risen.

• Library: The new addition is going up — can't do much about that. I think this is a waste of taxpayers' money. All the surrounding communities have good libraries. We do not have to accommodate their presence in our facility and we do not need more than we have. It's beautiful, but who needs all the luxury?

• Schools — elementary and high school: Cut the budget in the physical education departments. We have too varied a program. We can still maintain a good P.E. program without all the frills like tennis, golf, roller skating, archery. Let the parents pay for private lessons as they did in my time. Cut some of the secretarial help in all areas by letting the youngsters in the high school business courses learn through a work-study program and replace some of the office personnel in the offices of the schools as well as in the administration offices.

• Police: Office help could be cut here. The few times I have been in this department people were always standing around.

• Township: A long hard look should be taken by each of the agencies and where it is possible — cut-cut-cut.

Competing for varsity doublespeak

Last year's annual award for Doublespeak from the National Council of Teachers of English went, of course, to the State Department. The department is always a formidable entry, even when the United Nations is in the running. But it was Daniel Patrick Moynihan who was pronounced runner-up last year on the strength of his famous declaration as Ambassador Moynihan prior to leaving his post and being elected Senator Moynihan:

"I would consider it dishonorable to leave this post and run for any office, and I hope it would be understood that if I do, the people, the voters to whom I would present myself in such circumstances would consider me as having said in advance that I am a man of no personal honor to have done so."

Now, after an uncharacteristic silence on his part, Moynihan has responded to the council of English teachers who honored him with this most deserved award. Moynihan demands that the council's Doublespeak Committee, which is in charge of the awards, explain its (self-explanatory) decision. To quote the letter from Ambassador/Senator Moynihan:

"YOUR COMMITTEE is good fun, and I much encourage its work. But you must understand that you may have intended to question my honor, which I cannot let pass lightly. . . I wish to be fair in this matter, but I must tell you I will also be firm."

The council has made no comment in response, and doesn't need to. But Daniel J. Dieterich, the chairman of its Doublespeak Committee, is quoted as saying: "I don't understand what he's complaining about. He said he wouldn't be a man of honor if he ran for office and then he ran for office. We didn't question his honor. We let his statement speak for itself." The State Department, it should be noted, accepted its award graciously.

Professor Dieterich adds that Moynihan's letter, which is something of a classic itself, makes him eligible for this year's Doublespeak Award. It's a beaut, all right. Dr. Ambassador-Senator Moynihan is going to be hard to beat this year.

Of course the Soviets will be tough competitors at Doublespeak, their own game. And they continue to excel at it. One of the few splashes of humor in U.S. News and World Report, unintended of course, came in an interview with Georgi Arbatov, director of the Soviet Union's Institute of U.S.A. and Canadian Studies. That's a kind of Russian think tank for the study of inscrutable Occidentals. Asked how Detente has benefited the world, Comrade Arbatov gave this as one of his examples:

"DETENTE ALSO has reduced the danger of escalating international crises. Take the October, 1973, war in the Middle East. I'm absolutely sure if this had occurred during the acute tensions of the Cold War, it would have become much more dangerous. It wouldn't have been possible to localize this war so quickly, bring in a cease-fire so quickly, or work out a mechanism — the Geneva Conference — which can permanently solve this crisis."

Those who recall the sequence of events in that war, or of a couple of others in the Middle East, will remember that it was impossible to get a cease-fire so long as the Soviet-equipped Arab armies were advancing or had any hope of advancing. The cease-fires came only after Israeli troops had broken through Arab lines. What localized the war in 1973 was the Israeli drive across the canal into the heart of Egypt. Only then was a cease-fire in place acceptable, if not urgent, in Arab capitals.

Comrade Arbatov's work may keep him too busy reading publications from the United States and Canada to have noticed an article in Pravda not long ago that confirmed the Soviet role in the 1973 war.

In the course of rebutting some of Anwar Sadat's slams against the Soviets for insisting that Egypt pay its war debts, Pravda mentioned that the Soviet Union had re-equipped the Egyptian army completely after its defeat in 1967 with "large quantities of modern weapons" and even "assumed the defense of Egyptian airspace." In 1973, according to no less an authority than Pravda, the Soviets took "urgent measures" to deliver "additional large quantities of arms to Egypt by sea and air." Detente localizes wars only in Doublespeak. In reality, it may start them.

LBJ's tarnished past

The revelation that supporters of Lyndon B. Johnson stole the 1948 senate election in Texas through fraudulent ballots comes as no real shock to many citizens.

Rumors of vote fraud in that long-ago Texas election and the shady political dealings of the Democratic bosses who made Johnson senator have been circulating for years. Doubts about Johnson's integrity have been overshadowed only by the known truth about Richard Nixon, Johnson's successor.

The admission by an election official who said he validated 200 false ballots for Johnson — enough to win the election for him — only provides proof of what many long suspected.

There perhaps lies the tragedy

— we have come to expect the worst from two men who were president during an explosive period in our history.

If the Johnson-Nixon years taught us anything, it is what a crisis in confidence can do to a nation.

It will be many years before the scars of mistrust which have been inflicted on the nation by politicians with a "win at any price" philosophy are fully healed.

No one will ever know what the shape of history would have been if it had not been for 200 falsified ballots in Texas in 1948.

But one thing is certain, the truth finally caught up with Lyndon Johnson's record. The result will be a stain on his place in history.

The (ho-hum) secret boring bomb

by DICK WEST
(The Lighter Side)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The current issue of Smithsonian magazine reports the British Defense Ministry has been conducting tests on "bored levels of servicemen."

"We want to isolate the causes of boredom to find out what happens to the brain and how it can be counteracted," the scientist in charge of the program was quoted as explaining.

Ostensibly, the findings would be used to help servicemen who monitor blank radar screens in air defense outposts remain alert enough to notice any blips made by enemy planes or missiles.

NOTE I SAID that is the ostensible purpose. Some of the military sources I checked with told me there may be more to it than that.

These sources suspect the British are secretly working on a counterpart to America's neutron bomb.

The N-bomb, as you must know by now, is a nuclear warhead that kills people while leaving buildings, totem poles, diving platforms and other vital structures standing.

Great Britain apparently does not have the technology to build the neutron bomb. It is known, however, that the British are capable of producing some of the world's most deadly bores.

Now suppose they were to find some way of harnessing the great inertial force of boredom. They then would have a weapon for which there is no known defense.

THEORETICALLY, PEOPLE could be shielded against being rigidified by neutron radiation. But there are no safeguards now existent or envisioned to keep people from being bored stiff.

If the British, as my sources suspect, are trying to develop a blah bomb, they must overcome a number of problems. One is deliverability.

As the Smithsonian points out in its comments on the British tests, "there's no such thing as a little boredom."

So the trick would be to make a tedium warhead small enough for a missile to deliver.

ANOTHER PROBLEM is the guidance system. Bored tend to be indiscriminate, latching onto the nearest person at hand. This makes it difficult to devise a blah bomb that will zero in on selected targets.

Even if British weaponeers can overcome these difficulties, they still will encounter the same humanitarian opposition generated by the neutron bomb.

The prospect of people, even enemies, being slowly bored to death stirs our compassion. Unless the blah bomb is capable of inflicting instant ennui with lethal tedium, world opinion surely will shout it down.

Threat of GI unions spurs Senate to action

by JOHN DILLIN

Key senators are pushing for quick action on bills that would prohibit GIs from joining labor unions.

A sense of urgency lies behind efforts to win Senate passage of a bill before labor unions can get started with organizing efforts against it later this year.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has just completed hearings on two bills which would impose a complete ban on labor union membership by active members of the armed forces.

SEN. STROM THURMOND, R-South Carolina, has rounded up 43 cosponsors for his bill, which originally was introduced last year. Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Mississippi, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, has introduced a similar bill with a few minor modifications, but no vote is expected before Congress recesses in August.

These bills, says Sen. Stennis, are "not a poke at the union." They are, he says, aimed at maintaining discipline through the traditional chain of command.

Proponents of unionizing the military see it as a way to win greater benefits for GIs, but opponents fear unionized troops might strike if they didn't get what they wanted.

THE URGENCY felt in the Senate stems from recent actions by the American Federation of Government Employees, an affiliate of the AFL-CIO, which represents 725,000 civilian employees of the federal government.

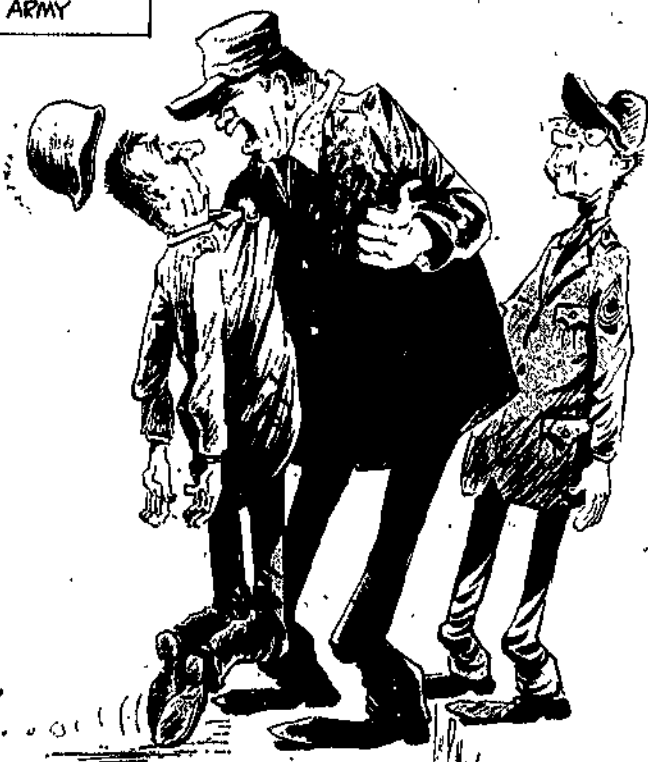

The AFGE currently is polling its members on the question of organizing uniformed servicemen. The vote, which will be completed no later than Oct. 1, could be the signal for an all-out effort to sign up thousands of GIs, who already have contacted AFGE about membership.

Kenneth T. Blaylock, national president of AFGE, has just told the Senate Armed Services Committee that a full-scale organizing effort could be under way within 30 to 60 days after the vote.

Blaylock says approximately 10,000 active duty GIs already have applied for membership in the AFGE without any solicitation on the union's part.

EVEN THOSE WHO oppose labor unions in the military concede that pressures for union membership are

JOIN THE NEW UNIONIZED
ARMY

The Christian Science Monitor

growing.

Behind these pressures are said to be a number of grievances felt by military men and women. Among them:

- Efforts in Congress to do away with early retirement (half pay after 20 years), which was one of the main features attracting many people into military service.
- Higher prices at commissaries.
- Changes in the leave, or vacation, system which have reduced benefits.
- Attacks by President Carter and some members of Congress against "double-dipping" — the hiring by government of retired military personnel who continue to draw retirement benefits.
- Reduced opportunities for promotion as the armed forces cut personnel.
- Reduced medical benefits.
- Poor management which often requires extensive overtime.

AFGE PRESIDENT Blaylock says a major factor in building pressure for unions is the all-volunteer force. Young men and women are recruited to the military as a career. Many of these career people work side by side with civilians doing the same tasks but get different pay and benefits.

"For instance, GIs working with civilians in any situation receive no overtime, while the civilians do," Blaylock says. "In fact, many times the military members are called on to perform the required overtime because of lack of funds to pay civilians overtime. Where hazardous work situations are involved, civilians draw hazardous pay or environmental differential pay to compensate, but the military member who is exposing his or her body to the same hazard gets no such compensation."

Rangers' magic haunts White Sox in 12

by DON FRISKE

Mike Hargrove's three-run homer highlighted a six-run 12th inning to give the Texas Rangers their third straight victory over the White Sox, a 12-10 decision Wednesday night at Comiskey Park.

It was the fourth straight loss for the Sox, who saw their lead in the American League West dwindle to 2½ games to Minnesota. The Twins won their contest, 11-1 against the Detroit Tigers.

The Rangers, who are now only 4½ back and in a tie with Kansas City, have won 20 of their last 24 games.

Sox starter Francisco Barrios had to be lifted with two outs in the fourth inning after allowing five runs. Jack Kucak was the replacement.

Kucak promptly struck out the first batter he faced to end the Texas threat with two runners on base. The only crucial mistake that Kucak made was a home run pitch to Toby Harrah with nobody on in the fifth. The homer sailed over the left-field wall to give the Rangers a 6-4 margin.

Other than that, Kucak worked 5 1/3 innings before being replaced by Lerin LaGrow in the 10th. During that time, Kucak allowed only five hits while striking out seven.

THE SOX got one run back in the bottom of the fifth off Ranger starter Dock Ellis. Richie Zisk singled to left with one out. He moved to second on Oscar Gamble's bloop single to center and scored on another bloop single by Jim Spencer. Chet Lemon walked to load the bases, but Ellis got the next two batters, striking out Jim Essian to end the inning.

For a long while it looked like Harrah's fifth-inning shot would hold up for the winning hit. But Ralph Garr took care of that with one pitch from reliever Adrian Devine with one out in the Sox' eighth.

Garr put the first pitch high enough so that it hit an advertisement between the lower and upper decks in right field. The damage could have been worse for the Rangers if not for the slick fielding of Bump Wills.

Prior to Garr's eighth homer of the season, Wills went deep to the hole at second base to grab a shot off the bat of pinch-hitter Royle Stillman.

Wills then quickly flipped the ball to the shortstop in football fashion. The shortstop's relay to first nipped Stillman.

Neither team could score in the next two innings, although both had a runner in scoring position. The Rangers' chance came in the ninth when Harrah doubled to right with two outs. The next batter hit a long shot to the right-field corner, where Zisk tracked it down for the final out.

The Sox had runners at first and second with two outs in the 10th, but a groundout to third ended that threat.

Sox manager Bob Lemon went through three pitchers to put down a Texas threat in the 11th. With a runner on second and one out, Dave Hamilton relieved LaGrow and collected a strike out. Then Don Kirkwood came in to retire the next batter on a popup to first.

THE RANGERS opened the game the same way they finished up Tuesday night. Mike Hargrove smashed a ground-rule double just inside the first-base line. One out later, Claudell Washington lined another double, this one brushing the line down third.

Willie Horton's soft roller up the middle scored Washington to make it 2-0 before the Sox even had a chance to bat.

The Sox got one of those runs back in the first when Garr topped the ball in front of the mound for an infield hit to open the inning. Alan Bannister then singled to right, and Garr advanced to third when Dave May mis-played the ball.

After Ellis struck out Jorge Orta, walks to Zisk and Gamble forced in a run. But Spencer followed by hitting into a rally-ending doubleplay.

TEXAS BUILT a two-run lead again in the second on a single by Wills and a double to center by Jim Sundberg, keeping the catcher's hot bat alive. Sundberg entered the game with a .421 average in his last 26 contests.

But the Sox quickly fought back to take a 4-3 lead after two innings. Lemon led off with a home run to left in the second, Orta later drove in Essian and Bannister, both having reached on singles, with a double into the left-field corner.

Texas regained the lead in the fourth with May collecting a leadoff single to right. Two outs later, Sundberg walked and Hargrove and Bert Campaneris both singled to chase Sox starter Barrios with a 5-1 deficit.

BUMP WILLS of the Texas Rangers creates a lot of dust as he slides into second base safely under Jorge Orta of the Chicago White Sox Wednesday night at Comiskey Park.

Driessen's homer adds extra pain to Cub arms

CINCINNATI — Cub 42, where are you?

The now familiar sight of Bruce Sutter, No. 42, strolling in from the bullpen wasn't to be seen Wednesday, and it was probably a leading reason for the Reds' come-from-behind 5-3 victory over the Cubs in 10 innings here Wednesday.

Instead, the Cubs went with Willie Hernandez who failed to hold the 3-1 lead given him by Rick Reuschel in the seventh inning. The 21-year-old leftie gave up two runs in the eighth on George Foster's home run to tie it and two more on Dan Driessen's homer in the 10th to lose it.

SUTTER, WHOSE 24 saves top the National League, is still ailing and may end up on the 21-day disabled list if the result of a doctor's examination of the forkballer taken Wednesday afternoon proves serious.

Dr. Jacob Suter, the Cubs' physician, said Sutter's ailment, which forced him to miss several games in July, including a chance to pitch in the All-Star Game, is not under his right arm. A lump originally diagnosed as a hemorrhaged muscle formed under Sutter's right armpit.

The lump dissolved after Sutter rested late in July, but now that he is back throwing, the lump has returned also. Suter said he expected to learn of his tests' results today.

The possibility of Sutter going on the disabled list only made the Cubs bleak pitching problems worse. Reuschel, who threw 6-1/3, four-hit innings against the Reds Wednesday, left with recurring soreness in his back.

THE BIG RIGHTHANDER has been troubled by his back since a muscle spasm took him out of a game late in July.

A solo home run by Steve Swisher put the Cubs in front 1-0 in the fifth inning, and two unearned runs in the seventh built the lead to three.

Pete Rose muffed Swisher's lead-off grounder in the two-run seventh, and Larry Bittner eventually drove in Reuschel and Jose Cardenal with a two-out double to right to raise the Cubs' lead to 3-0.

But Mike Lum blasted a solo homer off Reuschel to lead-off the bottom of the seventh, and one batter later Hernandez had to come in when Reuschel complained of soreness in his back.

GEORGE FOSTER pounded a two-run homer, his 36th, with Joe Morgan on base to tie the game in the eighth. In the 10th, Foster singled with one out before Driessen powered his game-winning blast to right.

Pedro Borbon, 7-4, who threw the 10th inning for the Reds picked up the victory in relief of starter Paul Moskau and reliever Jack Billingham. Hernandez' record is now 5-4.

About the only good news reaching the Cubs, who are off today in preparation for their weekend series with San Diego at Wrigley Field starting Friday, was that Reuschel was named the National League pitcher of July.

This is Reuschel's second straight Pitcher of the Month award, as he beat out reliever Rollie Fingers of San Diego by a wide margin. Reuschel appeared in eight games and was 4-1 in July, giving him a 15-3 mark for the season.

The Cubs have dominated the pitcher award this year, since the Cubs also had a winner in May — Bruce Sutter.

BEARS' GUARD Revie Sorey, who is enjoying an excellent preseason and may displace Jim Osborne at guard, takes a break from practice Wednesday at the Bears' Lake Forest training camp.

Arlington, Lions open county play

by DON FRISKE

After two weeks of waiting, the Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team will finally begin its late-summer drive in the Cook County tournament tonight at Recreation Park.

Arlington is the defending champion, having won the Cook County playoff in Northbrook last year. That was the second step to a second-place finish in the nation for the Arlington team.

But this year, Arlington had a bye in the Ninth District playoffs because it is hosting the Cook County. While Logan Square was winning the district series in three straight games over Park Ridge, Arlington was playing warmup games against other teams.

NOW IT COULD come down to another battle between Arlington and Logan Square. The two local teams played together for the Ninth District title last summer, with Arlington winning the close series in the fifth and final game.

If Logan Square wins a 1:30 game against Cicero today, it will play Arlington at 7:30 tonight. Arlington has another bye in the first set of county games.

Oak Lawn and Wilmette will also be trying to win first place in this double-elimination tourney. Those teams are scheduled for a game at 4 p.m.

Recreation Park, the host field for the county tournament, has undergone some changes in the last few months in preparation for the affair.

SOD HAS BEEN put over some parts of the field near the dugouts, and a loud speaker will be used along with a scoreboard beyond the outfield fence.

But the biggest change has been the lights, which were put in a month ago.

"The field is in as good shape as it's ever been," said Lloyd Meyer, the Arlington coach.

Meyer said his team has played enough games in the past few weeks to keep sharp for tournament action.

"BUT WE'RE A real question mark," he added, referring to his team's chances in county play. "We could explode. There are some good clubs in this tournament, but we've always done better when tournaments come around than we have the rest of the year."

Meyer's 1976 squad had good pitching, but the staff lacked depth.

"This year, any one of our pitchers could give us a good game on any given day," Meyer said. "I think our pitching and defense are solid, but our hitting is questionable. We'll probably have to do some of the small things to win."

By that, Meyer means stealing a base or executing a squeeze bunt to throw off the opponent's strategy. They require fundamental knowledge, but they could provide the difference in a well-pitched, close game.

The winner of the Cook County tournament will advance to the state finals, which begin next Thursday in Galesburg.

Phipps to start; Jackson AWOL

by BOB GALLAS

Bears coach Jack Pardee said Mike Phipps will start Saturday's home preseason opener Saturday at Soldier Field against the New Orleans Saints, then wondered if anyone had seen guard Noah Jackson.

Pardee put little emphasis on Phipps' starter status, saying he and Bob Avellini, who started all Bears games last year and played the first half in the preseason opener against the Jets last week, will rotate starting assignments.

"We'll probably rotate right on through the final preseason game," said Pardee, who added the rotation may be shifted to give Phipps a start when the Bears meet Phipps' former team, the Cleveland Browns, Aug. 25.

JACKSON, THE likeable starting guard, left camp after the morning workout Wednesday without telling anyone. Pardee said Jackson, nicknamed "Buddah" by his teammates, will be fined the "standard amount," which was not revealed by Pardee, who was more concerned about why Jackson left.

"We just want to get him back. Whatever it is, we want to work it out," said Pardee, who added he had no idea what was bothering Jackson.

Back to the quarterback derby, which is attracting much of the early preseason attention, Pardee emphasized Phipps' starting assignment had nothing to do with the quarterback performances in Saturday's 20-6 Bears win over New York in the Hall of Fame Game.

Avellini started, but could not put a point on the board during the first half. The Bears scored 20 in the second half, but six points came from two Bob Thomas field goals and seven more on middle linebacker Don Rives' return of a Jets' interception.

The Bears worked on putting more into the offense Wednesday at their Lake Forest training camp, adding a number of new pass plays. Pardee said one of his primary concerns right now is continued work on improving the pass offense.

"WE'RE STILL struggling in our passing game," Pardee noted. "But we're still putting a lot of new plays in. It's hard to make it look good when you're not running the same thing in a row."

Pardee also said cornerbacks Terry Irvin and Mike Spivey will see extensive action Saturday, though neither will start. Linebacker Ross Brubacher will also move over to the right side to spell Raymond Bryant Saturday while Pardee takes a good look at

Rookie defensive end Dennis Breckner began working out during the afternoon session Wednesday.

Breckner, a Miami-Florida graduate, had been out with a knee injury.

BEAR FACTS: The Bears have changed their practice times at Lake Forest . . . the morning session will now run from 8:45 to only 9:15 a.m. . . the afternoon session will still run from 3 to 5 p.m. . . 4,000 tickets remain on sale at the Bears' ticket office and Ticketron outlets for Saturday's preseason home opener . . . Cornerback Allan Ellis' wife gave birth to a baby girl Wednesday . . . Wally Chambers missed the afternoon workout due to continued knee problems, but Pardee said they probably weren't serious enough to keep Chambers from starting Saturday.

Romeo heads feature field

Today's $10,000 featured Midleground Purse at one mile for four-year-olds and up has drawn a field of eight headed by Romeo, a four-year-old son of T.V. Lark who earned more than $113,000 in 1976 and has pocketed $75,000-plus thus far this season.

Trained by Paul Adwell, Romeo drops here from the handicap ranks where he neither distinguished nor embarrassed himself. He has one win in 13 1977 starts to go with three seconds and a third. Romeo registered those second-place finishes in three stakes events this past spring at Oaklawn.

Jet Jumper, Country Boy Jim and King Jerry will provide a portion of the competition. Jet Jumper owns a pair of victories here at Arlington to push his 1977 earnings over the $18,000 mark. 1976 was a good year for the four-year-old son of Jet Traffic as he posted six wins, three seconds and two thirds in 13 starts for earnings of $32,570.

COUNTRY BOY JIM is looking for his initial triumph of the season in seven trips postward. The distance here would seem to fit the talents of the five-year-old who won four times last year for earnings of $48,305.

King Jerry is a recent ship-in from the West Coast and comes from the always dangerous Neal Winick barn. This will be the fourth American start for the four-year-old Chilean-bred.

Slice O'Pie, seeking his second straight, Dixmart, Junk Yard Jack and Certain Roman complete the field.

Royals, Twins triumph

Phillies within one game

Steve Carlton contributed three timely singles en route to pitching his 15th victory Wednesday night in an 8-1 triumph for the Philadelphia Phillies over the San Diego Padres. The win placed the Phillies only one game behind the Cubs.

Carlton singled to keep alive a two-run second inning and singled home a pair of runs in the fifth and another in the seventh as the Phillies tagged Padres starter Bob Shirley with his 13th loss. Carlton, 15-6, struck out a season high 12 batters and yielded just six hits.

The Phillies scored twice in the second when Dave Johnson walked and Garry Maddox singled before Carlton singled to load the bases with two out. Jerry Martin then singled home both runs.

Greg Luzinski walked and Johnson doubled to set up a two-run third with both runners scoring on infield grounders. With two outs in the fifth Maddox doubled and Tim McCarver walked. Ted Sizemore was then intentionally walked for Carlton, who singled to center for a 6-0 Phillies lead.

AT KANSAS CITY Frank White stroked a three-run, fourth-inning homer and George Brett added a solo shot two pitches later to propel the Kansas City Royals to a 7-4 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

John Mayberry walked and Fred Patek singled before White homered off Toronto starter Jerry Garvin, his fourth of the year. Brett, who hit just seven home runs all of last season, then unloaded his fifth in eight games on an 0-1 pitch.

Jose Cruz doubled home two runs and knuckleballer Joe Niekro fired his second straight shutout to pace a 3-0 victory by the Houston Astros over the Pittsburgh Pirates at Houston, putting the Pirates two games behind the Cubs.

Niekro, now 7-3, only made his first 1977 start July 24. Since then, he has pitched the two shutouts and a complete game victory. His string of scoreless innings is now 20 straight.

AT BLOOMINGTON, Minn. Lyman Bostock and Craig Kusick drove in three runs apiece and Dan Ford added a homer to send the Minnesota Twins to their fourth straight victory, an 11-1 rout of the Detroit Tigers.

Paul Thormodsgard, now 9-8, scattered seven hits and walked two. He fanned four in notching his seventh complete game.

Rod Carew and Butch Wynegar each stroked three singles for the Twins. Carew raised his average two points to .384.

Buffalo Grove Bruins await tourney play

The Buffalo Grove Bruins, last year's national champion in 12-inch slow pitch softball, awaits the winner from this weekend's state tournament at Joliet, enroute to a second consecutive championship.

The Bruins, who drew a bye in the first round, will begin their post-season play Tuesday night (6:30 p.m.) at McKenzie Field in Rolling Meadows.

The competition will be the best two out of three games with the winner advancing to the 1977 National Youth Tournament (16-18 yrs.), Aug. 18-21, 1977, at Satellite Beach, Fla.

Men's 16" ASA Metro League Tournament will be played Aug. 19-21, 1977, at Rand Park in Des Plaines.

Des Plaines will host the Northwest Suburban Metro with all first-place teams in the Northwest area and Lake County eligible.

Entry deadline for the tournament is Aug. 11; anyone interested may contact either Bob Campbell (991-3636) or Ferrice Reid (892-0289).

Hallberg near Western lead

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. — Gary Hallberg, 19, of Barrington shot an opening round 72 to place among the leaders at the Western Amateur Golf Championship at the Point of Woods Golf and Country Club Wednesday.

John Cook, 19, an all-American golfer at Ohio State, took the first round lead with a 67. He was followed by Mike Brennan from Salinas, Calif., and Bob Mase, 23, from East Lansing, Mich., who shot 69s.

The stroke play continues today after which the field will be cut to the low 50 golfers. Friday an additional 36 holes will be played, and the low 16 medalists advance to the match play finals Saturday and Sunday.

Jerry Vidovic, from Blue Island, this year's U.S. Publix champion, shot a firstround 79, while another Chicago area golfer, Tom Evans, had a 77.

Major league baseball

The Cardinals took a 2-1 lead in the third off Atlanta starter Dick Ruthven when Lou Brock led off with a single and stole second, his 885th career theft, leaving him seven behind Ty Cobb's major league record.

At New York Lee Mazzilli's pinch-hit single with one out in the 14th inning scored Joel Youngblood from third base Wednesday to lift the New York Mets to a 4-3 rain-delayed victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Davey Lopes hit a two-run homer in the third to give the Dodgers a 3-0 lead. Starter Doug Rau doubled over Vail's head in right and Lopes followed with his eighth homer. It was his second homer in three days and third this year against the Mets.

Jackie Brown and Dan Stanhouse combined in a seven-hitter and ERIS

Valentine cracked his 18th home run leading the Montreal Expos to a 4-2 triumph over the San Francisco Giants.

Brown, who struck out six in eight innings, gave up the first run in the third inning when Bill Madlock singled home Marc Hill. He was relieved by Stanhouse after yielding two singles in the ninth inning and a second run scored on Vic Harris' infield out.

The Cleveland at Milwaukee game was delayed by rain while New York played at California. Boston visited Seattle, and Baltimore was in the Pacific Northwest against Seattle.

Regional play next for Woodfield

The newly-crowned Woodfield Cubs state championship Babe Ruth baseball team will travel to Detroit, Mich. this weekend to begin play in the Babe Ruth regional tournament at Berkley, Mich. Saturday.

The Cubs will play the Michigan State champs in their first game Saturday at 6 p.m. In addition to the Cubs, seven other teams from the Midwest will battle for the right to advance to the Babe Ruth World Series in Newark, Ohio at the end of the month.

State champion winners in addition to Woodfield-Illinois that will be competing in Berkley are Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Michigan, West Virginia and the host Berkley team. It takes four wins to capture the title.

According to president and general manager Denny Porter, Woodfield appears to be sold in every phase of the game. Woodfield uses three lefties in Jay Saladino who has pitched two one-hitters in Illinois State competition thus far, Tim Bukar, and Dave Manning of Palatine.

Porter also credits manager Wally Joniec, and coaches Tony Stompanato and George Lucas. Stompanato managed the Schaumburg-Hoffman Legion team as well as the Woodfield Sox; Lucas managed the Woodfield Brewers as well as coaching in the Buffalo Grove Pony League system. And Manager Joniec has managed three years in Woodfield as well as an assistant coach in American Legion ball.

The team has received sponsorship from the North Point State Bank of Arlington Heights and the support of the tournament team has been outstanding.

Area gym clinic

A gymnastics clinic, open to all Northwest Suburban high school gymnasts has been scheduled for Aug. 15-19 at Fremd High School. An outstanding staff of Bill Sands, Donna Cozzo, Sandy Oldham, and Steve Schwabe will conduct the clinic with emphasis on developing new skills and perfecting technique on all apparatus, tumbling, and dance.

Fee for the clinic is $25. Registrations must be made by Aug. 10 at the Palatine Park District Administration Office — 262 E. Palatine Rd.

Gymnasts 12 and over with above average skill will be selected to fill any available spaces after Monday, Aug. 10. Those interested may pre-register by calling 253-6466.

PERMITS FOR homes in the Chicago area increased 41 per cent in June compared with June 1976. It was the third month in a row in which an 18-year record high was reached, according to a Bell Federal Savings survey. Multi-family housing rose 21 per cent compared with June 1976.

Residential contracts increase 40%

Residential building contracts during the first six months of 1977 were up 40 per cent over 1976 figures, according to the F. W. Dodge reports on construction activity.

June construction contracts were up 41 per cent from the year-ago level.

"After a modest first quarter, which was hampered by the unusually harsh winter weather, construction contracting nearly exploded in the second quarter," said George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist for F. W. Dodge.

For the past two-and-a-half years, single-family housing had been the mainstay of residential recovery, but now single-family housing has pretty much reached its upper limits," Christie said. "From now on, the potential for further gains is in apartment buildings, which showed a 50 per cent gain in June."

Buyers of existing homes getting better deal: exec

First home buyers who purchase existing homes and those who have homes to trade are having greater success in beating down the rising costs of home ownership than people buying new first homes, said Robert G. Walters, a vice president of Baird & Warner.

Although all three groups spent about the same total amount in 1970, including monthly mortgage payments, insurance, property taxes, heating and utilities, and maintenance costs, new home buyers are now spending substantially more, he said.

According to data compiled for the period from 1970 to 1975 by the Congressional Budget Office and included in a recently issued report, average monthly housing costs have increased 82.4 per cent for new home buyers. Over the same span, costs for first-time buyers of existing homes climbed 63 per cent, Walters said.

BUT THE GROUP best insulated from inflationary increases were the repurchasers, Walters said, those who were able to use the appreciation of a home for buying another house: their housing costs increased 27.3 per cent over the same period.

"Even though two important years, 1976 and 1977, are not covered in the study, we feel the trends are valid. All the numbers would be larger, of course, but the total impact would still fall in the same way," said Walters, who also is general manager of Baird & Warner's residential sales division.

This congressional study, which was reported in the May issue of Savings & Loan News, points to some clear financial advantages for purchasing a formerly occupied home, he said.

"It also demonstrates that home ownership is an important stepping stone by putting people in a position to step up to better homes without increasing housing costs," Walters said. Home values, which increase during inflationary cycles at a higher rate than inflation, permit larger down payments for subsequent purchases and lower monthly housing costs, he said.

According to the Congressional Budget Office, annual housing costs in 1970 were $14 lower for the first-time new home buyer than for either the first-time existing home buyer or the second-time buyer.

BUT BY 1975, the first-time new home buyer had an annual housing cost of $4,751, which was 10 per cent higher than the cost ($4,317) for the first-time existing home buyer and 41 per cent higher than the annual cost ($3,371) for second-time home buyers.

"When you buy an older home," Walters said, "you can be fairly certain that taxes will be more stable than they would be on a new one. That's because most or all of the community facilities — such as schools — have been built already. There's also less chance that an older home faces any special assessments for additional community improvements."

"There is no reason to expect that these trends will reverse," Walters said. "In April the national median price for an existing home was up to $42,000, but the median sales price for new homes was $48,900, 16 per cent higher. And existing homes have been appreciating at a rate of about three-quarters of one per cent to one per cent a month."

"So, it is still less expensive to buy an existing home, monthly costs should rise slower, and when that buyer is ready to trade homes he can expect to use his equity to help combat future housing costs," he said.

Rising home-repair costs cited for insurance hikes

Illinois homeowners are constantly being reminded of the rising cost of living these days, and it doesn't take an economic expert to tell them.

The upward trend in prices, which are expected to continue through 1977, has caused the replacement cost of many homes to double during the past seven years.

A single-family home bought for $23,400 in 1970, for example, would cost more than $42,000 to replace in today's market, according to the U.S. Dept. of Commerce. This represents an increase of approximately 80 per cent over the last seven years.

"The skyrocketing cost of building materials and labor in the past several years also has been a major factor in rising property insurance rates," said Vincent T. Reagan, general manager, Aetna Life and Casualty, and a member of the Insurance Information Institute Advisory Committee.

"HOMEOWNERS must carefully analyze their insurance needs to see that they are getting the most coverage for their insurance dollars."

Since 1967 the cost of items that homeowners insurance pays for — painting, roofing, plastering and other such repairs — has climbed more than 100 per cent. The largest part of that increase has occurred since 1971.

According to the U.S. Dept. of Labor's Consumer Price Index, the cost of house maintenance and repairs, for example, increased 56.9 per cent from 1971 to April 1977; repainting living and dining rooms went up 59.1 per cent; reroofing roofs climbed 59.5 per cent; and re-siding houses rose 52.2 per cent.

"During that same period the over-all Consumer Price Index increased just 46.9 per cent, and the index for property insurance premiums went up only 25.9 per cent," Reagan said. "If the cost of items that homeowners insurance pays for continues to increase, there will be added pressure for homeowners insurance premiums to rise also."

THE INCREASE in the cost of building materials has been matched by a steady rise in the cost of labor. The chart shows U.S. Dept. of Labor figures for basic union wage rates of certain trades in the Chicago area.

Average basic hourly union wage rate for building trade workers April, 1971 to April, 1977

	April 1971	April 1977	Per cent increase
Bricklayers	$7.00	$10.41	6.8
Carpenters	6.85	10.55	54.0
Electricians	7.80	11.25	44.2
Painters	7.05	9.45	34.0
Plasterers	7.00	9.75	39.3
Plumbers	6.90	10.92	58.3
Building Laborers	5.40	7.95	47.2

Deductibles — the amount of a loss that a policyholder agrees to absorb — are important tools both to get the maximum use from insurance dollars and to keep insurance costs down.

"If you have two exact policies, except that one has a higher deductible, then the policy with the higher deductible costs less to buy," Reagan said. "When a policyholder raises his deductible, he agrees to pay for small-dollar losses so that he can buy more protection for large, potentially disastrous losses at a lesser price."

Another possible savings could result through fire- and burglary-prevention measures. Many companies offer discounts on homeowners insurance when homes have approved burglar and fire alarm systems, Reagan said.

Childless homes

Firm finds that more and more of its customers are working couples who do not have children

Couples without children are a growing market for single-family homes. Buyer profiles recorded by homebuilders confirm that more and more detached residences are being sold to couples with no children.

As an example, at New England Village in Schaumburg Township, 50 per cent of the buyers are couples without children, said William A. Maybrook, vice president of Lexington Development Corp.

"The main reasons we see this trend today are both social and demographic. In many instances, social changes paired with scientific advancements in contraception have led to a tendency for couples to have fewer children and to have them later in life," Maybrook said.

"AS A RESULT we have a new generation of buyers; couples aged 25 to 35 with both partners working, and with no children," Maybrook said.

Childless couples with combined incomes are buying homes to offset high taxes, said Jim Dubinski, a broker for Circle America/Kole Real Estate Ltd., 8 W. Schaumburg Rd., Schaumburg.

"The taxes are killing them, and they've been coming in to try and protect their earnings," Dubinski said.

"I even had two couples who won't be married for a few months come in because they wanted to start looking," he said.

GLEN BOBER, a broker for Kemmerly Real Estate, 313 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove, said he has made "a heck of a lot of sales to childless couples" recently.

"The only way most people can afford to buy a home is by not having children," Bober said. "They are putting off having children because they might want other things," he said.

Couples are buying before having children to beat inflation, said Tom Stengren, a broker for Century 21, 8 E. Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect.

"With the way prices are going, people are holding off on having kids so they can buy the houses," Stengren said.

"THESE COUPLES have made a decision to buy after a long look at the rate of inflation which is driving up prices on everything. They come in to buy their dream home now because they feel they may not be able to afford it later," he said.

Aside from the financial considerations, Maybrook cited additional reasons that go into the purchase of a multiple-bedroom home by a childless couple.

"There is a basic need in people, a territorial instinct, to own your own plot of land. People want a space to entertain, garden or lie on the patio away from the eyes of neighbors," he said.

"There also is a certain amount of pride and sense of accomplishment that comes along with owning your own house," he added.

This is particularly true for another group of childless couples buying single-family homes. These are the so-called "empty nesters" who have seen their children grow up and move away.

The new breed of buyers, the childless couple, is hitting the single-family housing market for a variety of reasons, Maybrook said. But basic to all of these couples is to have an investment for their future, he said.

Conservation your best bet: consultant

The cheapest source of energy available today is conservation, a management consultant told suburban businessmen and homeowners recently.

N. Paul Sood, vice president of Rose & Co., Management Consultants, Northbrook, spoke at a seminar on energy conservation.

Sood listed 20 ways a homeowner can cut energy use — among them, planned landscaping, installed awnings over windows, air-drying dishes rather than using the heating element of dishwasher, clean clothes dryer exhausts and long-lasting household products.

BUSINESSMEN also benefit from energy conservation, Sood said.

He said savings of up to $50 per 100 square feet of plant space a year can be achieved in light industry.

Sood cited an example: a small area of poorly maintained steam lines can cost a company as much as $2,500 a year. Boilers used by some companies are too large and are not operated at full load, thus lessening efficiency, he said.

Sood said a smaller boiler and a back-up boiler would supply such a company's needs, plus save energy.

Sood urged businessmen to have an energy consultant audit their energy consumption, and find out how much energy they wasted.

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS offered by Sood included use of adequate insulation; leaf-shedding trees on the sunny side of a home; awnings over the south, east and west windows; storm windows; weather stripping and caulking; energy-efficient air conditioners; and air conditioners installed on the shady side of a home.

Sood also suggested that homeowners set air-conditioning thermostats at 78 degrees or higher, and heating thermostats to 65 to 68 degrees; keep furnace filters clean; set hot water heaters at 120 degrees; repair leaky hot water faucets; and check the seals on refrigerator doors.

Judging ends Friday

Judging of 125 entries in Design '77, a competition for residential developments sponsored by the Home Builders Assn. of Greater Chicago ends Friday.

Awards of gold and silver keys to winning developers will be made Sept. 23 at a dinner meeting of the homebuilders association in Chicago, said Lucy Svaldi, spokeswoman for the group.

Awards are made on the basis of exterior appearance, quality of construction, value, originality, design, use of materials, floor plans, use of space, market acceptance and appeal, landscaping, and quality of streets, walks, lighting, utilities, drainage, traffic and recreational facilities.

The competition has taken place every year since 1970.

Recipients of gold and silver keys must meet a minimum point standard, Ms. Svaldi said. Judges include builders, architects, marketing experts, land planners and engineers, she said.

Lake Barrington Shores earned four gold keys and a silver key at the 1976 competition. The development was one of 87 entries submitted by 40 companies in Design '76.

Real estate class offered at Harper

"Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Real Estate, But Were Afraid to Ask" is being offered by the Lifelong Learning Division of Harper College Aug. 18.

The seminar is free of charge to individuals interested in learning more about the real estate field. Topics to be discussed include career opportunities in real estate, licensing requirements, how to become a real estate salesman or broker and real estate investments.

The seminar will be from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in Building E, Room 106 on the Palatine campus, Algonquin and Roselle roads. Registration is required. For information, call 397-3000, ext. 410 or 412.

Home sales dollar volume dips 11%

Dollar volume of sales of existing homes in Cook County decreased nearly 11 per cent during June compared to a month earlier, according to First Federal of Chicago's Home Sales Index.

The report showed dollar volume on 3,297 sales was $135 million, a decrease of $16.7 million from May's 3,653 sales which totaled $151.7 million. Sales volume, however, is up nearly 23 per cent from last year, with 616 more transactions than the 2,681 recorded in June of 1976.

For the same period, dollar volume increased $15.8 million, or 13.2 per cent over last June's dollar volume of $119 million. The home sales index covers one-to-four unit properties.

"THE EXCEPTIONALLY large volume of mortgages and explosive demand for housing that characterized early 1977 has given way to a settling of activity," said James C. Fitzmaurice, senior vice president of First Federal.

"THE CHICAGOLAND area continues to generate a strong, but leveling demand for mortgage funds, concurrent with the normal slowdown during summer vacation months," he said.

"Our interpretation of the current market is that builder prices have peaked. — it appears they are as high as the traffic will bear. The fast-paced buying in the existing single family market seems to be settling, but listings still are in short supply," Fitzmaurice said. "Sellers continue to get their original asking price or close to it."

In addition, he said, "Lenders have adapted to the recent pressures of strong demand and are now better organized to accommodate the existing volume of home sales."

"THE OUTLOOK for the second half indicates demand will remain strong but not so intense," he said. Jefferson Township received the highest dollar and sales volume for all Cook County townships. Its dollar volume totaled $11.9 million on 311 sales.

Second in both dollar and sales volume was Lake Township, which received $8.7 million on 227 sales.

Cumulative activity for the first six months of 1977 totaled $697,898,000 on 15,576 sales. This is an increase of $163,285,500 or 31 per cent over the $534,612,500 recorded for the same period last year. Sales volume increased 22 per cent with 2,853 more sales than the 12,723 transactions recorded for the first six months of 1976.

Million dollar club

Marge Yeats

MARGE YEATS, broker/owner of Century 21 Village Square Realtors, received awards this month for personal career sales of more than $20 million of residential real estate. She was one of only two sales persons in the entire Northwest suburbs so honored at the recent annual awards banquet of MAP Multiple Listing Service.

Mrs. Yeats has been selling real estate for 15 years. She and her husband, Dave, have owned their own company for the past five years. In that time, Century 21 Village Square Realtors has grown from one office to three, with projected sales for this year in excess of $30 million.

The $20 million lifetime award is the highest award given by the MAP Multiple Listing Service and this is the first year it has been given. Sales totals include sales made in cooperation with other MAP members.

12,000 respond to Wards energy counseling service

A "do-it-yourself" energy audit for homeowners has drawn response from 12,000 residents of the Chicago area since the program's inception in May, said a spokeswoman for Montgomery Ward & Co.

Beth Behr, spokeswoman for Wards, said the energy counseling service has drawn 12,000 responses, mostly in the months of June and July, since the program began May 23.

Wards is offering a free, individual computer analysis of home energy use for consumers. The computer tells consumers whether they are obtaining the best performance from their use of electricity, gas, oil and water.

The homeowner obtains a 41-question home audit from Wards, and answers questions dealing with the size, age and type of home, its heating and cooling equipment, appliances used, the home's insulation, doors and windows and other facts related to energy consumption.

The energy counseling office will use a computer to compare the homeowner's audit against standards for economy and efficiency.

The homeowner then will receive a computerized plan showing areas for improvement and energy-saving practices to be followed.

The program is a one-year pilot project for the Chicago area, Ms. Behr said.

Homeowners may obtain energy audit forms from Wards by calling 467-8275, or writing the Energy Counseling Service, P.O. Box 7337, Chicago, Ill. 60603.

Town Sq. units go at 90% clip

The Town Square condominium apartment complex in Schaumburg sold 90 per cent of its units in its first four months as a condominium conversion, according to the owners of the complex.

The Town Square complex, on S. Roselle Road, was converted from rental apartments to condominium apartments last winter.

More than 100 units of 110 in the first building to be converted, at 220 S. Roselle Rd., have been sold at prices ranging from $24,250 for a one-bedroom unit to $29,000 for a two-bedroom unit, said Eugene Matanky, president of Eugene Matanky and Associates Inc. of Chicago.

Sales in the 300 S. Roselle Rd. building will begin later this summer, Matanky said.

HILLSIDE GREEN

Rarely does a builder sell out before his Grand Opening but 14 families have already purchased homes in Hillside Green, and the models are not even open yet.

Only 4 homes remain to be sold, so don't miss out on the opportunity to save thousands of dollars during our pre-Grand Opening Sale.

Million dollar club

Earl Meeske

The Mount Prospect office of ANNEN & BUSSE INC. announced that Earl Meeske, who joined the company in 1974, reached the million dollar sales goal for the third consecutive year. He is now qualified for lifetime memberships in the MAP Multiple Listing Service Million Dollar Sales Club as well as the Million Dollar Club of the Illinois Assn. of Realtors.

Meeske, of Mount Prospect, has been active in the community as a volunteer fireman, a member of the chamber of commerce, Northwest Central Business Men's Assn. and the Mount Prospect Historical Society. He also was parade chairman for the town's 50th anniversary celebration and on the ad hoc committee for the improvement of the downtown business section. He also was a president of the Mount Prospect Police Pension Fund.

Nancy Olexik

Annen & Busse Inc., Realtors, added one more name to the Million Dollar Sales Club.

NANCY OLEXIK is the second million dollar associate from the Palatine office in 1977.

She is a native of Bolivia and began her real estate career in 1972, reaching the million dollar goal for the fourth consecutive year. She is a graduate of San Andres University in Bolivia and for two years was an interpreter for the United Nations.

Veva Meyer

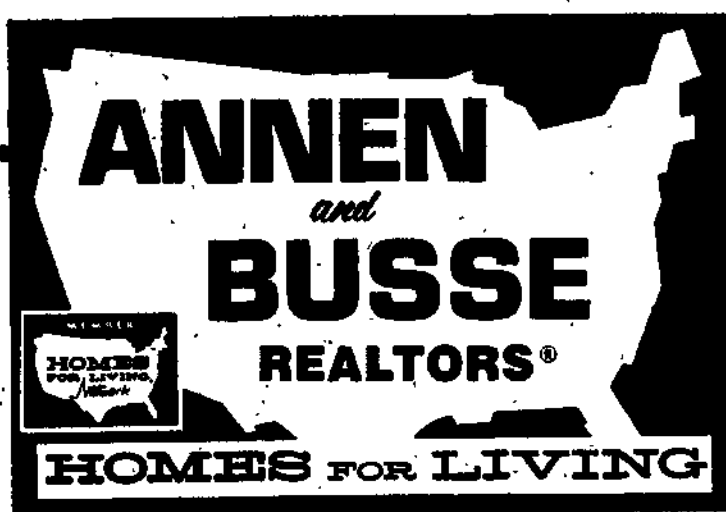

VEVA MEYER, sales associate in the Robert L. Nelson Real Estate Co. Arlington Heights office, has reached the million mark in sales for 1977. She has been active in real estate for 12 years and her career sales record has exceeded the $10 million mark.

Fran Rogers

FRAN ROGERS, sales associate in the Robert L. Nelson Real Estate Co. Arlington Heights Office, has recorded a sales volume in excess of $1 million during the first six months of 1977.

She has been salesperson-of-the-month three times during the past year and holds the G.R.I. designation. She and her family live in Arlington Heights.

What to do until plumber arrives

Dear House Doctor: A few weeks ago, a small leak developed in a water pipe beneath my kitchen sink. I immediately turned off the water supply at a valve in the basement and called a plumber. He did not arrive until late in the afternoon and I was inconvenienced by being without water all that time. Perhaps you know how to temporarily stop a leak until a plumber arrives. Mrs. C.H.T.

A. This problem is common in older homes equipped with galvanized steel plumbing, but it is rare in modern homes having copper pipes.

Plumbing emergencies are so frequent that you must wait your turn, but there are measures you can take until the plumber arrives. Sleeve clamps are available at hardware stores and these are often used to make permanent repairs. This is a hinged device furnished with a piece of soft rubber to be placed around the leak and secured with two or three screws.

The diameter of the clamp must coincide with the pipe size and this may present a problem if you are not familiar with pipe sizes. Inside diamalthough it is not necessary to remove the concrete to a depth of more than two inches.

Brush out all dust, dampen the surfaces inside the opening and fill with a mixture of one part Portland cement to two parts sand with water added to make a workable mixture.

Dear House Doctor: There are a number of jobs around my home that need the services of a carpenter. How can I find one that is reliable? Mrs. J.H.W.

A. Ask one of the large lumber and building supply dealers in your city. They usually know carpenters that deserve their recommendation.

ter determines pipe size, so the best you can do is to wrap a piece of paper around the pipe and mark the outside circumference. The store can determine the pipe size from this.

Another idea is to use a hose clamp to hold a rubber blanket tight against the leak. These clamps are often used on garden hose and for the radiator hose in cars.

If you have a C-clamp, you can use this with a small wood block and rubber gasket material to seal the leak. This is a very temporary measure, though.

There are a number of plastic materials such as epoxy putty that may be used to seal a leak at couplings, elbows and other pipe fittings. Turn off the water supply, drain the pipe and dry the outside surface. Spread the material over the leak. Allow this to set before turning on the water.

Dear House Doctor: What is the proper temperature for air entering a room from a central air conditioning plant? W.O.H.

A. The proper temperature cannot be expressed in this manner since this depends upon the thermostat setting. There should be a 17-degree differential between the temperature of the air entering the room and that returning to the condenser coils. In other words, if you keep your thermostat set at 78 degrees, the temperature of the air entering the room should be about 61 degrees.

Dear House Doctor: Our water comes from a deep well and appears completely clear, but the water from the hot water tank is always rusty. I drained the tank on three consecutive days but this did not help. I called a plumber who said that the tank is rusty and should be replaced. This is hard to believe since it is less than two years old. R.K.D.

A. This is the normal conclusion for the plumber to assume, but not necessarily the correct one.

There could be iron in the well water in the form of ferrous salts, and this would not be seen in the water as it is drawn from the well. However, when the water is mixed with air and heated, the salts oxidize to the brown color that you see in the hot water.

As a test, fill a bottle half full of the cold water. Shake it vigorously to mix air with the water and set aside for two days. If iron is present, the brown rust will precipitate to the bottom of the bottle.

Dear House Doctor: My concrete driveway is cracked. Can this be repaired?

A. Cracked concrete can be patched, but with only hand tools and considerable effort is required. The crack must be widened to not less than three-quarters of an inch at the surface and one inch at the bottom,

Cat odor no cause to break lease

There doesn't have to be friction between landlords and tenants — I've known cases where tenants enjoyed harmonious relationships with the same landlords 15 or 20 years.

But, in a high percentage of the cases, it seems landlords are constantly plotting ways of evicting tenants, and tenants are constantly seeking ways to break leases with impunity.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I would like to know if my wife and I are liable for the remainder of the rent on a two-bedroom apartment we occupied four months. We signed a 1-year lease, but, it said no pets were allowed.

After living there for about a month, we noticed a distinct cat odor in the carpet of the small bedroom. Obviously, the tenant before us had a cat. We didn't smell the odor before we moved in because the management had the place airing out for about a week.

We contacted the office about this problem 12 times by phone with no response. We then sent a certified letter to the office, and still received no response.

After sending the office another letter giving them our 30-day notice of moving out, the man in charge of maintenance was sent to discuss the problem. We didn't hear anything else from the office after he left.

We feel the management should be held responsible for the cleaning since there was a direct violation of the lease by the tenants before us. Because the cleaning wasn't done, we felt that it was our right to move.

Since moving, we have received an invoice every two months saying we owe for those months. — Mr. S.E.V.

A. If I were a lawyer I would not take your case if a Playboy bunny came with the retainer.

How did you know the management didn't clean the apartment? The fact it had been airing out suggests that an effort was made along these lines.

It seems to me you're really reaching in trying to use this ancient cat scent (if that's what it was) as a form of "constructive eviction" on the part of the landlord.

Good luck, but, at the same time, good grief!

Dear Mr. Campbell: My husband and I live owned a small (10 unit) "strip" shopping center for several

About real estate

Our tenants are very disturbed about what is happening to the neighborhood and the type of people it now attracts. The police say they can't do anything.

Isn't there anything anyone can do about this sort of thing? — Mrs. T. F.

A. This is a battle that is being fought in almost every metropolitan area in the country. The First Amendment keeps running head-long into public indignation. If any community has come up with an answer, I haven't heard of it.

All I can suggest is that you keep putting pressure on city hall for some sort of solution.

Factory-built housing just like real thing — permanent

With our changing technology, there is a new element on the residential construction scene — factory-built housing. Many builders are reluctant to admit to buyers that the houses were built in factories, rather than by carpenters at the site. Many factory-built housing is manufactured by very reputable companies and is as good as a conventional house in the same price range. The limitations are usually the design and the high degree of standardization.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My husband and I are planning to buy a new house. We chose a perfect house in a small suburban subdivision. We were about to sign an agreement of sale when our neighbor informed us that the houses were not built on the site, but had been delivered to the subdivision already completed about a month ago.

Bernard Meltzer

We had no way of telling this when we looked at it. Does this mean the house is not worth what they are asking for it?—Are we duped?

The house you are looking at is what is known as a modular house. Modular housing is constructed in a factory and then delivered in a completed state to your site.

At the site, it is bolted to a foundation and connected to the water and sewer services. Modular housing developments are becoming more and more popular as construction costs increase.

The cost is generally similar to conventional construction because the transportation expenses are so high. Many people confuse modular homes with mobile homes. This is not the case. You are really purchasing a permanent structure. I would not worry. If you like the house, buy it.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We have a refrigerator that has a provision for installing an ice-maker. We found ice-makers for sale at a local appliance store this month.

Do we need special plumbing to install an ice maker?—Tell us.

The only thing you need is a very small copper water line connected to any one of your water pipes. A plumber can do this easily. You may want to tackle it as a do-it-yourself project.

It does not involve any soldering, but uses something known as a compression fitting. This is installed by drilling a small hole in your existing water line and then attaching a fitting to it.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am in the process of selling my house and have signed a four-month exclusive listing agreement with a real estate broker. I did this three weeks ago.

Yesterday my brother-in-law telephoned and said he has a friend who would like to buy my house. I told him I would sell it for 6 per cent less than the asking price, since I would not have to pay a commission to my brother-in-law.

Today I called the real estate broker and told him he doesn't have to worry about selling the house, since I already sold it. The broker was angry and said that no matter who sold the house I will have to pay him a commission.

Is he telling the truth?—Nervous.

If you check your listing agreement, you will no doubt find that he has an exclusive right to sell your property for a four-month period. Therefore, no matter who brings you a buyer, you must pay the real estate broker a commission.

Most real estate brokers will not work without such an arrangement because it is the only protection they have for spending time and money in selling your property.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have a brick house that was built in 1938. About six years ago I had a cement man do some paring work on the front of the house. This was because the original paring work had deteriorated.

I now find that the new work is lighter than the old which surrounds it. I find the change in color to be objectionable. Can you advise how I can darken the new cement work so that it will blend in with the old?—Fastidious.

I am afraid that time is the only element that will make the two match. Even then it is possible that the wall will never look perfect. The only practical solution is to paint the house with a similar shade. This will provide a uniform color and will also keep you from having to paint as often.

However, once you paint the wall, you no longer have a maintenance-free exterior.

Moving—it's a big deal

To move or not to move — now there is a question.

"Especially so for retirees," said Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston.

"Although most of us move once — perhaps several times — during our working years, a relocation after retirement is totally different. Such a major decision must be carefully weighed," Goss said.

THOSE WHO PLAN on selling their home and leaving the community particularly face a giant step — and this takes some serious homework.

Goss said he believes that any retiree considering a major move should first make a soul-searching list of possible advantages and disadvantages.

He offered a checklist of questions:

- Am I generally satisfied with the old home and community?
- If so, would it be more advisable to "get out of the rut" and seek new friends, activities and new insights?

• Is the old homestead getting too big for an empty-nester family since the children have married and live elsewhere?

• Will my reduced level of living stretch farther — with less maintenance and upkeep in a smaller home?

• Will there be more social life in a new location — a change of scenery?

• Will I find better health care in another area — nearer my new home?

• Can I adjust to a new situation and possible disappointments? If so, would this not prove to be a new beginning instead of elongating the present life style?

"Climate is a big consideration. Retirees often say they have been living in one that is not to their best interests simply because of job requirements. Retirement gives the opportunity of choosing the part of the country best suited to one's needs and preferences.

"Moving is a very private matter — and must be tailored to the individual's personal tastes and goals," Goss said.

Don't forget those gutters

As a conscientious homeowner you've probably made a mental list of maintenance projects to work on this summer. Did you include painting the gutters and rainspouts?

Add them to your list if it's been a few years since they were last painted. Good paint maintenance can prevent the corrosion caused by weather and accumulated leaves.

Begin by clearing the gutters of leaves and debris. Wash the exterior surface of previously painted gutters and downspouts with a household detergent to remove any surface dirt. Be sure to rinse thoroughly. Use a wire brush to remove loose paint, rust or hardened dirt.

Don't start painting until you've checked for leaks. Repair all cracks, splits and holes you find with a high quality patching compound or by soldering.

Now you are ready to start painting. Apply a generous coat of gutter paint (asphaltum type) to the inside of the gutter for waterproofing, and spot prime the outsides of gutters and downspouts where bare metal is exposed. Any exterior metal primer can be used on aluminum. For galvanized metal, use a special primer designed for galvanized surfaces. When the prime coat is dry, finish the job with a good exterior paint or enamel on the outer surface.

Here's how to prepare swimming pool for painting

Wise owners of swimming pools know that with the investment in a pool comes necessary maintenance chores, including painting his pool.

A good layer of paint can keep a concrete pool from cracking or chipping, and make cleaning the pool easier.

Repainting a pool is a major undertaking, but well worth the effort. If you use a high quality paint and keep the water at the correct chemical balance you will probably not have to repaint for several years. However, if it is not kept clean, especially if the water is not kept at the correct chemical balance, you may find it necessary to repaint often.

Good surface preparation is the key to this painting project. The condition of the old paint will determine how much preparation is necessary. If it is in good condition, scrubbing with a detergent to remove all dirt, algae and foreign matter should be sufficient.

PATCHES OF MILDEW are often found on the walls and floor of a pool, and must be destroyed before painting. The simplest way to rid your pool of mildew is to scrub with a commercial cleaner, preferably one recommended by your pool dealer. If you are unable to find a suitable commercial cleaner or would prefer a more economical method, you can prepare your own cleaning solution.

Before you begin, remember to be cautious; mixing chemicals is dangerous unless you know exactly what you are mixing and what reactions to expect. The solution recommended by the National Paint and Coatings Assn. is made of one quart of household bleach combined with three quarts of warm water.

Scrub the pool with this solution and then rinse with water. Be sure to wear rubber gloves when working with the solution, which can irritate the skin. People with allergies or sensitive skin are advised to take precautions against any skin contact with the solution. One final, but important warning: never mix household bleach and ammonia or a cleaner containing ammonia. The combination can give off vapors which are harmful when inhaled.

Cracked, peeling or powdery surfaces require more extensive preparation. All cracks and holes will have to be filled. Caulking compounds are best for cracks and small holes. Large holes and breaks require a cement mixture, grout or a non-shrinking patching mixture.

IT IS BEST to remove all of the old paint when it is in poor condition. A scraper or power sander is fine for spot jobs, but sandblasting is the most complete method. After sanding or sandblasting a concrete pool, it must be cleaned with an acid wash. New patching must always have an acid wash. You can buy the prepared acid solution at hardware or pool stores. Ask for a 10 per cent muriatic solution.

Pour the acid solution onto the concrete and brush the surface with long handled brushes until the bubbling stops. Protect yourself by wearing rubber boots, rubber gloves, and goggles when working with the acid. Be sure the acid wash is followed with an alkaline wash to neutralize the acid and then rinsed with water. Allow the pool to dry before you paint.

Consult your supply dealer when buying paints and coatings for your pool. Frequently used pool coatings include rubber based solvent thinned enamels, catalyzed epoxy solvent thinned enamels and solution vinyl systems. They are all marketed as "swimming pool" paints.

hit record in July

Americans bought a record 180,000 foreign cars in July to push imports up to nearly one of every five new car sales during the month, figures released Wednesday by the major domestic and foreign auto companies showed. While imported car sales climbed 41 per cent over a year ago, the four domestic automakers reported their sales of 731,033 cars were up 3.2 per cent on a daily sales rate from 735,780 cars last year and the third highest ever for the month.

Growth in U.S. economy predicted

The U.S. economy will continue to grow during the next 12 months and unemployment will drop, but inflation could be a problem, an authoritative report predicted Wednesday. The organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, the economic watchdog for industrialized countries, said in its annual report on the U.S. economy that the Carter administration's new policies have improved the economy considerably. "The economic outlook has considerably improved over the last six months, partly due to a spontaneous strengthening of demand but also as a result of new policy measures," OECD economists said. "With the policies now in place, a satisfactory rate of growth over the coming 12 months, with a fall in unemployment, seems secured. The expansion could be rather stronger than envisaged, particularly over the next two quarters, because of stronger stock-building."

Chicago-London fare cut asked

Trans World Airlines said Wednesday it will cut its fares between Chicago and London to $353 round trip if both the British and United States governments approve the reduction. The proposed fare is $432 less than the low-season Apex fare. The new proposed fare is dubbed "Super-Apex." TWA said it would ask the Civil Aeronautics Board for a Sept. 26 effective date. "Super-Apex" will require a minimum stay of 22 days until Oct. 1, when the minimum will be reduced to 14 days. The length of validity of the ticket is 45 days. Reservations and full payment must be made 45 days before the date of departure.

Chrysler says air law will cost

Detroit automakers said Wednesday they are relieved Congress has nearly completed work on a new clean air law, but Chrysler Corp. warned the car buyer will pay for standards it says will waste fuel and go beyond health needs. The Chrysler warning was in sharp contrast to a General Motors statement that commended House and Senate conferees for completing work on a clean air law that will prevent massive auto plant shutdowns. There was no immediate comment from the Ford Motor Co. Chrysler said the proposed measure goes "far beyond established need."

Economy growing domestically but trade deficit hurts us abroad

by HARRY B. ELLIS

The mighty U.S. economy, shaking off the last vestiges of recession, seems disinclined to do anything by half measures, either good or bad.

Here at home the economy is growing briskly — a spanking 6.9 per cent annual pace in the first half of the year — while overseas the dollar paradoxically weakens and the U.S. piles up its worst trade deficit in history.

By contrast, Japan and West Germany — the nonCommunist world's other giants — are having trouble meeting their growth targets, but are amassing huge trade surpluses while their currencies grow stronger.

Confusing signals? On the surface, yes. But a pattern emerges, giving some insight into what may happen the rest of this year and into 1978.

TWO FUNDAMENTAL economic problems — inflation and unemployment — show little sign of early improvement, either in the United States or abroad.

In the U.S. inflation hovers around 6 per cent, broadly measured, and the jobless rate at last count stood at 7.1 per cent — second only to Canada's 8 per cent in the nonCommunist industrial world.

On the jobless front, the U.S. is doing better than those figures indicate. The American labor force — the total of people at work or looking for jobs — is growing so rapidly that more than 6 million new jobs have been added to the economy since the low point of recession in May, 1975.

Given the upsurge in the number of job-seeking Americans, the economy must grow 4 per cent yearly simply to absorb newcomers. Over the last two years the economy on average has done better than that, putting newcomers to work and shrinking the jobless tolls from 8.9 per cent in May, 1975, to 7.1 per cent in June, 1977.

IF THE ECONOMY is doing relatively so well, why does the dollar weaken and why does the trade deficit threaten to reach $25 billion this year, nearly four times the previous record shortfall of $6.4 billion in 1972?

To take the last point first, America's insatiable appetite for foreign oil — more than $40 billion worth this year — makes it impossible for U.S. exports of farm and manufactured goods to erase the red ink.

Indeed, the more the U.S. economy prospers — and American factories now operate at 83.5 per cent capacity, up from 80 per cent in January — the more oil the nation needs. All experts agree that, for some time to come, petroleum imports will continue to grow.

Also, because the U.S. snapped out of recession faster than other nations, Americans are able to buy more foreign goods, while nations still struggling with recession can afford fewer U.S. products.

SO THE TRADE deficit is explainable. But when the red ink becomes an ocean, as it now is, currency speculators — fearing future damage to the U.S. economy — begin to move out of dollars into stronger currencies, like those of Japan, West Germany, and Switzerland.

The trend quickens, feeding on itself, to the point that U.S. officials debate how much the Federal Reserve System should intervene — that is, buy and sell foreign currencies in an effort to keep the dollar stable.

If the dollar weakens too much, the oil-exporting nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, who peg their oil prices to the dollar, might decide to boost the cost of oil.

Christian Science Monitor News Service

Class in capitalism for workers

NEW YORK — OK, gang, it's multiple-choice time again as we try to discover how much you know about the really big money in Wall Street.

We hear a lot about the domination of institutional investors in the stock market, and in fact last year their net demand for stocks reached $10 billion. Of that amount, how much would you say was contributed by mutual funds?

(a) $9.3 billion; (b) $7.2 billion; (c) $4.9 billion; (d) $1.8 billion; (e) 0.

(e) That's right — not a penny. Indeed, mutual funds had such a problem with redemptions (more shares being turned in for cash than being sold) that they were net sellers in the market in 1976, to the tune of $2.6 billion.

Who, then, did most of this heavy institutional buying?

Louis Rukeyser

(a) Dummy corporations representing a few rich families; (b) life insurance companies; (c) private pension funds; (d) property and casualty insurance funds; (e) state and local government retirement funds.

(c) And by a mile; noninsured private pension funds were responsible last year for almost three quarters

($7.2 billion) of the net institutional demand for equities. Moreover, there's nothing new about this: private pension funds were the overwhelmingly biggest institutional investors in 1960, 1965, 1970 and 1975, too. (Incidentally, except for (a) — which I threw in for the conspiracy theorists — I gave you no clinkers: these are the real biggies. In 1976 their net investments totaled $2.8 billion for state and local retirement, $2 billion for life insurance and $0.6 billion for property and casualty insurance.)

Pension funds, as noted, have long been the largest single source of demand for common stocks — and have, in fact, been accounting for a rising share of net institutional purchases.

But the fellows who are paid lofty salaries to run these funds don't put all their eggs into equities. At the end of 1976, the market value of their common stock holdings was $108 billion, according to the Securities and Exchange Commission. What portion of their total assets was this?

(a) 91 per cent; (b) 78 per cent; (c) 62 per cent; (d) 37 per cent; (e) 18 per cent.

(c) Even with the erratic performance of the stock markets over the last decade, most pension fund managers remain convinced that better times lie ahead — and are backing that judgment with more than $3 of ever $5 they handle.

Illegal alien problem too widespread to solve?

WASHINGTON — There are 4 million illegal aliens in the United States. There are 8 million illegal aliens in the United States.

There are 12 million illegal aliens in the United States.

These are the estimates of White House officials trying to evolve a policy to deal with illegal immigration. You can pick any one of them, or insert your own number, and you will be — they confess — as accurate as they are.

THE ONE sure thing about what may be the toughest socio-economic problem facing the nation is that illegal immigration, about 60 per cent of it from Mexico, is enormous and growing.

Former President Ford struggled with the problem, but gave up.

Now, it's President Carter's turn to grapple with this exceedingly complex issue.

At best, a rather elaborate-sounding Carter package will go down the middle with some moderate proposals. There will be recommendations for better enforcement at the border, rather than massive deportations. There also will be suggestions for streamlining the government bureaucracy dealing with immigration.

THE REALITY of the illegal aliens problem is that the United States has pretended in recent years to be running a very strict immigration system, limiting new arrivals, mostly relatives of citizens, to about 400,000 annually.

Hobart Rowen

Actually, it has been wide-open. It's fairly easy to get in illegally, and once in, to escape detection. Illegals who do get caught — especially Mexicans — usually turn right around and come back in again.

Last year, apprehensions were twice the number of legal admissions — 876,000. And the experts figure that for every one caught, almost three have come into the country illegally. That would make last year's total alone 2.5 million.

Despite intense study, Carter's team hasn't come up with definitive answers. No one is sure how many jobs illegal aliens actually displace. The impact on welfare and related programs may be substantial, but probably has been exaggerated.

The Carter effort will be to walk a tightrope, limiting the number of illegals without a massive border patrol or unsettling the Mexican government, which considers access to U.S. jobs a sort of safety valve for its own overburdened economy. But the package will probably look unsatisfactory to those emotionally concerned with the issue.

Stock slump continues, dips 1.39

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, disappointed by General Motors and jolted by rising interest rates, fell to an 18-month low Wednesday despite late bargain hunting. Trading was active.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average, down eight points in the first two hours of trading, finished with a loss of only 1.39 points to 886.00. It was the lowest closing since it finished at 877.83 on Jan. 5, 1976. The Dow has fallen 118.65 points for the year.

General Motors, a Dow average component which lost 1 1/4 Tuesday, dropped another 1 to 67 1/2 as the most active New York stock exchange issue. It was down 1/2 in composite trading. The No. 1 automaker disappointed speculators by leaving its dividend at 85 cents a share, despite sharply higher second-quarter earnings.

MORGAN GUARANTY triggered heavy selling when it raised its prime lending rate a quarter point to 6 3/4 per cent. The move was sparked by the Federal Reserve Board's recent credit tightening to counter a $5 billion surge in the nation's weekly money supply.

Money managers believe the Fed will raise the discount rate it charges member banks for short-term loans, forcing all rates higher.

Analysts noted that investors have failed to respond to a government report Tuesday that factory orders rose 0.4 per cent in June, paced by a strong 1.7 per cent rise in non-durable goods orders. Most investors believe the economy is in the process of slowing down from a strong first half.

Big Board volume totaled 21,170,000

Blackwood expensive bid

The slammaniac usually gets that mania as a result of an overdose of Blackwood. South is entitled to think about a slam after his partner who has opened the bidding jumps him from one to three spades. He also has a way to invite the slam. He can bid four clubs. This bid of an extrasuit after spades have been raised enthusiastically is a slam try below game which is all that South's cards warrant. That quiet bid doesn't appeal to our slammaniac. His partner has opened the bidding and jumped. Obviously it is time to trot out Blackwood. He bids four notrump. Should his partner show one ace he wouldn't know what to do, but his partner shows two aces. It seems appropriate to ask for kings. North shows two of those also, but our bidder decides to settle for six since two kings are still missing. He receives a favorable trump lead which gives him time to set up dummy's long diamonds, but he still can't score 12 tricks. He has to lose a diamond to set the suit up and two discards aren't enough to take care of all his losers.

Ask Andy

Grand Canyon has 1.2 million acres reserved

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Michael Lowell, 14, of Warwick, R.I., for his question:

HOW BIG IS THE GRAND CANYON?

Although the Grand Canyon of the Colorado River isn't too large, on display is just about every type of terrain you can imagine. Included is the full 250-mile length of the river, and along the way you'll find desert country, cliffs, hills, ridges, valleys, rocks and mountains. Highest points on the north rim are about 9,000 feet above sea level.

Something like 1.2 million acres are included in the Grand Canyon National Park. The river rushes along about 1,800 feet above sea level.

More than 200 different kinds of birds live in the park. In addition, living there are more than 100 other animals, including mountain lions, beavers, big-horn sheep, deer, porcupines, antelopes and snakes. Just to the north, in the Kaibab National Forest, you'll find the Kaibab squirrel. It's the only place in the world where he lives.

The Grand Canyon, scientists tell us, was formed over millions of years. The cutting force of the river has carved out a deep and wide slash on the northwestern Arizona landscape.

The bottom layer of rock on the floor of the canyon is black in color and called Archean. The second layer, called Algonkian, is brilliant red. Next comes the Tapeats sandstone layer which is lavender-brown. The fourth is the Devonian layer which is made up of small deposits of lavender rock. The thick Redwall layer comes next, with 800 feet of red sandstone above that called the Supai formation.

But you're still not at the top. Above the Supai formation is the Hermit shale, another layer of red. Next comes the Coconino sandstone layer, 350 feet of pale sand-colored stone. At the top is a layer of cream and gray Kaibab limestone.

Pueblo Indians once lived in the Grand Canyon area. Today about 200 Havasupai Indians live as farmers in one remote section called Havasu Canyon. And, of course, thousands of tourists visit annually.

Grand Canyon National Park was established in 1919. In 1974, Congress passed a bill that almost doubled the size of the original park. Added was Grand Canyon National Monument and Marble Canyon National Monument as well as sections of Glen Canyon National Recreational Area, Kaibab National Forest and the Lake Mead Recreation Area.

Andy sends the book 200 Illustrated Science Experiments to Christine Chrusicki, 8, of Utica, N.Y., for her question:

WHAT IS ORTHODONTICS?

Orthodontics is that selected area of dentistry concerned with the detection, study, correction and prevention of irregularities in the position of teeth. The special dentist who performs orthodontic diagnosis and treatments is called an orthodontist. These days, especially, more and more children are being given a chance to get to know orthodontists. Teeth may be crooked and irregular because of heredity, early loss of first teeth or dietary disorders. Too often children cannot outgrow these irregularities, and orthodontists with braces are just the people who can solve the problems. Braces move the teeth by applying gentle pressure on them.

Keep your cool while cooking

Keep your cool while entertaining this summer. Cook out as well as eat out. These imaginative party ideas will serve a dozen guests easily and deliciously without turning on the oven. As part of a beautiful buffet setting, offer an assortment of imported Danish cheese and fresh fruits.

OUTDOOR GRILLED TURKEY

About one hour before cooking, start your fire. A large turkey will require more charcoal briquets than smaller meats.

While the briquets burn down, remove giblets of fresh or thawed turkey, rinse, tie legs together and secure wings to body. Rub the turkey with oil and sprinkle the outside and cavities with salt, pepper and flavor enhancer. Do not stuff turkey. Arrange hot briquets around a drip pan centered in fire bed. Place bird, breast side up, on center of greased cooking grill directly above drip pan. Roast covered for 13 to 15 minutes per pound.

Cover barbecue with lid or a foil cover to maintain a roasting temperature of 325 degrees. To construct a cover, you will need the wire from six or seven coat hangers and a pair of pliers. Form the wire into a firm circle or rectangle to fit the grill. Attach half circles of wire to this base as if spokes of an umbrella. Completely cover the wire dome with heavy duty aluminum foil, leaving a small opening on top for draft.

To spit roast a small turkey (6 to 12 pounds), insert spit rod under legs and through the center of the bird. Tighten spit forks at both ends and test for balance, re-adjusting until satisfactory. Roast about 30 minutes per pound.

Add briquets to the fire every hour to keep temperature constant. Brush the bird with oil or melted butter during the cooking. After grilling, allow turkey to rest for about 30 minutes before serving.

APPROXIMATE TIMETABLE FOR GRILLED TURKEY

Ready to Cook Weight	Covered Grill Cooking Time	Spit Roasting Cooking Time
6 to 8 pounds	1½ to 2 hours	3 to 3½ hours
8 to 10 pounds	2 to 2½ hours	3¼ to 4 hours
10 to 12 pounds	2½ to 3 hours	4 to 5 hours
12 to 16 pounds	3 to 4 hours	—
16 to 20 pounds	4 to 4½ hours	—

Internal temperature should be 180 to 185 degrees. Use meat thermometer inserted into thickest part of thigh, not touching bone.

VEGETABLE KABOBS

- 24 (1 inch) slices yellow summer squash (about 3/8-inch squash)
- 24 Cherry tomatoes
- 24 Green pepper chunks (about 3 medium peppers)
- 12 mushroom caps, cut in half
- * Herb Butter Baste

On each of 12 8-inch skewers, alternate 2 slices summer squash, 2 cherry tomatoes, 2 chunks green pepper and 2 mushroom caps. Place on grill over medium hot coals. Baste frequently with Herb Butter and cook, turning once, 10 to 15 minutes until vegetables are soft. Serves 12.

* To make Herb Butter Baste: In a bowl mix together ½ cup melted butter, ¼ cup vegetable oil, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon flavor enhancer, ½ teaspoon parsley flakes and ½ teaspoon thyme leaves.

GRILLED TURKEY DRUMSTICKS

- 1 cup brown sugar
- ½ cup vegetable oil
- ½ cup catsup
- ½ cup white vinegar
- ⅓ cup pineapple juice
- 5 tablespoons minced onion
- 5 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon flavor enhancer
- 12 turkey drumsticks

In a bowl, mix together brown sugar, vegetable oil, catsup, vinegar, pineapple juice, onion, soy sauce and flavor enhancer. Place drumsticks in a large plastic bag. Cover with sauce and marinate 2 to 3 hours at room temperature or overnight in refrigerator. Drain turkey drumsticks and cook on grill over medium hot coals, 1 to 1¼ hours or until done. Baste often with sauce. Serves 12.

DANISH BLUE CHEESE SUMMER SALAD

- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- ½ cup mayonnaise
- ¼ cup minced parsley
- 2 tablespoons minced green onion
- 2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon tarragon
- 1 cup crumbled blue cheese
- * Fresh Vegetable Basket

In a bowl mix together sour cream, mayonnaise, parsley, green onion, lemon juice and tarragon. Stir in crumbled blue cheese. Serve with fresh vegetable dippers. Serves 12.

Fiber fad affecting bread sales

The big food fiber fad is affecting whole grain bread sales, according to the consumer panel of a shelter magazine here.

Half the 1,000 panel members contacted by "Better Homes and Gardens." Nearly 84 per cent of the 92 per cent who responded said they were aware of recent discussions about the value of food fiber. Nearly 67 per cent said they had begun eating more high fiber foods.

More than 75 per cent said they had increased their consumption of whole grain breads, 68 per cent were eating more fresh fruit, 63 per cent were eating more whole grain cereals, but only 58.5 per cent were eating more fresh vegetables. (UPI).

Fresh fruit and vegetable enthusiasts will be in luck this month, as summer produce continues to be plentiful in local supermarkets, The Herald price survey found.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, harvests of fresh vegetables are near their summer peak, with production some 3 per cent over that of last year. This year's corn is at a record high, and green beans, lettuce and cabbage also are in abundance.

As for fruits, the USDA reports that the California grape and nectarine crops will be at record levels. Peaches and plums also are in good supply, and according to the Illinois Cooperative Extension Service, watermelons should be at their lowest price and best quality now.

EGGPLANT, cantaloupe and honeydews are in their peak season in August, and beans, beets, cucumbers, lemons, okra and tomatoes also should be readily available.

Although in seasonal decline, pork production is greater than that of the past two months and averages 9 per cent above the August average for the past three years. The average price of pork center cut chops at the end of July was 25 cents less than that of the previous month.

Although milk production is declining last year.

ing seasonally, some of this month's best buys may be at the dairy case. Plentiful supplies of milk and other dairy products currently are exceeding consumer demand.

There is good news for coffee drinkers, too, as Folger's the nation's second largest roaster, cut its wholesale prices by 20 cents a pound for vacuum-packed coffee and 2 cents an ounce for its instant coffee. Folger's cut its prices after imported green coffee prices declined because of consumer resistance. During the first five months of 1977, U.S. retail coffee sales were 20 per cent lower than the comparable period in 1976.

ACCORDING TO A USDA report, overall food prices are expected to level off late this year and early next year. Prices are expected to continue rising this summer before the record corn crop and near-record wheat crop cause them to level off.

The report predicted retail food prices in 1977 will average about 6 per cent greater than those of 1976, about double last year's food inflation rate, but below rates of the previous three years. More than half of this year's higher rate is attributed to increased prices for coffee and fish. Retail prices produced on U.S. farms may average only 3 per cent above those of 1976.

Electricity costs rising? Tips for cutting the bill

During hot summer months, thoughts of preparing meals are often far from the family chef's mind. But when it's necessary to be in the kitchen, Commonwealth Edison has a few points to help you cook efficiently and economically.

Frozen foods: Whether you plan to use the oven, broiler or range, thaw frozen foods in the refrigerator compartment before using.

Pots and pans: Use the correct-sized pans for the surface element: the bottom of the pan should cover the element, never extending more than an inch beyond the outer ring. And remember, tight-fitting lids on pots and pans allow less heat to escape.

Ovens: Oven cooking can be less expensive than cooking on top of the range. Surface units stay on the whole time they're in use, whereas an electric oven is on for only part of each hour it's used. The rest of the time it "coasts" because its insulation holds heat in. And if you bake in glass or ceramic, lower the oven setting 25 degrees. These materials transfer heat better than metal.

If you do use your oven, plan to get the most mileage from it by baking two batches of the same meal at once, freezing one for later use. Or if you cook an entire meal in one oven and each dish calls for a slightly different temperature, pick the average temperature to cook all of them. Just remove each as it's done.

Refrigerators: Refrigerators or freezers will use less energy if located away from heating equipment and direct sun. You also can improve the unit's efficiency by defrosting your freezer when frost is about one-quarter inch thick. Frost only makes your appliance work harder to maintain the same temperature.

During vacation, a refrigerator may be left fairly empty and set at a warmer temperature. During long periods of unuse, you even can clean and shut off the unit altogether.

Small appliances: Electric grills, skillets, fondues, slow-cookers, toasters, popcorn poppers and the like often use less electricity than your range for specialized jobs, and can be economical ways to prepare small meals.

With these tips in mind when you're in the kitchen this summer, time spent cooking will be easier, cooler and more effective.

Summer food suggestions

Take a foam chest or an insulated one in the back of your car when you go shopping on hot days. It's easy to put the perishable foods into the chest to keep cold until you reach home.

When gardens yield fresh vegetables, speed them to the table with quick cooking and simple seasonings. Here are some herb butters that make good combos: savory with snap beans and succotash; basil with peas or tomatoes; oregano with zucchini or tomatoes; mint with peas and carrots; paprika, thyme or marjoram with corn.

Both ovens used to bake fruit pie

One of the most exciting summer ideas for using your microwave oven is making fresh fruit pies by using a combination of conventional and micro cookery. The results are superb. The bonus of greatly reducing time spent heating up your kitchen is enough incentive to treat your family with pie anytime.

Eileen Kelly

Let's learn to micro-cook

The method is simple. Use a 9-inch glass pie dish. Prepare your favorite two-crust fresh fruit pie. Put it in your microwave oven for approximately seven to eight minutes on high. I elevate the pie dish on a glass custard cut to insure thorough cooking of the filling. The filling will be juicy and start to bubble through the slits in the top crust when the time is up.

Now transfer the pie to your conventional oven, which you have preheated to 450 degrees. Bake for 10 to 15 minutes or until the pie is delicately browned to your satisfaction. I might add that should you be cooking a larger pie, your times would be slightly increased. I usually start to preheat my conventional oven a few minutes before I put the pie in the microwave oven, and that's enough time for it to be properly heated for the last part of the baking.

In hopes that the price of blueberries comes down or that you can go berry picking, I offer you my favorite recipe for fresh blueberry pie:

1 cup sugar
3 1/2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1 quart unsweetened fresh blueberries
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Pastry for a 2-crust 9-inch pie
Combine sugar, tapioca, salt, spices and lemon rind. Mix this combination with the lemon juice and blueberries. Turn into a pastry-lined 9-inch glass pie plate. Dot with butter or margarine. Top with crust. Bake 7 to 8 minutes in microwave on high. Continue baking in a 450-degree oven for 10 to 15 minutes or until browned.

LOVE TO catch fish but hate to eat it? Diane Folkers' popular beer batter obliterates that "fishy" taste.

Beer batter the solution to this cook's fish story

There's something fishy about the story Diane Folkers of Arlington Heights tells about her favorite recipe. It seems that her whole family, including her husband John and children Susan, 13, John, 11, and Mary, 9, love to fish, but no one liked to eat the catch so they always gave it away.

Then a few years ago, while fishing in Michigan's upper peninsula, they learned about a beer batter for fish that completely obliterates the fishy taste. Diane tried it and it made an instant hit. From that time on, she has fried all the fish caught by the family, and even buys fish to use with this batter.

In addition to the basic batter ingredients, this recipe is seasoned with dry mustard and contains a cup of beer. "The malt in the beer must kill the fishy taste," Diane speculated. In any case, the batter coats the fish nicely, and when fried it puffs up and is crispy and light.

DIANE USES IT to coat pan fish such as perch, bass and blue gills, commercial fish and seafood. Left-over batter can be used to coat onion rings, which she fries after the fish. Not only is the fish popular with her family, but also with guests, and Diane has had innumerable requests for the recipe.

During the winter months, Diane likes au gratin or fried potatoes as an accompaniment, but she suggests serving a delicious potato salad during the summer months.

Cooked potatoes are coated first with Italian dressing, and then combined with onion, celery and a creamy mixture of Miracle Whip Salad Dressing and sour cream zipped up with dry mustard and celery seed. The potato salad has a creamy texture with an appealing tang.

Diane admits that many of her recipes are from family and friends. While the potato salad was from her sister-in-law, her favorite dessert was handed down from her mother.

"MOTHER ALWAYS made this when I was at home, and it was the third recipe I acquired as a bride," Diane said.

Pick your own fruit, vegetables

Even if you don't have a garden or a grove of fruit trees in your back yard, you can know the fun of harvesting your own fruits and vegetables. Many pick-your-own produce establishments are located just a short drive away from the Northwest suburbs.

A more extensive statewide list of pick-your-own produce growers is available from the Illinois Department of Agriculture, 300 W. Washington, Chicago, Ill.

The department urges consumers to contact the grower for harvest information before going to his farm. Harvest time for any particular fruit or vegetable may be short, and if supplies are limited, harvesting may be permitted by appointment only.

Some growers may provide or sell containers to customers who do not bring their own. Some growers may provide picnic areas, rest rooms and other conveniences for their customers.

Tomatoes offer nutrients

Plump, red, juicy and just plain delicious — that's fresh tomatoes. Tomatoes are globes of healthful eating, too, and growers are working to develop a more tasteful item.

SELECTION:

Choose tomatoes that are smooth, firm and plump. Make sure the tomato is a good weight for its size. But be sure to handle them gently since delicate tomatoes can bruise easily.

CARE:

Like any fresh produce, ripe tomatoes should be used soon after purchasing. Refrigerate, if necessary, but use them within three days once they have ripened. And never freeze raw tomatoes, only cooked ones.

Many tomatoes are sold when mature but underripe to prevent damage and make them available year round. To ripen at home, place tomatoes in a paper bag put them in a cool spot. Never put tomatoes in direct sunlight. Too much sun will cause tomatoes to soften without properly ripening

Fresh approach

SERVING:

Versatility is the fresh tomato's middle name. Baked, broiled, roasted, fried, stuffed or raw, tomatoes are wonderful eating. To peel, just dip a tomato on a slotted spoon in boiling water for a minute and slip off the skin.

Tomatoes add zest to soups, stews, sauces and gravies. Wedges tossed with greens — or by themselves seasoned with salt, pepper and basil — make refreshing salads. Tomatoes stuffed with tuna salad, cottage cheese and the like make delicious lunches. Saute slices and season for an interesting and quick side dish

Add chopped tomatoes to eggs before scrambling for a breakfast change-of-pace. Tomatoes stewed in a bit of water, salt, pepper and a dash of sugar are a great low-calorie side dish. Sliced tomato adds zing to sandwiches.

NUTRITION:

One medium size tomato — about 150 grams or 5 ounces — provides three-quarters the recommended dietary allowance of vitamin C, more than one-quarter the vitamin A and a good amount of iron. And there are only 35 calories in a medium-size tomato. (Researched with the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association)

Fish story has a happy ending

Prepared in a spring-form pan, it has a graham cracker crust and a filling made of lemon gelatin, cream cheese and whipped Milnot. High, light and fluffy, is called "Disappearing Cake" because it melts in your mouth. It is especially refreshing for the summer months.

Diane's interest in cooking is complemented by her interest in gardening. The Folkers' have a sizeable vegetable garden, and Diane freezes or cans the over-abundance of any crop. In addition to her culinary ability, she is an accomplished seamstress, and last year won the National Grand Champion Bicentennial Dress A Doll contest. She also is secretary of St. Cecilia's bowling league.

BEER BATTER FOR FISH

- 1 1/4 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 cup beer
- Vegetable oil

Stir together dry ingredients. Carefully combine egg and beer, stirring slowly into flour mixture. Dip fish into batter and fry in hot oil in electric skillet at 400 to 425 degrees about 3 minutes on each side, or until golden brown. Makes enough for 3 pounds of fish, cut in small pieces or fillets. Any freshly caught pan fish, commercial fish or seafood may be used. Leftover batter can be used to fry onion rings.

GAIL'S POTATO SALAD

- 7 Medium potatoes
- 1/3 cup bottled Italian dressing
- 1/4 cup chopped celery
- 1/3 cup chopped green onions
- 4 hard-boiled eggs
- 1 cup Miracle Whip Salad Dressing
- 1 cup sour cream
- 1 1/2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon celery seeds

Cook potatoes. Peel and slice while still warm, and pour dressing over them. Chill for 2 hours. Add celery and onions. Chop egg whites and add.

Push yolks through a strainer and mix with remaining ingredients. Fold all into salad and chill for 2 hours or longer. Serves 6 to 8. Garnish top with egg slices and paprika.

Melons need proper growing conditions

If your cantaloupes taste like cucumbers, they may be victims of improper growing conditions. Both foods are members of the same family, cucurbitaceae, but they don't cross-breed.

Melons need fertile, well-drained soil, says Jeanette Lowe, a staff horticulturist for a seedsman in Pennsylvania. They also need a fairly long growing season and warm sunshine during the ripening period to assure their sweetness to flavor. (UPI)

New square bottles

Square and rectangular plastic beverage bottles designed to fit most refrigerator door shelves are new from a manufacturer in Chicago.

They are marked with American standard and metric liquid measures, have screw-on caps and recessed hand-grips for easy pouring, can be boiled and frozen and are safe in the top rack of electric dishwashers. They come in one-, two- and three-quart sizes. (UPI)

DISAPPEARING CAKE

- Crust: —
- 28 to 30 graham crackers
- 1/4 pound butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon powdered sugar

Roll crackers with rolling pin until fine. Melt butter; add with powdered sugar to graham crackers. Mix and pat 2/3 of mixture into the bottom of a 10-inch spring-form pan.

- Filling: —
- 1 package (3 ounces) lemon gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 cup cold Milnot
- 8 ounces cream cheese, at room temperature
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla

Combine gelatin and boiling water. Cool. Blend cream cheese and sugar. Add cooled lemon gelatin and the vanilla.

In large mixing bowl, whip chilled Milnot until very stiff, about 10 minutes. At low-speed, add lemon mixture, mixing well.

Pour into crumb-lined pan. Cover top with foil and refrigerate 2 to 3 hours or overnight. When firm, sprinkle remaining crumbs on top. Remove sides of pan before serving. Cut into wedges. Serves 10 to 12.

This museum's worth seeing

I have a friend who is a native of Texas. We used to be neighbors, and we did the garage sale circuit and checked the curbs on Garbage Eve, much to our husbands' dismay. Oh, we also lived it up and visited the fanciest antiques shops in the area. If my friend saw something she liked she always said "Ah need that!" She needed more dishes, glassware, pottery, etc., like Carter needs more liver pills. (Perhaps we should revise that old saying in light of the present administration.) Like Carter needs more peanuts?

One day I replied to my friend, "Betty, you don't need anything!" To which she countered, "Well, Ah want it," and the "want" pronounced long "o." I don't need a secretary desk of chinoiserie design such as the one shown in the picture, but I surely do "want" one. This is a reproduction of an 18th century piece by the Baker Furniture Co. of Grand Rapids and Holland, Mich.

TWO WEEKS AGO I wrote about parlor organs and piano companies, and I could have included the Bush & Lane Piano Co. which ultimately became the Baker Furniture Co.'s Plant No. 1. Under the guidance of Hollis S. Baker, beginning in 1925, this firm became known and respected for making fine traditional furniture reproduced exactly from genuine antique pieces. The tradition of hand-craftsmanship continues, and if one can't afford a genuine 18th century secretary, chair or whatever, a well-made Baker substitute could become the antique of a couple of generations hence.

As a result of collecting thousands of antique models, a museum of furniture was established in Holland, Mich., which is open to the public May 1-Oct. 1. This place is well worth a visit.

Painted finishes such as chinoiserie (pronounced as nearly as I can in fractured French "She-nwaz-re," meaning anything decorated in the manner of the Chinese) are a trademark of the Baker Co. This is an ancient craft of painting and gilding; the finish designs build up dimensionally over lacquer. It is a 200-year-old Chinese technique which became very popular in 18th century Europe. Queen Anne, Chippendale and other styles of that period lent themselves very well to this sort of finish.

Grace Carolyn

Collecting

THE SECRETARY shown would be an American style "Bonnet top" with a slant front desk. The painting has been done entirely by hand with no assembly line or silk-screened shortcuts. At Baker, such a secretary or a large hutch may take up to 140 hours to hand-decorate.

The museum at Holland contains some 8000 items and the chair hall alone has 200 designs, arranged chronologically so that one can trace the chair's evolution.

Old Timers at Baker say it isn't easy to find young people who wish to put in the long years of apprenticeship necessary to become a master craftsman, or craftsman, in the furniture business. They do note that very recently they have noticed a slight upswing in interest. Teenagers who would have "dropped out" in the '60s to make sandals are looking for satisfying hand work which will also pay the bills.

Block parties

Some parts of the good life never change

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Everyone knows the good life in suburbia just ain't what it used to be.

Screened front porches and quiet downtown streets are vanishing rapidly, and sky-rocketing property taxes make it tough for commuters to leave their worries downtown.

But in several Northwest suburbs this summer, one old-fashioned institution hasn't changed — the neighborhood block party.

Some of the parties are gala, admission-only affairs, complete with live bands, expensive prizes and T-bone steaks. Others are little more than backyard barbecues featuring hot dogs, baseball and beer. Many have been held like clockwork for a decade or more; a few are scheduled on a sporadic, "When we feel like it" basis. But whatever their characteristics, block parties have survived as remnants of "the good old days" when neighbors were neighborly, vandalism was confined to Halloween and the front stoop was one of the busiest places around.

JACKIE CHAKOIAN, 300 North Dale St., Mount Prospect, remembers those days well. When she and her husband moved out from Chicago 23 years ago, summer block parties served as get-acquainted sessions with new neighbors... a chance to compare notes on baby formulas and crabgrass and make lasting friendships in the process.

"In the beginning, everyone was new and we needed each other's friendship desperately... most of our friends were still in Chicago," said Mrs. Chakoian. "Now the neighborhood has changed, but the cookouts and dinner parties are still great ways to keep everybody acquainted as new people move in."

Several streets and approximately 100 homes come under the scope of the sponsoring Northwest Meadows Homeowners' Association, said Mrs. Chakoian and members organize both the annual summer cookout and a dinner party in February. While a few activities have gone by the wayside over the years, "New members keep coming in... it's still a very friendly neighborhood, and the parties help," she added.

LIKE THE CHAKOIAN'S neighborhood, the 200 block of North Maple in Arlington Heights is an "established" area, with most of the homes at least 20 years old. Annual block parties have been held for close to 10 years, and "We get more people every year," said Evelyn Carlstedt, 202 N. Maple.

"The parties were started by two families who were new on the block — it was their way of meeting people, and we've kept it up ever since," she said. "We have a coffee around the first of May to organize, and practically the whole block shows up for the party in June."

The Maple Street party is low key. A decorated bike contest, a volleyball game in the street and a big potluck dinner with Coleman lanterns offer something for everyone.

"The theme hasn't changed — it's the same as it ever was. Of course, not everyone stays the whole time; we have one grandpa who comes for the dinner and leaves early," said Mrs. Carlstedt. "But for most of us, it's just a beautiful way of meeting people."

WHILE BLOCK parties are often particularly popular in older neighborhoods with a changing ratio of newcomers and established residents, the newer suburbs have their share of tradition, too.

A bicycle parade, Big Wheel race, softball games and free rides in neighbors' antique cars are featured events each Fourth of July at Beechwood Court East in Buffalo Grove. At least 50 families attend the shindig, which started eight years ago when the first of Beechwood Court's seven homes were constructed.

Like Maple Street's party, the Beechwood celebration is a simple one. Volunteers provide sacks of candy and paper plate badges for prizes; everyone brings his own meat for grilling; side dishes are set up on a long table in the street.

"The kids get so enthused, it's almost better than Christmas for them," said Susan Ulbrich, 7 Beechwood Ct. East. "In the beginning, we got together because most of us were the same age. We were in our first homes and had similar problems. Now, the party is just an offshoot of our close feelings... people here really care."

DESPITE THE camaraderie fostered by the summer get-togethers, neighborhood sack races and street games are the exception, not the norm. Arlington Heights officials report 35 block parties so far this year; Mount Prospect has had 18 so far and expects 40 or 50 by the end of the summer. But the total dwindles to four or five in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, and only two or three a summer in Des Plaines.

What accounts for the dearth of blocked-off streets? One woman pointed to the larger lot sizes of many new homes, a feature which allows neighbors to gather in backyards instead of the street. And city hall can hamper plans, too: in Des Plaines, a city regulation requires block party participants to carry 24-hour personal injury and property damage insurance — an expense that can run as high as $100.

Donna Fabiszak, 925 Greenview Ave., Des Plaines, agrees that the cost of insurance may be curtailing the number of block parties in her town. But there's more to it than that, she maintains.

"WE'VE BEEN IN this neighborhood for 15 years, and I've lived in Des Plaines all my life," said Mrs. Fabiszak. "I remember my parents going to block parties, but you just don't hear about them anymore. There's a lot more television-watching now than when I grew up, and I really think that's made a difference. You don't find many people sitting out on their porches and talking these days."

The Fabiszaks and several other neighbors did organize a block party two years ago. A vintage fire truck was rented from Chicago for the day. Food ranged from Italian sausage to ice cream and watermelon. The prizes for egg-throwing and hopsack races included tennis racquets and baseball mitts. Twenty of the block's 21 homes participated — but there wasn't enough interest to warrant a repeat.

"Let's face it, organizing a block party is a lot of work," said Mrs. Fabiszak. "People are so busy today, and there just doesn't seem to be as much time to do things like this."

But in spite of hectic schedules, sweltering weather and television's universal appeal, block parties are still around — to the great satisfaction of people like Mount Prospect's Shirley Hinebaugh, Jackie Chakoian's neighbor.

"With so many mothers working, this gives everybody a chance to catch up," she said. "Everyone gains, whether they're new to the neighborhood or not. You've got to keep in touch, and it's a great way to do it."

Early birds kibbutz with neighbors at last week's block party on South Dunton in Arlington Heights.

Lawrence E. Lamb

The doctor says

Some sports activity good for asthmatic

Our son is 6 years old and is starting school this year. I don't want to be a worried mother, but he has asthma and I'm afraid that he will be too active and cause an attack.

His father wants him to be active and hopes he will be a good athlete and is always trying to encourage him to get interested in sports. That would be fine if he didn't have asthma, but the fact is he does and he can't be an athlete and have that kind of problem. We have had several arguments about this. He claims David will outgrow it and I claim that if and when he does will be the right time for sports and not until then.

What do you suggest in this situation? Can he play with the other children? Will he be able to run and exercise? I want him to grow up as a normal boy but I don't want to do anything that will hurt him either.

This question often comes up when an asthmatic child starts to school. It is true that exercise can help set off an asthmatic attack. It is also true that some of the outstanding personalities in sport have been asthmatics. In the 1972 Olympics, five medal winners were asthmatics.

You may remember that Rick DeMont won a gold medal for swimming but was disqualified because he had taken medicine to prevent an asthmatic attack before the race. Many asthmatics participate in sports.

There are two approaches in preventing an asthma attack, the use of medicines that prevents it or limiting the physical activity to short bursts of exertion. It usually takes more than two or three minutes of vigorous exercise to induce the attack. This means that baseball is an ideal sport. Why? Because the duration of peak physical activity is limited. Even hitting a home run represents a short time to run the bases. By resting between exercise peaks the exercise won't be harmful.

Games of skill that involve short periods of exercise are fine. Your son could probably do calisthenics as long as he does them only for a short time and then rests before going on to the next set of exercises. That is a better way to exercise anyway. In this way he can do the exercises that he needs to develop a healthy body as he grows up.

LONG DISTANCE running or any sport that requires prolonged physical exertion is not a good choice for the asthmatic.

I am sending you The Health Letter 8-6, Asthma, to give you more details about this, including newer medicines that are being used to prevent asthmatic attacks, which can be taken before exertion. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

You should be sure that the teacher — particularly when your boy starts taking physical education classes — his doctor and both you and your husband understand the situation. You will need to function together as a team. Your boy deserves an opportunity to develop himself just as much as the boy who has no problem.

And I hope that he will outgrow it. About half of the children with asthma do not have it as adults. Only 5 to 10 per cent have severe asthma as adults and these are usually the ones who also have eczema as a child.

(Dr. Lamb will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.)

Smoke and soot call for special cleaning

Dear Roberta: Something went wrong with our furnace, and some of my white and light-colored knits are covered with soot and smoke. How do I get this off? — Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler

For washable items with soot or smoke damage, it is recommended that undiluted liquid detergent be rubbed into the stain until thick suds are formed. It has to be worked in until the outline of the stain is gone, then rinsed well. Sometimes it is necessary to repeat the operation. Nonwashable articles have to be sponged with a grease solvent until there is no trace of the stain. This type of stain is greasy, and if the knits are polyester or valuable I'd take them to a cleaner who is equipped to do it properly.

Dear Roberta: Reading about what kind of filters can be used for coffee brings me to ask about paper towels. Can they be used safely for draining bacon, wiping off meats and so on? — Jane Gordon Absolutely. The white paper towels which come in rolls emerge from steam-heated dryers as the last step and are about as sterile as any product you can buy.

Dear Roberta: Eating at our house these days isn't the problem it used to be — with various people coming in at different times. Life has been different since I got a crockery pot to cook with. I can put a meal on in the morning and know that it will be perfect whatever the time for serving. — Mrs. Raymond Van DeCar.

Dear Roberta: When using the oven for anything, I try to remember to also make croutons for salads, soups and so on. I use stale bread, melted margarine and whichever spice happens to suit my fancy. I even add bits of crushed garlic once in a while. — Andrea Dodge

(Mrs. Mathews welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Roberta Mathews in care of suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Nancy Diane Epsky-John T. Roehrig

The A. P. Green Chapel at the University of Missouri was the setting July 9 for the wedding of Nancy Diane Epsky and John Timothy Roehrig.

Nancy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Epsky, Arlington Heights, is a graduate of Hersey High, and both she and John received undergraduate degrees from the University of Illinois and graduate degrees from the University of Missouri where John is now working on his Ph. D.

Nancy is employed in the university's Department of Entomology, and John, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Roehrig, Peoria, is a teaching assistant at the university. After a honeymoon in Colorado, the newlyweds are residing in Columbia, home of the university.

For her marriage Nancy chose a gown of champagne satin with white eyelet bodice. An elbow-length veil and a nosegay of yellow roses, daisies and baby's breath completed her ensemble.

MARILYN EPSKY, Palatine, was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Kathy Croson, Columbia, and Sharon Becker, Chicago. They wore light blue gowns and carried daisies.

Phillip Hollingshead, Columbia, was best man, and Bill Croson and Carl Harnby, also of Columbia, were ushers.

A reception for 70 guests were held in the university's Memorial Union with a buffet supper for the immediate family following.

Michele McDermott —

Michael W. Henry

A wedding party of 14 plus six ushers took part in the June 25 marriage of Michele Helen McDermott and Michael Walfred Henry. Married in Visitation BVM Catholic Church in Illinois, Ill., 500 guests greeted the newlyweds at a reception held at Forum Thirty in Springfield, Ill.

Michele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. McDermott, Illinois, and Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Henry, Arlington Heights, are both graduates of Illinois State University. Michele, a '77 graduate, will be teaching second grade in Hermosa Beach, Calif., this fall, and Michael, a '76 graduate of Hersey High and a '76 graduate of ISU, is a safety engineer with Aetna Life Insurance Co. in Los Angeles.

For the 3:30 p.m. double ring service Michele chose Sut Klassen of Hacienda Heights, Calif., as her maid of honor, and her sisters, Deborah and Mary, along with Jo Ellen Moore, Illinois, Kathy Otto, Bloomington,

Widowed groups plan conference

Local chapters of THEOS, an international organization for widowed men and women, are holding a weekend conference August 19-21 at Sacred Heart Spiritual Growth Center, Rolling Meadows. Open to any widowed person, to clergy and to others in the helping professions, cost is $40 for a full weekend, $15 for Saturday only.

More information can be obtained by calling 696-6395. Reservations are due Aug. 10.

A GIFT OF LOVE from Beth Tikvah Sisterhood to the Hoffman Estates congregation is this Star of David with "The Seven Days of Creation" portrayed entirely in needlepoint. Sandy Brotman, left, Sisterhood president, and Delores Held, its designer, admire the 48 by 44-inch wall hanging which took seven women three years to create. So fine-stitched is the prayer book that one can read the words.

Weddings

Barbara Campeotto — Tom Neitzke

For the present, home will be wherever the groom's work takes them for July 8 newlyweds Barbara Campeotto and Thomas Neitzke.

Tom, son of the Roger Neitzkes of Mount Prospect, is a field engineer for Signode Steel Co. of Glenview, currently traveling in the Augusta, Ga., area. He is a graduate of Prospect High School and has both bachelor's and master's degrees in engineering from the University of Illinois.

He and Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Campeotto of Franklin Park, were married at 5:30 p.m. in St. Paul Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect.

Each had just one attendant, Carol Nordensien of Franklin Park as Barbara's maid of honor and Jerry Soenksen, Mundelein, as Tom's best man.

THE BRIDE CHOSE a blue and white flowered voile dress for the double ring wedding and carried white roses with baby's breath. Her attendant wore a pale green dress.

After the ceremony 85 guests were invited to dinner at Scanda House, Mount Prospect, after which the groom's parents hosted a open house.

Among the special guests were Tom's grandparents, the George Neitzkes and the Carl Tagges, all of Mount Prospect.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Neitzke

The bride is a graduate of East Leyden High School and worked for Great Lakes Carbon Corp., Chicago, before her marriage.

Don't count on two-timer

Dear Marian,
I really love my boyfriend a lot, but I don't know if he really likes me. Within the past two months he's gone out with at least four girls (that I know of) and he slept with one. Every time he comes back to me and says he's sorry and I forgive him. But I don't know if it's the right thing to do. Am I stupid to take him back or do you think he really loves me and just can't settle down?

I need to know right away because I'm going on vacation and can't stand wondering any longer.

Seventeen and mixed up

Dear Seventeen,

If you don't mind being one of his many girlfriends, keep seeing him, but don't fool yourself that he's going to be faithful and true. If he's not willing to give you the relationship you want, you'd be much better off looking for someone else.

Dear Marian,

I work at a fast-food place. This really cute guy comes in all the time. I really think that he comes to see me, but he never asks me out. I sometimes think that he does this because he is shy. How can I get him to ask me out? Help!

P.R.

Dear P.R.,

Have you tried talking to him? Obviously in a fast-food restaurant you can't start a long conversation, but you can let him know that you've noticed him. If he's interested he'll talk back, and if he really likes you, he'll eventually get up the courage to ask you out.

Dear Marian,

I have this problem. I work at a pool and I don't have a boyfriend. My boss is two years older than I am and very nice looking. I don't wish to go out with him but I am very possessive of him. I get jealous very easily and it's driving me crazy. I'm to the point of quitting my job which I can't afford to do. Help!

A.L.

Dear A.L.,

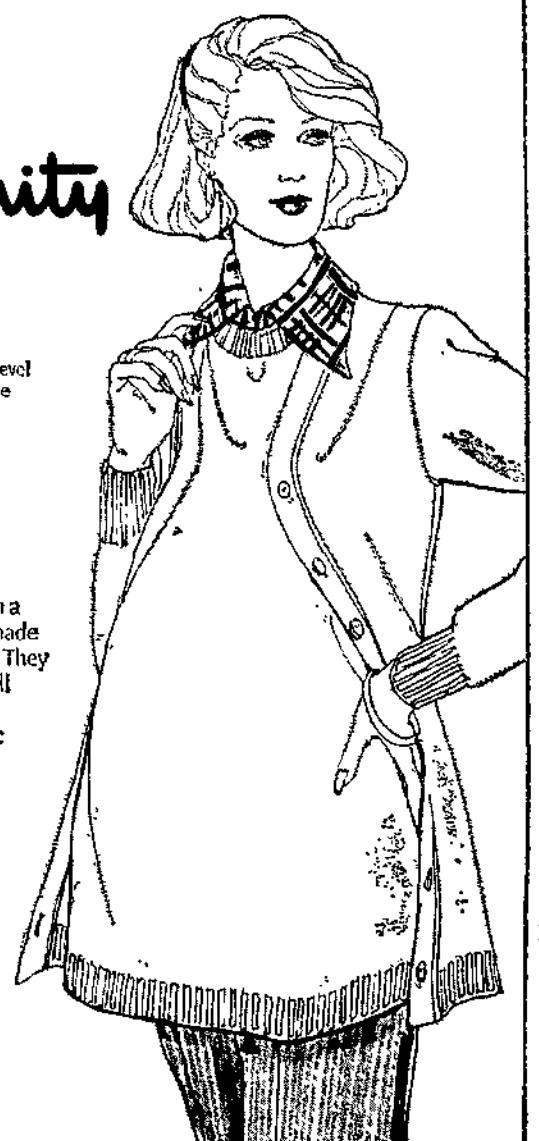

Are you absolutely positive you have no desire to go out with this guy? If so, are you also jealous of other people? For example, are you jealous when a female friend seems to like someone as well as she likes you? Or, if you have had a boyfriend in the past, were you jealous and suspicious every time he talked to another girl? Jealousy is a painful and difficult problem. It is emotionally agonizing for the person going through it, and can cause the destruction of a relationship. Jealousy is usually due to low self-esteem; a person feels that when someone they like also likes someone else, that other person is going to "steal" the friend's affection away. Actually, if someone really likes you, they aren't going to like you any less if they also happen to like someone else too. Try telling yourself this every time you start to feel jealous. If that doesn't help, perhaps you should consider getting counseling to help you overcome these feelings.

If you have a problem, a question or just want someone to listen, write to Marian in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 250, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Only first names or initials will be used in the column. Marian reserves the right to condense letters.

Michele McDermott —

Michael W. Henry

A wedding party of 14 plus six ushers took part in the June 25 marriage of Michele Helen McDermott and Michael Walfred Henry. Married in Visitation BVM Catholic Church in Illinois, Ill., 500 guests greeted the newlyweds at a reception held at Forum Thirty in Springfield, Ill.

Michele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. McDermott, Illinois, and Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Henry, Arlington Heights, are both graduates of Illinois State University. Michele, a '77 graduate, will be teaching second grade in Hermosa Beach, Calif., this fall, and Michael, a '76 graduate of Hersey High and a '76 graduate of ISU, is a safety engineer with Aetna Life Insurance Co. in Los Angeles.

For the 3:30 p.m. double ring service Michele chose Sut Klassen of Hacienda Heights, Calif., as her maid of honor, and her sisters, Deborah and Mary, along with Jo Ellen Moore, Illinois, Kathy Otto, Bloomington,

Widowed groups plan conference

Local chapters of THEOS, an international organization for widowed men and women, are holding a weekend conference August 19-21 at Sacred Heart Spiritual Growth Center, Rolling Meadows. Open to any widowed person, to clergy and to others in the helping professions, cost is $40 for a full weekend, $15 for Saturday only.

More information can be obtained by calling 696-6395. Reservations are due Aug. 10.

Mrs. Michael W. Henry

Ill., and Janina Henry, Danville, as bridesmaids.

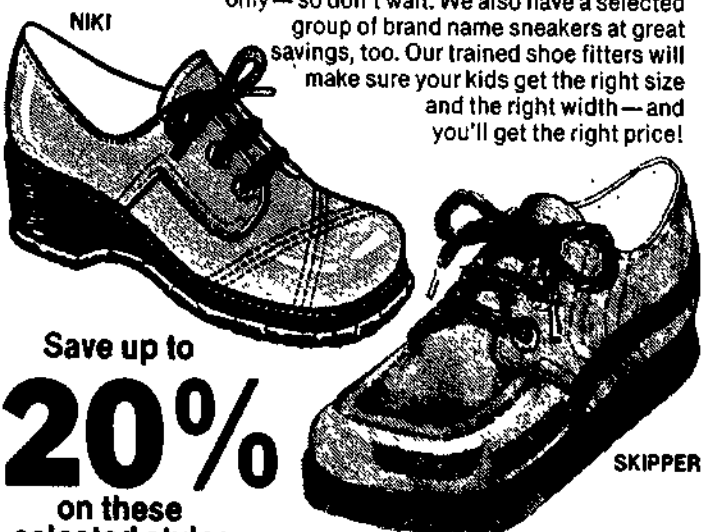

THE BRIDE'S 8-year-old sister, Ann, and her 7-year-old brother, Michael, were flower girl and ring bearer.

Matthew Henry was his brother's best man, and groomsmen were the bride's brother, Edward; Larry Helgesen, Palatine; Glen Corwin, Batavia; Harvey Berns, Skokie; and Mark Baker, Westfield, Ill. Ushers were the bride's brothers, Edward and Robert; Jay Kent, Illinois; Terry Helgesen, Palatine; Jeff Garnett, Champaign; and David Murphy, Naperville.

The newlyweds are now making their home in Torrance, Calif., after a two-week honeymoon in Hawaii.

Invitation For Bids

The Village of Schaumburg, Illinois, will receive sealed bids for an Emergency Services and Disaster Warning System. Bids should be presented to the Village Clerk, 301 Schaumburg Court, Schaumburg, Illinois, by 10:00 a.m. on Sept. 8, 1977 and will be publicly opened at 10:00 a.m. on Sept. 8, 1977 in the Council Chambers, 101 Schaumburg Court, Schaumburg, Illinois. The successful bidder will be awarded a contract on Tuesday, September 13, 1977 at 2:00 p.m. in the Council Chambers at a regularly scheduled meeting of the Village Board of Trustees.

Contract Documents including site locations and specifications are on file at the office of the Coordinator of Emergency Services, Division of the Village of Schaumburg, 1000 West Schaumburg Road, Schaumburg, Illinois.

The Board of Trustees of the Village of Schaumburg reserves the right to reject any and all bids or to waive any informalities in the bidding. Bids may be held by the Coordinator of Emergency Services for a period not to exceed thirty (30) days from the date of the opening of bids for the purpose of reviewing the bids and investigating the qualifications of the bidder prior to the awarding of the contract. All bids must be in compliance with the Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission as a material term of all public contracts.

Pursuant to Title 32-National Defense, Chapter XVII, Part 1208, Subpart 1805.3, Contract Award Requirements, Paragraph (b), you are hereby informed that:

(1) All laborers and mechanics employed by contractors or subcontractors in performance of the contract work shall be paid wages at rates not less than determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act as amended (49 U.S.C. 2760 et seq.) and every such employee shall receive compensation at a rate not less than one and one-half times his basic rate of pay for all hours worked in excess of eight hours in any calendar day or in excess of forty hours in any workweek, as the case may be as provided in Section 201 (1) of the Federal Civil Defense Act of 1950, as amended (50 U.S.C. App. 2281) and in the Contract Work Hours Standards Act (49 U.S.C. 2061) and, (2) Bid specifications shall contain the labor standards provisions prescribed in 1805.4 of this part 1808 and shall have attached thereto the wages determination decision of the Secretary of Labor applicable to the project. Bidder will be required to comply with wage rates in effect at the time of award.

Pollution Variance

Maple Hill Nursing Home, Long Grove, Illinois, has filed with the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and Illinois Pollution Control Board a Petition for Variance, Title 17 of the Environmental Protection Act provides for individual variances upon proof by the Petitioner that compliance with specific provisions of the Act, related regulations and/or Board Opinions would impose upon the Petitioner an "arbitrary or unreasonable hardship." The Petitioner alleges such hardship and requests a variance until March, 1979 to allow the continued discharge of water pollution contaminants into Buffalo Creek.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency solicits the views of persons who might be adversely affected by the granting of the variance. Any comments or inquiries should be addressed to the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, Variance Section, Division of Water Pollution Control, 2209 Churchill Road, Springfield, Illinois 62706, (217/782-2906). Formal objections to the petition may be filed in writing with the Clerk of the Illinois Pollution Control Board, 209 Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois, 60606.

Not every bank offers you the greatest thing since sliced bread... and gives it away free.

We're proud of our exclusive "Super Statement" service. For some folks who think and talk in superlatives, it's the greatest thing since sliced bread. After all, why shouldn't a bank—with all its computers and account numbers and stuff—be able to give you one piece of paper each month that shows you everything: your checking account transactions, your savings account activity (including interest), and your loan information (including how much you still owe)? "Super Statement" does it all for our customers... at no added charge. That's all the bragging we're going to do about our "Super Statement." So you can go on living your life and forget about it.

At least until the day you get fed up with less-than-complete information from some other bank. Then, we think, you might want to join our customers who insist on—and enjoy—nothing but the best. Like "Super Statement"... greatest thing since sliced bread.

Super Statement is another way we say, "Just being there isn't enough."

'Ghost' state workers given new jobs

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau
SPRINGFIELD Three state employees, whom Gov. James R. Thompson ordered fired in mid-June because they had no apparent duties, have been given new state posts.

The three are David C. Canter and Martin C. Gorski both of Chicago, and Freddy C. Peavy of Oak Park.

TWO OTHER campaign workers who held similar state posts also were offered other government jobs but declined to accept. They are Sandra L. Wexler and John Gaters, both of Chicago.

Thompson said Wednesday his first impulse upon learning of the situation in June was to fire the five, but he said he did not like to "bounce" people.

The five were originally put on the Illinois Dept. of Transportation payroll Jan. 17, one week after Thompson's inauguration.

However, none actually worked for IDOT and instead were assigned to Thompson's Chicago governor's office in a practice known as "ghost" payroll.

THE PRACTICE was criticized by Thompson during his gubernatorial campaign and generally has been eliminated by the new administration, according to Thompson officials.

The five ghost employees were paid more than $30,000 over the five-month period, although no documents existed to show they were being supervised or had regular duties.

At least four weeks of pay for three of the employees was authorized by Schilling after the supervisor of the governor's Chicago office had refused to sign pay vouchers stating that the three had been working.

The three still on the payroll insisted Wednesday that they all had been given assignments in January and denied they had been collecting salaries without working.

GORSKI, 32, said he worked as the governor's liaison with the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, writing reports and attending meetings around the state.

Gorski, who had worked on Thompson's finance operations during the campaign and for a consulting firm ment reorganization began his new developing a report on state government Wednesday at the IDOT. Dist. 1 office in Schaumburg.

Peavy said he met with persons who wanted to have interviews with the governor at the first job.

"I don't know why anyone would say I was not working," Peavy said. He now works at IDOT's Schaumburg

Woman charged in lover's murder

A Palatine woman was charged Wednesday with the murder of her 32-year-old lover.

Shirley Biedrzycki, 40, was charged with the murder of Frederick E. Kurschner, a cross-country truck driver, after she walked into the Palatine police station at 1 a.m. with her 11-year-old son to report the shooting.

Authorities said Kurschner's body was found on the porch of the small frame house the two shared at 552 N. Easy St. He had been shot six times in the chest with two weapons, .32 caliber and .38 caliber revolvers.

POLICE REFUSED to give a motive for the slaying, but neighbors and Kurschner's mother said other love affairs might have been the cause.

"Fred said something once about catching Shirley seeing another man," said his mother, Betty Palm, 423 S. Taylor St., Oak Park.

The two had lived together for about a year and a half, Mrs. Palm said, but "Shirley was always leaving — just walking out."

"Fred told her a couple of weeks ago that the next time she left he'd throw out her clothes. Well, she did, and he threw the clothes out," Mrs. Palm said.

Mrs. Biedrzycki is divorced, and Kurschner is seeking a divorce from his wife, Val, who lives in California, Mrs. Palm said.

"HE WAS VERY sturdy and very strong," Mrs. Palm said. "He would be up early mornings and ready to work. He was the workingest fool who ever lived," she said.

Employees at the Palatine Car Wash, 101 W. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, said they had known the couple and were surprised by the shooting. The car wash is near the Kurschner home.

"As far as we could see, there was never any problem," said John W. Meeters, owner of the car wash and a friend of Kurschner.

"He was gone a lot and might have been seeing people on the road," Meeters said.

But Meeters disagreed with Mrs. Palm's accusations that Mrs.

Rapp indicted in extortion

by TONI GINETTI
Suspended Buffalo Grove village engineer Carl W. Rapp, was indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury for attempting to extort $5,000 from a developer.

Rapp, 34, had been arrested more than two months ago by FBI agents as he left a village board meeting moments after allegedly accepting the money from developer Louis P. Shassian, president of Wilmont Homes Inc., Deerfield.

The money was to be the first installment on a $100,000 payment Rapp

allegedly demanded in exchange for speeding up zoning and plan approval of Shassian's Devonshire Unit One subdivision project at Mundelein and Bush roads.

RAPP, WHO ALSO is the director of community development, is charged with violating the Hobbs Act prohibiting extortion. Conviction on an extortion charge carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Rapp, 1170 Thompson Blvd., allegedly planned the shake-down several weeks before Shassian paid the $5,000 during the May 16 meeting of the village board.

Shassian earlier had complained to Rapp during a luncheon meeting about delays in getting approval for his project, a 19.2-acre, single-family home development. Rapp allegedly asked Shassian "what's it worth to you," then at a later meeting asked the developer for $100,000 in cash to influence the project's approval.

The amount later was cut to $50,000, with Shassian agreeing to pay the first $10,000 during the May 16 village board meeting.

SHASSIAN, however, went to federal authorities to report the incident. The FBI provided $4,000 of the $5,000 allegedly handed to Rapp during the board meeting and also wired Shassian with electronic monitoring devices to record the alleged payoff.

Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish suspended Rapp indefinitely following his arrest. Public Works Director Charles McCoy was named acting engineer and a consulting engineering firm was hired to review projects that had been approved during Rapp's tenure as engineer.

Rapp has had the post of village engineer since July, 1976.

'Taxes, utilities to drive area rent up by 10%

Northwest suburban renters will pay up to 10 per cent more for apartments on new leases signed Oct. 1, a real estate management firm said Wednesday.

Higher real estate taxes and increased utility bills are two major factors pushing rents up, said Marilyn McGee in the property management division of Baird & Warner, Arlington Heights.

"Rent increases in the Northwest suburbs definitely should not exceed 10 per cent this fall," Ms. McGee said, explaining that some Chicago and north suburban rent increases may be higher.

"We still have a surplus of apartments in the Northwest suburbs and it's a very competitive market," she said.

BUT THE SURPLUS of apartments is expected to dry up in the next several years because new apartment construction is almost at a standstill, she said.

"Most apartment owners and operators are working with a negative cash flow right now and the only new rental construction is the government subsidized housing for low-income families," she said.

"The (apartment) market in the Northwest suburbs is really going to tighten up in the next couple of years."

Most renters whose leases expire Oct. 1 already have received their new rents. Most management companies send out new leases three months before existing leases expire.

Higher winter heating bills, combined with higher electric and water rates substantially increased costs for building owners last year and some city leases now include "escalator clauses" allowing landlords to increase rents in mid-year if they encounter extraordinary expenses.

"WE (BAIRD & WARNER) haven't put in 'escalators' but it may be the wave of the future," Ms. McGee said.

Hogan & Farwell/Marken Realty Group Wednesday said rent increases in Chicago and northern suburbs will increase 10 to 18 per cent Oct. 1.

Renters in Evanston, Wilmette, Skokie and Lincolnwood are in for increases of 15 to 18 per cent, the firm said. Northside neighborhoods in Chicago have smaller rent increases, generally in the range of 10 to 14 per cent.

Ms. McGee said there are fewer and fewer desirable apartments in Chicago and the north suburbs because of changing neighborhoods and the conversion of rental apartments to condominium apartments.

The Northwest suburbs, where the majority of apartment buildings are newer, have not experienced massive condominium conversion.

CIA hired prostitutes for sex study: Turner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director Stansfield Turner Wednesday revealed that the spy agency operated a sexual behavior study in which agents paid prostitutes in New York and San Francisco and then spied on their activity through two-way bedroom mirrors.

During an appearance before two Senate committees, Turner also gave investigators the names of 185 private researchers and 80 institutions that conducted "abhorrent" CIA mind-control experiments on human "guinea pigs" in the '50s and '60s.

Under questioning, Turner disclosed the agency ran an apparent sexual behavior study called "Operation Midnight Climax" in New York and San Francisco "safe houses" rigged like fancy bordellos.

In questioning by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., another witness, former CIA official John Gittinger said a CIA psychologist, he was trying to get information on different cultures and subcultures and the way their members reacted to drugs and handled sexual relations. But he said he had no direct knowledge of how the "safe house" operation was carried out.

ANOTHER WITNESS, former CIA official Philip Goldman said he'd seen payment vouchers covering the purchase of red curtains and at least one two-way mirror for the "safe houses," but said he knew nothing more about it.

Turner and the other ex-CIA official testified before a joint session of the Senate Intelligence Committee and a Senate Health Committee.

"It is totally abhorrent to me to think of using humans as guinea pigs," Turner said. "There is no (such) experiment going on (now) in any way."

In Senate testimony on the top-secret human behavior research, he disclosed new details of the CIA's Cold War era testing of drugs, electroshock, poisons, chemicals and germs on volunteers and unwitting subjects, including "criminal sexual psychopaths," in prisons, hospitals, colleges and elsewhere.

Turner testified about some 3,000 pages of newly discovered documentary evidence on a behavioral control project code-named "MKULTRA."

He said he will give Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell whatever materials he wants from the new evidence, for any investigation he may care to conduct.

MKULTRA, Turner said, hit its peak between 1953 and 1964 when 149 covert research projects were conducted, "many of which appear to have some connection with research into behavioral modification, drug acquisition and testing or administering drugs surreptitiously."

STANSFIELD TURNER

"We are now in possession of the names of 185 nongovernment researchers and assistants who are identified in the recovered material dealing with the 149 sub-projects," he said.

Other projects, he said, involved use of hypnosis, lie detectors and "aspects of magicians" are useful in covert operations, for example, surreptitious delivery of drug-related materials."

15% water rate increase to be considered Aug. 15

Water rates for Des Plaines residents would increase 15 per cent next month, under a new rate ordinance approved by the water and sewer committee this week.

The city council will consider the increase at its Aug. 15 meeting.

The ordinance calls for raising water rates from 76 cents per hundred cubic feet to 87 cents.

It is estimated that the average single-family household uses about 20,000 cubic feet of water per year. Under the new increase, the water bill for the average homeowner will go from $152 to $175 a year.

Residents on duty with armed services

On active duty with the armed forces are these Des Plaines residents:

After completing yeoman school in Meridian, Miss., Seaman Appren. Tim M. Hoppe will report for duty aboard the U.S. Enterprise . . . Radioman 1st Cl. Richard G. Becker is a crewmember aboard the USS Arthur W. Radford homeported in Norfolk, Va.

Staff Sgt. Charles S. Sadowski is a member of a Whiteman AFB, Mo., unit which won the Blachard Trophy in combat missile competition . . . Lance Cpl. Joseph D. Suffi has reported for duty with the 3rd Marine Division on Okinawa . . . Airman Robert A. Kavanaugh has completed the medical laboratory specialist course and will report for duty at Scott AFB, Ill.

CITY COMPTROLLER Duane Blietz said the increase, the first in three years, is the result of a 21 per cent hike in January by the City of Chicago, which sells Lake Michigan water to Des Plaines.

"Once they raise it, we have to," he said.

Blietz said the city doesn't have to raise its rates as much as Chicago because the cost of providing water to Des Plaines residents involves more than just the bill for Chicago water. He said these other costs, including salaries and pumping water from the city's well system, haven't risen as much as the Chicago charge.

"The committee wanted to raise only the amount absolutely necessary," he said.

Ald. Thomas Koplos, 1st, chairman of the water and sewer committee, said the Des Plaines increase would be the smallest of all 72 suburbs affected by the Chicago increase.

Des Plaines and the other suburbs have joined in a suit against Chicago, protesting the rate increase and asking for a rollback in the price of Lake Michigan water.

If that suit is successful, Koplos said Des Plaines residents would receive a water rate cut.

When Joe sells on the telephone he talks with his hands. And people listen.

Selling by telephone is very much like selling in person. A good salesman pretends that the listener is right there. So he gestures and moves around with enthusiasm.

And it shows in his voice on the other end of the line.

This is just one tip on using the telephone more effectively that your Centel Communications Consultants can help you with.

They're trained to show you how to get the most out of your business telephones. They have good tips on how to set up conference calls that save travel expenses. On how to screen incoming calls for busy executives. And a whole lot more.

Beyond that, Centel Communications Consultants know all about the latest telephone equipment. They can help you plan for expansion. And help you meet special communications needs with specialized equipment.

After all, they're backed by an established telephone system that has assets of over a billion dollars.

So why not have one of our Communications Consultants come over and survey your communications system? Just to see if your company is getting the most value out of your communications budget.

The survey won't cost you a red cent. It's part of our service to you as a business customer.

Drug deals tied to gang fighting in Ned Brown

by PATRICK DOYLE

The 20 persons who attacked a gang of 80 persons with bats, knives, chains and B-B guns at the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Sunday night were trying to take over drug sales there, a gang member said Wednesday.

The man, a member of the gang that was attacked, said he did not want to be identified because he feared retaliation. One hundred persons were involved in the fight, which lasted about 45 minutes before police could break it up.

Cook County Comr. Carl Hansen Wednesday called on forest preserve district officials to find out more about the incident and what can be done to avoid further fighting.

"I WANT TO find out if this is a one-shot deal or if these groups are continuing this over a longer period of time," Hansen said.

Richard Sloan, chief ranger of the Cook County Forest Preserve District, said he did not know if drug dealing between rival gangs led to the melee.

Two days before the fighting erupted, Michael Wynn, forest ranger, arrested four persons near Grove No. 6 in Busse Woods in the preserve, Sloan said.

A man had identified them as the robbers who took an undisclosed amount of cash from him earlier in the day, Sloan said.

The complainant was one of the 30 young persons who gathered at the forest preserve Sunday, Sloan said. The four accused robbers came into the forest preserve with 15 companions seeking revenge, he said.

"They went in to get him and they got him," he said. Sloan said he believes the complainant was one of those injured. Only two persons were hospitalized.

ASKED IF DRUG dealing was behind the whole affair, Sloan said, "I can't verify it."

But one gang member who was beaten by members of the smaller gang said, "I think they are trying to take over drug sales in the preserve."

The men said he used to be active in dealing drugs in the forest preserve.

"You wouldn't even imagine how much money goes through that woods," he said. "It's a flea market of drugs."

Marijuana, hallucinogens and cocaine are a few of the drugs dealt in large quantities in the preserve, the man said.

HE SAID OTHER members of his gang also dealt in drugs and that the smaller group has wanted to control the business.

Harry Jenkins, Elk Grove Village police chief, said he is concerned about crime in the preserve threatening surrounding residential neighborhoods in the village.

He said he hopes the additional policemen can be used to patrol around the preserve.

"There is a chance that a major breakout could spill into the village," he said.

Both Hansen and Jenkins said rangers assigned to the preserve are not able to handle its problems.

But Jenkins said he has to tell worried residents who call that there is nothing the police department can do outside village limits except assist rangers when needed. The preserve is in Elk Grove Township.

BASED ON WHAT he knows about the preserve, Jenkins said, it is safe to assume that drugs were behind the dispute.

Parking meter revenue needed for time being

Forty-four thousand dollars in yearly parking revenues are all that's preventing the City of Des Plaines from eliminating most of the parking meters from the downtown area, city officials said Wednesday.

That's the amount of money the city would lose each year by eliminating nearly 400 of its downtown meters. The city uses the parking meter revenue to pay off two bonds used to construct public parking lots.

Once the city finds new ways to finance the bonds, free shopper parking will become a reality throughout most of the central business district, Ald. Arthur Erbach, 5th, said.

"IF WE CAN do it, let's do it as quickly as possible," he said.

Erbach, a member of the municipal development committee that is investigating the proposal, said the city soon will choose a consulting firm to seek alternate methods of financing the bonds.

City Comptroller Duane Blatz said the aldermen are talking about removing 384 parking meters in the downtown area, 193 from various lots and 191 off the streets. Under this plan most of the downtown area would be left open for free two-hour parking.

Blatz estimates the city would lose about $44,000 in yearly parking revenues by eliminating the meters.

THE MONEY now helps pay about $200,000 in yearly costs for the parking lot bonds.

Erbach said one way to raise the money would be to impose a special tax on downtown businesses that would benefit by the elimination of the meters.

The committee is considering setting up a special taxing district in the central business area, bounded by Jefferson Street on the north, Grand Avenue on the west, Pearson Street on the east, and a line halfway between Prairie Avenue and Thacker Street on the south.

Some downtown meters would remain under the plan, including about 120 near the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks and 40 in the first floor of the Herbert H. Behrler Parking Plaza on Ellwood Street. Aldermen also are considering adding some meters along streets bordering the downtown area.

Mayor Herbert H. Volberding said he is pushing the move to eliminate parking meters downtown to help businesses in the area. He said it will help revitalize the entire downtown area and is not being planned just to help the new Superblock shopping complex, scheduled to open this fall.

"This will certainly assist Superblock, but I'm pushing it for the good of the entire community," he said.

Whirlwind courtship ends in nuptials at Brookwood

MARITAL BLISS — Newlyweds Mary Rose, 69, and Sidney G. Powell, 58, kiss after their wedding at the Brookwood Health Care Center.

by SCOTT FOSDICK
Love strikes at the most unlikely places — even nursing homes.
That's where it struck Wednesday as Mary Rose Losch, 69, and Sidney G. Powell, 58, got married in a ceremony filled with tears, joy and smiles from a host of friends and nurses.
The happy couple met six weeks ago at the Brookwood Health Care Center, 2380 W. Dempster St., Des Plaines. Both say it was love at first sight.
"She came to me in the music room. She looked at me, I looked at her, and that was it," Powell said.
MARY ROSE WHEN she was very surprised when Sid popped the question just a few weeks after they met, but added she didn't even stop to think of what to say.
"No, I knew it right away," she said.
The new Mrs. Powell has been married once before, so she approached the ceremony with a reserved, but sincere smile. But for Powell it was the first time he took the nuptial plunge, and he beamed with all the pride of a young groom.
"My mother always wanted me to get married before she died, but I never did," he said.

THE LAST FEW years since his mother died haven't been happy for Sidney Powell.
The former Mount Prospect postal worker was returning to his home in Des Plaines after work one evening last January when he was struck by a speeding auto. After three months in the hospital, Powell was told he would never recover enough to return to his old job.
Powell was a lonely, depressed man when he checked into the Brookwood Health Care Center in April. But all that changed when he met Mary Rose Losch.

"It gave him a reason to get well," said Rev. Larry Hilkemann, pastor of the Church of the Incarnation in Arlington Heights.
Rev. Hilkemann, who performed the ceremony, said he witnessed a dramatic change in Powell's attitude after he met his bride-to-be.
"I'm grateful to see the power that love and caring have. It's changed Sid's life... It gave him a reason to get well," he said.
POWELL WAS THE very picture of marital bliss as he waited in the Regency Room of the health care center. Dressed in white shoes with a matching carnation in the lapel of his burgundy suit, Powell held hands with his fiancée and gazed wistfully into her eyes.

"You look so nice," she told him.
"Thank you, you're wonderful," he murmured tearfully. "I'm marrying a beautiful girl."
Mary Rose virtually glowed in a tall, white patterned dress with a large, white corsage pinned to the shoulder. And her glow didn't fade while she waited for Herbert H. Volberding, Powell's brother-in-law and the mayor of Des Plaines, to show up with the wedding rings.
VOLBERDING BREEZED in 20 minutes after the wedding was supposed to have started, and the smiles returned to several worried faces.

'Ghost' state workers given new jobs

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau
SPRINGFIELD Three state employees, whom Gov. James R. Thompson ordered fired in mid-June because they had no apparent duties, have been given new state posts.

The three are David C. Canter and Martin C. Gorski both of Chicago, and Freddy C. Peavy of Oak Park.

TWO OTHER campaign workers who held similar state posts also were offered other government jobs but declined to accept. They are Sandra L. Wexler and John Gaters, both of Chicago.

Thompson said Wednesday his first impulse upon learning of the situation in June was to fire the five, but he said he did not like to "bounce" people.

University of Illinois workers in payroll scandal — Page 15.

The five were originally put on the Illinois Dept. of Transportation payroll Jan. 17, one week after Thompson's inauguration.

However, none actually worked for IDOT and instead were assigned to Thompson's Chicago governor's office in a practice known as "ghost" payroll.

THE PRACTICE was criticized by Thompson during his gubernatorial campaign and generally has been eliminated by the new administration, according to Thompson officials.

The five ghost employees were paid more than $30,000 over the five-month period, although no documents existed to show they were being supervised or had regular duties.

At least four weeks of pay for three of the employees was authorized by Schilling after the supervisor of the governor's Chicago office had refused to sign pay vouchers stating that the three had been working.

The three still on the payroll insisted Wednesday that they all had been given assignments in January and denied they had been collecting salaries without working.

GORSKI, 32, said he worked as the governor's liaison with the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, writing reports and attending meetings around the state.

Gorski, who had worked on Thompson's finance operations during the campaign and for a consulting firm ment reorganization began his new developing a report on state government Wednesday at the IDOT. Dist. 1 office in Schaumburg.

Peavy said he met with persons who wanted to have interviews with the governor at the first job.

"I don't know why anyone would say I was not working," Peavy said. He now works at IDOT's Schaumburg

Woman charged in lover's murder

A Palatine woman was charged Wednesday with the murder of her 32-year-old lover.

Shirley Biedrzycki, 40, was charged with the murder of Frederick E. Kurschner, a cross-country truck driver, after she walked into the Palatine police station at 1 a.m. with her 11-year-old son to report the shooting.

Authorities said Kurschner's body was found on the porch of the small frame house the two shared at 552 N. Easy St. He had been shot six times in the chest with two weapons, .32 caliber and .38 caliber revolvers.

POLICE REFUSED to give a motive for the slaying, but neighbors and Kurschner's mother said other love affairs might have been the cause.

"Fred said something once about catching Shirley seeing another man," said his mother, Betty Palm, 423 S. Taylor St., Oak Park.

The two had lived together for about a year and a half, Mrs. Palm said, but "Shirley was always leaving — just walking out."

"Fred told her a couple of weeks ago that the next time she left he'd throw out her clothes. Well, she did, and he threw the clothes out," Mrs. Palm said.

Mrs. Biedrzycki is divorced, and Kurschner is seeking a divorce from his wife, Val, who lives in California, Mrs. Palm said.

"HE WAS VERY sturdy and very strong," Mrs. Palm said. "He would be up early mornings and ready to work. He was the workingest fool who ever lived," she said.

Employees at the Palatine Car Wash, 101 W. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, said they had known the couple and were surprised by the shooting. The car wash is near the Kurschner home.

"As far as we could see, there was never any problem," said John W. Meeters, owner of the car wash and a friend of Kurschner.

"He was gone a lot and might have been seeing people on the road," Meeters said.

But Meeters disagreed with Mrs. Palm's accusations that Mrs.

Rapp indicted in extortion

by TONI GINETTI

Suspended Buffalo Grove village engineer Carl W. Rapp, was indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury for attempting to extort $5,000 from a developer.

Rapp, 34, had been arrested more than two months ago by FBI agents as he left a village board meeting moments after allegedly accepting the money from developer Louis P. Shassian, president of Wilmette Homes Inc., Deerfield.

The money was to be the first installment on a $100,000 payment Rapp

allegedly demanded in exchange for speeding up zoning and plan approval of Shassian's Devonshire Unit One subdivision project at Mundelein and Busch roads.

RAPP, WHO ALSO is the director of community development, is charged with violating the Hobbs Act prohibiting extortion. Conviction on an extortion charge carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Rapp, 1170 Thompson Blvd., allegedly planned the shakedown several weeks before Shassian paid the $5,000 during the May 16 meeting of the village board.

Shassian earlier had complained to Rapp during a luncheon meeting about delays in getting approval for his project, a 19.2-acre, single-family home development. Rapp allegedly asked Shassian "what's it worth to you," then at a later meeting asked the developer for $100,000 in cash to influence the project's approval.

The amount later was cut to $50,000, with Shassian agreeing to pay the first $10,000 during the May 16 village board meeting.

SHASSIAN, however, went to federal authorities to report the incident. The FBI provided $4,000 of the $5,000 allegedly handed to Rapp during the board meeting and also wired Shassian with electronic monitoring devices to record the alleged payoff.

Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish suspended Rapp indefinitely following his arrest. Public Works Director Charles McCoy was named acting engineer and a consulting engineering firm was hired to review projects that had been approved during Rapp's tenure as engineer.

Rapp has had the post of village engineer since July, 1976.

CIA hired prostitutes for sex study: Turner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director Stansfield Turner Wednesday revealed that the spy agency operated a sexual behavior study in which agents paid prostitutes in New York and San Francisco and then spied on their activity through two-way bedroom mirrors.

During an appearance before two Senate committees, Turner also gave investigators the names of 185 private researchers and 80 institutions that conducted "abhorrent" CIA mind-control experiments on human "guinea pigs" in the '50s and '60s.

Under questioning, Turner disclosed the agency ran an apparent sexual behavior study called "Operation Midnight Climax" in New York and San Francisco "safe houses" rigged like fancy bordellos.

In questioning by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., another witness, former CIA official John Gittinger said a CIA psychologist, he was trying to get information on different cultures and subcultures and the way their members reacted to drugs and handled sexual relations. But he said he had no direct knowledge of how the "safe house" operation was carried out.

ANOTHER WITNESS, former CIA official Philip Goldman said he'd seen payment vouchers covering the purchase of red curtains and at least one two-way mirror for the "safe houses," but said he knew nothing more about it.

Turner and the other ex-CIA official testified before a joint session of the Senate Intelligence Committee and a Senate Health Committee.

"It is totally abhorrent to me to think of using humans as guinea pigs," Turner said. "There is no (such) experiment going on (now) in any way."

In Senate testimony on the top-secret human behavior research, he disclosed new details of the CIA's Cold War era testing of drugs, electroshock, poisons, chemicals and germs on volunteers and unwitting subjects, including "criminal sexual psychopaths," in prisons, hospitals, colleges and elsewhere.

Turner testified about some 8,000 pages of newly discovered documentary evidence on a behavioral control project code-named "MKULTRA."

He said he will give Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell whatever materials he wants from the new evidence, for any investigation he may care to conduct.

MKULTRA, Turner said, hit its peak between 1953 and 1964 when 149 covert research projects were conducted, "many of which appear to have some connection with research into behavioral modification, drug acquisition and testing or administering drugs surreptitiously."

STANSFIELD TURNER

"We are now in possession of the names of 185 nongovernment researchers and assistants who are identified in the recovered material dealing with the 149 sub-projects," he said.

Other projects, he said, involved use of hypnosis, lie detectors and "aspects of magicians" are useful in covert operations, for example, surreptitious delivery of drug related materials."

Dangerous intersection gets signal

A permanent traffic signal will be installed at Ill. Rte. 83 and Old McHenry Road, Wheeling, concluding a campaign that began in 1974 to reduce accidents at the intersection.

The Illinois Dept. of Transportation earlier this week allocated $67,930 for the traffic signal. The contract has been awarded to Contracting and Material Co., Wheeling. A spokesman for the state said the lights should be installed by Nov. 1.

A group of residents known as CORPSE — Citizens of Old McHenry Road Proposing Slaughter Elimination — in 1974 began a drive to lower the speed limit on Old McHenry Road and to have traffic signals installed at Old McHenry Road and Rte. 83.

CORPSE, which has since disbanded, was formed by area residents because of the large number of accidents on Old McHenry Road. Statistics collected by the group covering the period from December 1973 to December 1974 showed that 92 accidents occurred on the road during that time. There was one death and 21.7 per cent of the accidents resulted in injuries, they said. They attributed about one-third of the accidents to speeding.

THE GROUP in 1974 won a partial victory when the state agreed to lower the speed limit from 55 m.p.h. to 50 m.p.h. along the entire stretch of Old

McHenry Road in Wheeling. Previously, only a short section just north of Dundee Road had a 50 m.p.h. limit. A spokesman for the state highway department at that time said the speed limit was lowered because a traffic survey indicated the road had "more of an accident ratio than the statewide average." Residents has asked for a reduction to 40 m.p.h. CORPSE won a second victory in May 1975 when stop signs were installed at the intersection. The stop signs were replaced several months later by temporary traffic signals after the signs caused massive traffic jams. Funds for permanent traffic signals were originally scheduled to be included in the 1976 state budget but the project didn't receive an allocation until this year. Wheeling Police Chief M.O. Horcher Tuesday said the village is working on a traffic plan that will alleviate other congested traffic areas in the village.

his fiancé and gazed wistfully into her eyes.

"You look so nice," she told him. "Thank you, you're wonderful," he murmured tearfully. "I'm marrying a beautiful girl."

Mary Rose virtually glowed in a gal floral patterned dress with a large, white corsage pinned to the shoulder. And her glow didn't fade while she waited for Herbert H. Volberding, Powell's brother-in-law and the mayor of Des Plaines, to show up with the wedding rings.

VOLBERDING BREEZED in 20 minutes after the wedding was supposed to have started, and the smiles returned to several worried faces.

'Ghost' state workers given new jobs

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau
SPRINGFIELD — Three state employees, whom Gov. James R. Thompson ordered fired in mid-June because they had no apparent duties, have been given new state posts.

The Herakli has learned that the three, all of whom were active in Thompson's gubernatorial campaign, were retained on the state payroll after Thompson's director of operations, William Schilling, persuaded the governor to allow them to remain.

The three are David C. Canter and Martin C. Gorski both of Chicago, and Freddy C. Peavy of Oak Park.

TWO OTHER campaign workers who held similar state posts also were offered other government jobs but declined to accept. They are Sandra L. Wexler and John Gaters, both of Chicago.

Thompson said Wednesday his first impulse upon learning of the situation in June was to fire the five, but he said he did not like to "bounce" people.

University of Illinois workers in payroll scandal — Page 15.

The five were originally put on the Illinois Dept. of Transportation payroll Jan. 17, one week after Thompson's inauguration.

However, none actually worked for IDOT and instead were assigned to Thompson's Chicago governor's office in a practice known as "ghost" payroll.

THE PRACTICE was criticized by Thompson during his gubernatorial campaign and generally has been eliminated by the new administration, according to Thompson officials.

The five ghost employees were paid more than $30,000 over the five-month period, although no documents existed to show they were being supervised or had regular duties.

At least four weeks of pay for three of the employees was authorized by Schilling after the supervisor of the governor's Chicago office had refused to sign pay vouchers stating that the three had been working.

The three still on the payroll insisted Wednesday that they all had been given assignments in January and denied they had been collecting salaries without working.

GORSKI, 32, said he worked as the governor's liaison with the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, writing reports and attending meetings around the state.

Gorski, who had worked on Thompson's finance operations during the campaign and for a consulting firm ment reorganization began his new developing a report on state government Wednesday at the IDOT. Dist. 1 office in Schaumburg.

Peavy said he met with persons who wanted to have interviews with the governor at the first job.

"I don't know why anyone would say I was not working," Peavy said. He now works at IDOT's Schaumburg

Woman charged in lover's murder

A Palatine woman was charged Wednesday with the murder of her 32-year-old lover.

Shirley Biedrzycki, 40, was charged with the murder of Frederick E. Kurschner, a cross-country truck driver, after she walked into the Palatine police station at 1 a.m. with her 11-year-old son to report the shooting.

Authorities said Kurschner's body was found on the porch of the small frame house the two shared at 552 N. Easy St. He had been shot six times in the chest with two weapons, .32 caliber and .38 caliber revolvers.

POLICE REFUSED to give a motive for the slaying, but neighbors and Kurschner's mother said other love affairs might have been the cause.

"Fred said something once about catching Shirley seeing another man," said his mother, Betty Palm, 423 S. Taylor St., Oak Park.

The two had lived together for about a year and a half, Mrs. Palm said, but "Shirley was always leaving — just walking out."

"Fred told her a couple of weeks ago that the next time she left he'd throw out her clothes. Well, she did, and he threw the clothes out," Mrs. Palm said.

Mrs. Biedrzycki is divorced, and Kurschner is seeking a divorce from his wife, Val, who lives in California, Mrs. Palm said.

"HE WAS VERY sturdy and very strong," Mrs. Palm said. "He would be up early mornings and ready to work. He was the workingest fool who ever lived," she said.

Employees at the Palatine Car Wash, 101 W. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, said they had known the couple and were surprised by the shooting. The car wash is near the Kurschner home.

"As far as we could see, there was never any problem," said John W. Meeters, owner of the car wash and a friend of Kurschner.

"He was gone a lot and might have been seeing people on the road," Meeters said.

But Meeters disagreed with Mrs. Palm's accusations that Mrs. Biedrzycki was the killer.

Rapp indicted in extortion

by TONI GINETTI

Suspended Buffalo Grove village engineer Carl W. Rapp, was indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury for attempting to extort $5,000 from a developer.

Rapp, 34, had been arrested more than two months ago by FBI agents as he left a village board meeting moments after allegedly accepting the money from developer Louis P. Shassian, president of Wilmont Homes Inc., Deerfield.

The money was to be the first installment on a $100,000 payment Rapp

allegedly demanded in exchange for speeding up zoning and plan approval of Shassian's Devonshire Unit One subdivision project at Mundelein and Busch roads.

RAPP, WHO ALSO is the director of community development, is charged with violating the Hobbs Act prohibiting extortion. Conviction on an extortion charge carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Rapp, 1170 Thompson Blvd., allegedly planned the shakedown several weeks before Shassian paid the $5,000 during the May 16 meeting of the village board.

Shassian earlier had complained to Rapp during a luncheon meeting about delays in getting approval for his project, a 19.2-acre, single-family home development. Rapp allegedly asked Shassian "what's it worth to you," then at a later meeting asked the developer for a $100,000 in cash to influence the project's approval.

The amount later was cut to $50,000, with Shassian agreeing to pay the first $10,000 during the May 16 village board meeting.

SHASSIAN, however, went to federal authorities to report the incident. The FBI provided $4,000 of the $5,000 allegedly handed to Rapp during the board meeting and also wired Shassian with electronic monitoring devices to record the alleged payoff.

Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish suspended Rapp indefinitely following his arrest. Public Works Director Charles McCoy was named acting engineer and a consulting engineering firm was hired to review projects that had been approved during Rapp's tenure as engineer.

Rapp has had the post of village engineer since July, 1976.

'Taxes, utilities to drive area rent up by 10%'

Northwest suburban renters will pay up to 10 per cent more for apartments on new leases signed Oct. 1, a real estate management firm said Wednesday.

Higher real estate taxes and increased utility bills are two major factors pushing rents up, said Marilyn McGee in the property management division of Baird & Warner, Arlington Heights.

"Rent increases in the Northwest suburbs definitely should not exceed 10 per cent this fall," Ms. McGee said, explaining that some Chicago and north suburban rent increases may be higher.

"We still have a surplus of apartments in the Northwest suburbs and it's a very competitive market," she said.

BUT THE SURPLUS of apartments is expected to dry up in the next several years because new apartment construction is almost at a standstill, she said.

"Most apartment owners and operators are working with a negative cash flow right now and the only new rental construction is government subsidized housing for low-income families," she said.

"The (apartment) market in the Northwest suburbs is really going to tighten up in the next couple of years."

Most renters whose leases expire Oct. 1 already have received their new rents. Most management companies send out new leases three months before existing leases expire.

Higher winter heating bills, combined with higher electric and water rates substantially increased costs for building owners last year and some city leases now include "escalator clauses" allowing landlords to increase rents in mid-year if they encounter extraordinary expenses.

"WE (BAIRD & WARNER) haven't put in 'escalators' but it may be the wave of the future," Ms. McGee said.

Hogan & Farwell/Marken Realty Group Wednesday said rent increases in Chicago and northern suburbs will increase 10 to 18 per cent Oct. 1.

Renters in Evanston, Wilmette, Skokie and Lincolnwood are in for increases of 15 to 18 per cent, the firm said. Northside neighborhoods in Chicago have smaller rent increases, generally in the range of 10 to 14 per cent.

Ms. McGee said there are fewer and fewer desirable apartments in Chicago and the north suburbs because of changing neighborhoods and the conversion of rental apartments to condominium apartments.

The Northwest suburbs, where the majority of apartment buildings are newer, have not experienced massive condominium conversion.

CIA hired prostitutes for sex study: Turner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director Stansfield Turner Wednesday revealed that the spy agency operated a sexual behavior study in which agents paid prostitutes in New York and San Francisco and then spied on their activity through two-way bedroom mirrors.

During an appearance before two Senate committees, Turner also gave investigators the names of 185 private researchers and 80 institutions that conducted "abhorrent" CIA mindcontrol experiments on human "guinea pigs" in the '50s and '60s.

Under questioning, Turner disclosed the agency ran an apparent sexual behavior study called "Operation Midnight Climax" in New York and San Francisco "safe houses" rigged like fancy bordellos.

In questioning by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., another witness, former CIA official John Gittinger said a CIA psychologist, he was trying to get information on different cultures and subcultures and the way their members reacted to drugs and handled sexual relations. But he said he had no direct knowledge of how the "safe house" operation was carried out.

ANOTHER WITNESS, former CIA official Philip Goldman said he'd seen payment vouchers covering the purchase of red curtains and at least one two-way mirror for the "safe houses," but said he knew nothing more about it.

Turner and the other ex-CIA official testified before a joint session of the Senate Intelligence Committee and a Senate Health Committee.

"It is totally abhorrent to me to think of using humans as guinea pigs," Turner said. "There is no (such) experiment going on (now) in any way."

In Senate testimony on the top-secret human behavior research, he disclosed new details of the CIA's Cold War era testing of drugs, electroshock, poisons, chemicals and germs on volunteers and unwitting subjects, including "criminal sexual psychopaths," in prisons, hospitals, colleges and elsewhere.

Turner testified about some 8,000 pages of newly discovered documentary evidence on a behavioral control project code-named "MKULTRA."

He said he will give Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell whatever materials he wants from the new evidence, for any investigation he may care to conduct.

MKULTRA, Turner said, hit its peak between 1953 and 1964 when 149 covert research projects were conducted, "many of which appear to have some connection with research into behavioral modification, drug acquisition and testing or administering drugs surreptitiously."

STANFIELD TURNER

"We are now in possession of the names of 185 nongovernment researchers and assistants who are identified in the recovered material dealing with the 149 sub-projects," he said.

Other projects, he said, involved use of hypnosis, lie detectors and "aspects of magicians" are useful in covert operations, for example, surreptitious delivery of drug-related materials.

Fortune in old stamps found in ditch

by RUTH MUGALIAN
Mike Ireland was hitchhiking south of Springfield a few weeks ago when he saw a piece of paper in a ditch along the side of I-55.

Normally he would have ignored it, but he noticed it had "old style writing" on it, so he took a closer look.

What he saw was badly damaged but probably worth a fortune. The piece of paper turned out to be a stamp album with 200 to 300 foreign stamps, some dating back to 1860. Some were from Prussia "that no longer exist" like Prussia, the Republic of Hawaii and North Borneo.

THE PAGES themselves were printed in 1902.

Among these antiques from far away places was an envelope from the Plum Grove Bank in Rolling Meadows. Two names, Ed Powell and Jeanette MacDonald, were written on the envelope. They are the only clues to the owner of the possibly valuable album.

Ireland, in intern for the Illinois Office of the Budget in Springfield, called the police. They had no report of a lost or stolen stamp album. So he has shifted his search for the owner to the Northwest suburbs.

He wrote to area newspapers and to the Plum Grove Bank. A spokeswoman for the bank said officials checked its 8,000 customers and found one Powell, who knew nothing about the album.

"WE CHECKED all our files," said

Christie Galinski, bank employee, "We even checked to see if we had any past customers by those names. There's really nothing else we can do."

Ms. Galinski said she did not believe the envelope is necessarily a link to the owner.

"They could have just picked the envelope up anywhere," she said.

Capt. Ralph Evans of the Rolling Meadows police said persons often lose valuable items and do not bother to report them because they do not expect to get them back. Local police also have no report of a lost or stolen stamp album.

Rolling Meadows philatelists could give no clues to the mystery of the album.

But Ireland, 27, is not giving up. As he looks for the owner, he is having the album appraised and restored.

"IT HAS mold growing on it," Ireland said. "But it doesn't seem to have damaged the stamps."

Drug deals tied to gang fighting in Ned Brown

by PATRICK DOYLE

The 20 persons who attacked a gang of 80 persons with bats, knives, chains and B-B guns at the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Sunday night were trying to take over drug sales there, a gang member said Wednesday.

The man, a member of the gang that was attacked, said he did not want to be identified because he feared retaliation. One hundred persons were involved in the fight, which lasted about 45 minutes before police could break it up.

Cook County Comr. Carl Hansen Wednesday called on forest preserve district officials to find out more about the incident and what can be done to avoid further fighting.

"I WANT TO find out if this is a one-shot deal or if these groups are continuing this over a longer period of time," Hansen said.

Richard Sloan, chief ranger of the Cook County Forest Preserve District, said he did not know if drug dealing between rival gangs led to the melee.

Two days before the fighting erupted, Michael Wynn, forest ranger, arrested four persons near Grove No. 6 in Busse Woods in the preserve, Sloan said.

A man had identified them as the robbers who took an undisclosed amount of cash from him earlier in the day, Sloan said.

The complainant was one of the 80 young persons who gathered at the forest preserve Sunday, Sloan said. The four accused robbers came into the forest preserve with 16 companions seeking revenge, he said.

"They went in to get him and they got him," he said. Sloan said he believes the complainant was one of those injured. Only two persons were hospitalized.

ASKED IF DRUG dealing was behind the whole affair, Sloan said, "I can't verify it."

But one gang member who was beaten by members of the smaller gang said, "I think they are trying to take over drug sales in the preserve."

The men said he used to be active in dealing drugs in the forest preserve.

"You wouldn't even imagine how much money goes through that woods," he said. "It's a flea market of drugs."

Marijuana, hallucinogens and cocaine are a few of the drugs dealt in large quantities in the preserve, the man said.

Dems seeking more offices in Lake County

Interest in running for office on the Democratic ticket has increased in the past few years, said Herbert Stern, Lake County Democratic chairman.

"The interest is directly proportional to the candidate's likelihood of being elected," Stern said.

The Democrats have won several major offices in Lake County since 1970, including county clerk, sheriff, state's attorney and state senator in the 31st District.

Stern said the major goal of the party in the 1978 election is to reelect Lake County Clerk Grace Mary Stern, who is Stern's wife; Sheriff E. J. La-Magdeleine; and to elect State Sen. Larry Leonard, D-Waukegan, who was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Bill Morris, now mayor of Waukegan.

THE MOST DIFFICULT office to find candidates for is superintendent of the education region, Stern said. Not many people in the county meet the educational requirements for the job, and most of those that do have higher paying, full-time jobs, Stern said.

There is considerable sentiment on the search committee to draft Pat Morris of Waukegan to run for county treasurer against GOP incumbent Terrence Tucker, Stern said.

Morris, brother of the mayor of Waukegan, is currently Waukegan Township treasurer.

"He has indicated that he isn't interested, but I find considerable support for him," Stern said.

Village youth center discussion tonight

Establishment of a Buffalo Grove youth center will be discussed at a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Trustee Robert Bogart, who has spearheaded recent efforts to establish a center, said he hopes interested citizens and teen-agers will attend the meeting.

HE SAID OTHER members of his gang also deal in drugs and that the smaller group has wanted to control the business.

Harry Jenkins, Elk Grove Village police chief, said he is concerned about crime in the preserve threatening surrounding residential neighborhoods in the village.

He said he hopes the additional policemen can be used to patrol around the preserve.

"There is a chance that a major break-out could spill into the village," he said.

Both Hansen and Jenkins said rangers assigned to the preserve are not able to handle its problems.

But Jenkins said he has to tell worried residents who call that there is nothing the police department can do outside village limits except assist rangers when needed. The preserve is in Elk Grove Township.

BASED ON WHAT he knows about the preserve, Jenkins said, it is safe to assume that drugs were behind the dispute.

Hansen said he believes rangers should take the same training as regular Cook County sheriff's deputies. Although they attend the same academy, the training to become a ranger is less stringent, he said.

Four rangers were in the preserve when the fight broke out, but were unable to control it and called for help from at least 12 police departments. Three persons were arrested.

Whirlwind courtship ends in nuptials at Brookwood

MARITAL BLISS — Newlyweds Mary Rose, 69, and Sidney G. Powell, 59, kiss after their wedding at the Brookwood Health Care Center.

by SCOTT FOSDICK

Love strikes at the most unlikely places — even nursing homes.

That's where it struck Wednesday as Mary Rose Losch, 69, and Sidney G. Powell, 59, got married in a ceremony filled with tears, joy and smiles from a host of friends and nurses.

The happy couple met six weeks ago at the Brookwood Health Care Center, 2380 W. Dempster St., Des Plaines. Both say it was love at first sight.

"She came to me in the music room. She looked at me, I looked at her, and that was it," Powell said.

MARY ROSE SAID she was very surprised when Sid popped the question just a few weeks after they met, but added she didn't even stop to think of what to say.

"No, I knew it right away," she said.

The new Mrs. Powell has been married once before, so she approached the ceremony with a reserved, but sincere smile. But for Powell it was the first time he took the nuptial plunge, and he beamed with all the pride of a young groom.

"My mother always wanted me to get married before she died, but I never did," he said.

THE LAST FEW years since his mother died haven't been happy for Sidney Powell.

The former Mount Prospect postal worker was returning to his home in Des Plaines after work one evening last January when he was struck by a speeding auto. After three months in the hospital, Powell was told he would never recover enough to return to his old job.

Powell was a lonely, depressed man when he checked into the Brookwood Health Care Center in April. But all that changed when he met Mary Rose Losch.

"It gave him a reason to get well," said Rev. Larry Hilkemann, pastor of the Church of the Incarnation in Arlington Heights.

Rev. Hilkemann, who performed the ceremony, said he witnessed a dramatic change in Powell's attitude after he met his bride-to-be.

POWELL WAS THE very picture of marital bliss as he waited in the Regency Room of the health care center. Dressed in white shoes with a matching carnation in the lapel of his burgundy suit, Powell held hands with his fiancée and gazed wistfully into her eyes.

"You look so nice," she told him. "Thank you, you're wonderful," he murmured tearfully. "I'm marrying a beautiful girl."

Mary Rose virtually glowed in a gaff floral patterned dress with a large, white corsage pinned to the shoulder. And her glow didn't fade while she waited for Herbert H. Volberding, Powell's brother-in-law and the mayor of Des Plaines, to show up with the wedding rings.

VOLBERDING BREEZED in 20 minutes after the wedding was supposed to have started, and the smiles returned to several worried faces.

'Ghost' state workers given new jobs

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau
SPRINGFIELD — Three state employees, whom Gov. James R. Thompson ordered fired in mid-June because they had no apparent duties, have been given new state posts.

The three are David C. Canter and Martin C. Gorski both of Chicago, and Freddy C. Peavy of Oak Park. TWO OTHER campaign workers who held similar state posts also were offered other government jobs but declined to accept. They are Sandra L. Wexler and John Gaters, both of Chicago.

University of Illinois workers in payroll scandal — Page 15.

The five were originally put on the Illinois Dept. of Transportation payroll Jan. 17, one week after Thompson's inauguration. However, none actually worked for IDOT and instead were assigned to Thompson's Chicago governor's office in a practice known as "ghost" payroll.

THE PRACTICE was criticized by Thompson during his gubernatorial campaign and generally has been eliminated by the new administration, according to Thompson officials. The five ghost employees were paid more than $30,000 over the five-month period, although no documents existed to show they were being supervised or had regular duties. At least four weeks of pay for three of the employees was authorized by Schilling after the supervisor of the governor's Chicago office had refused to sign pay vouchers stating that the three had been working. The three still on the payroll insisted Wednesday that they all had been given assignments in January and denied they had been collecting salaries without working. GORSKI, 32, said he worked as the governor's liaison with the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, writing reports and attending meetings around the state. Gorski, who had worked on Thompson's finance operations during the campaign and for a consulting firm ment reorganization began his new developing a report on state government Wednesday at the IDOT. Dist. 1 office in Schaumburg. Peavy said he met with persons who wanted to have interviews with the governor at the first job. "I don't know why anyone would say I was not working," Peavy said. He now works at IDOT's Schaumburg

Woman charged in lover's murder

A Palatine woman was charged Wednesday with the murder of her 32-year-old lover. Shirley Biedrzycki, 40, was charged with the murder of Frederick E. Kurschner, a cross-country truck driver, after she walked into the Palatine police station at 1 a.m. with her 11-year-old son to report the shooting. Authorities said Kurschner's body was found on the porch of the small frame house the two shared at 552 N. Easy St. He had been shot six times in the chest with two weapons, .32 caliber and .38 caliber revolvers. POLICE REFUSED to give a motive for the slaying, but neighbors and Kurschner's mother said other love affairs might have been the cause.

"Fred said something once about catching Shirley seeing another man," said his mother, Betty Palm, 423 S. Taylor St., Oak Park. The two had lived together for about a year and a half, Mrs. Palm said, but "Shirley was always leaving — just walking out. "Fred told her a couple of weeks ago that the next time she left he'd throw out her clothes. Well, she did, and he threw the clothes out," Mrs. Palm said. Mrs. Biedrzycki is divorced, and Kurschner is seeking a divorce from his wife, Val, who lives in California, Mrs. Palm said. "HE WAS VERY sturdy and very strong," Mrs. Palm said. "He would be up early mornings and ready to work. He was the workingest fool who ever lived," she said. Employees at the Palatine Car Wash, 101 W. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, said they had known the couple and were surprised by the shooting. The car wash is near the Kurschner home. "As far as we could see, there was never any problem," said John W. Meeters, owner of the car wash and a friend of Kurschner. "He was gone a lot and might have been seeing people on the road," Meeters said. But Meeters disagreed with Mrs. Palm's accusations that Mrs. Biedrzycki was the killer. (Continued on Page 2)

THE SMALL HOUSE at 552 N. Easy St., Palatine, is allegedly shot and killed by his girl friend, Shirley Biedrzycki, 40. Police Wednesday did not disclose a motive for the killing.

Drug deals tied to gang fight

by PATRICK DOYLE

The 20 persons who attacked a gang of 80 persons with bats, knives, chains and B-B guns at the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Sunday night were trying to take over drug sales there, a gang member said Wednesday. The man, a member of the gang that was attacked, said he did not want to be identified because he feared retaliation. One hundred persons were involved in the fight, which lasted about 45 minutes before police could break it up. Cook County Comr. Carl Hansen

Wednesday called on forest preserve district officials to find out more about the incident and what can be done to avoid further fighting. "I WANT to find out if this is a one-shot deal or if these groups are continuing this over a longer period of time," Hansen said. Richard Sloan, chief ranger of the Cook County Forest Preserve District, said he did not know if drug dealing between rival gangs led to the melee. Two days before the fighting erupted, Michael Wynn, forest ranger, arrested four persons near Grove No.

6 in Busse Woods in the preserve, Sloan said. A man had identified them as the robbers who took an undisclosed amount of cash from him earlier in the day, Sloan said. The complainant was one of the 30 young persons who gathered at the forest preserve Sunday, Sloan said. The four accused robbers came into the forest preserve with 16 companions seeking revenge, he said.

"They went in to get him and they got him," he said. Sloan said he believes the complainant was one of those injured. Only two persons were hospitalized. ASKED IF DRUG dealing was behind the whole affair, Sloan said, "I can't verify it." But one gang member who was beaten by members of the smaller gang said, "I think they are trying to take over drug sales in the preserve." The men said he used to be active in dealing drugs in the forest preserve. "You wouldn't even imagine how much money goes through that woods," he said. "It's a flea market of drugs." Marijuana, hallucinogens and cocaine are a few of the drugs dealt in (Continued on Page 7)

'Taxes, utilities to drive area rent up by 10%'

Northwest suburban renters will pay up to 10 per cent more for apartments on new leases signed Oct. 1, a real estate management firm said Wednesday. Higher real estate taxes and increased utility bills are two major factors pushing rents up, said Marilyn McGee in the property management division of Baird & Warner, Arlington Heights. "Rent increases in the Northwest suburbs definitely should not exceed 10 per cent this fall," Ms. McGee said, explaining that some Chicago and north suburban rent increases may be higher. "We still have a surplus of apartments in the Northwest suburbs and it's a very competitive market," she said. BUT THE SURPLUS of apartments is expected to dry up in the next several years because new apartment construction is almost at a standstill, she said. "Most apartment owners and operators are working with a negative cash flow right now and the only new rental construction is government subsidized housing for low-income families," she said. "The (apartment) market in the Northwest suburbs is really going to tighten up in the next couple of years."

Most renters whose leases expire Oct. 1 already have received their new rents. Most management companies send out new leases three months before existing leases expire. Higher winter heating bills, combined with higher electric and water rates substantially increased costs for building owners last year and some city leases now include "escalator clauses" allowing landlords to increase rents in mid-year if they encounter extraordinary expenses. "WE (BAIRD & WARNER) haven't put in 'escalators' but it may be the wave of the future," Ms. McGee said. Hogan & Farwell/Marken Realty Group Wednesday said rent increases in Chicago and northern suburbs will increase 10 to 18 per cent Oct. 1. Renters in Evanston, Wilmette, Skokie and Lincolnwood are in for increases of 15 to 18 per cent, the firm said. Northside neighborhoods in Chicago have smaller rent increases, generally in the range of 10 to 14 per cent. Ms. McGee said there are fewer and fewer desirable apartments in Chicago and the north suburbs because of changing neighborhoods and the conversion of rental apartments to condominium apartments. The Northwest suburbs, where the majority of apartment buildings are newer, have not experienced massive condominium conversion.

CIA hired prostitutes for sex study: Turner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director Stansfield Turner Wednesday revealed that the spy agency operated a sexual behavior study in which agents paid prostitutes in New York and San Francisco and then spied on their activity through two-way bedroom mirrors. During an appearance before two Senate committees, Turner also gave investigators the names of 185 private researchers and 80 institutions that conducted "abhorrent" CIA mindcontrol experiments on human "guinea pigs" in the '50s and '60s. Under questioning, Turner disclosed the agency ran an apparent sexual behavior study called "Operation Midnight Climax" in New York and San Francisco "safe houses" rigged like fancy bordellos. In questioning by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., another witness, former CIA official John Gittinger said a CIA psychologist, he was trying to get information on different cultures and subcultures and the way their members reacted to drugs and handled sexual relations. But he said he had no direct knowledge of how the "safe house" operation was carried out. ANOTHER WITNESS, former CIA official Philip Goldman said he'd seen payment vouchers covering the purchase of red curtains and at least one two-way mirror for the "safe houses," but said he knew nothing more about it. Turner and the other ex-CIA official testified before a joint session of the Senate Intelligence Committee and a Senate Health Committee. "It is totally abhorrent to me to think of using humans as guinea pigs," Turner said. "There is no (such) experiment going on (now) in any way." In Senate testimony on the top-secret human behavior research, he disclosed new details of the CIA's Cold War era testing of drugs, electroshock, poisons, chemicals and germs on volunteers and unwitting subjects, including "criminal sexual psychopaths," in prisons, hospitals, colleges and elsewhere. Turner testified about some 8,000 pages of newly discovered documentary evidence on a behavioral control project code-named "MKULTRA." He said he will give Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell whatever materials he wants from the new evidence, for any investigation he may care to conduct. MKULTRA, Turner said, hit its peak between 1953 and 1964 when 149 covert research projects were conducted, "many of which appear to have some connection with research into behavioral modification, drug acquisition and testing or administering drugs surreptitiously."

STANSFIELD TURNER

"We are now in possession of the names of 185 nongovernment researchers and assistants who are identified in the recovered material dealing with the 149 sub-projects," he said. Other projects, he said, involved use of hypnosis, lie detectors and "aspects of magicians" are useful in covert operations, for example, surreptitious delivery of drug related materials."

Dist. 54 sets school information day

School Information Day in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 will be Aug. 23. On this day parents are requested to go to the school their children will attend in September.

Parents will receive information about the opening of school scheduled for Aug. 30, including class assignments, bus schedules, supply lists and student insurance applications.

Children may be registered for the Parent Paid Lunch Program on Aug. 23 at a cost of $35 per year for each of the first two children and half-price for a third child. Families with more than three children may register the rest of them free.

STUDENTS STAYING for lunch must bring their lunch from home and may buy milk at the school for $4.50 for the first part of the year at the elementary schools. Milk tickets will be sold at the junior high schools at a cost of 50 cents for 11 tickets.

Cost of student insurance is $3.50 for school time coverage and $18 for 24-hour coverage. Insurance is optional.

School Information Day hours will be from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 3:30 p.m. at all schools.

Parents of children who will be in kindergarten or fifth grade are reminded that children are required to have a physical examination before the first day of school. Completed exam forms may be turned in Aug. 23.

Rapp indicted by grand jury in extortion

by TONI GINETTI
Suspended Buffalo Grove village engineer Carl W. Rapp, was indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury for attempting to extort $5,000 from a developer.

Rapp, 34, had been arrested more than two months ago by FBI agents as he left a village board meeting moments after allegedly accepting the money from developer Louis P. Shassian, president of Wilmont Homes Inc., Deerfield.

The money was to be the first installment on a $100,000 payment Rapp allegedly demanded in exchange for speeding up zoning and plan approval of Shassian's Devonshire Unit One subdivision project at Mundelein and Busch roads.

RAPP, WHO ALSO is the director of community development, is charged with violating the Hobbs Act prohibiting extortion. Conviction on an extortion charge carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Rapp, 1170 Thompson Blvd., allegedly planned the shakedown several weeks before Shassian paid the $5,000 during the May 16 meeting of the village board.

Shassian earlier had complained to Rapp during a luncheon meeting about delays in getting approval for his project, a 10.2-acre, single-family home development. Rapp allegedly asked Shassian "what's it worth to you," then at a later meeting asked the developer for $100,000 in cash to influence the project's approval.

Drug deals tied to gang fighting

large quantities in the preserve, the man said.

HE SAID OTHER members of his gang also dealt in drugs and that the smaller group has wanted to control the business.

Harry Jenkins, Elk Grove Village police chief, said he is concerned about crime in the preserve threatening surrounding residential neighborhoods in the village.

He said he hopes the additional policemen can be used to patrol around the preserve.

"There is a chance that a major breakout could spill into the village," he said.

Both Hansen and Jenkins said rangers assigned to the preserve are not able to handle its problems.

But Jenkins said he has to tell worried residents who call that there is nothing the police department can do outside village limits except assist rangers when needed. The preserve is in Elk Grove Township.

BASED ON WHAT he knows about the preserve, Jenkins said, it is safe to assume that drugs were behind the dispute.

Hansen said he believes rangers should take the same training as regular Cook County sheriff's deputies. Although they attend the same academy, the training to become a ranger is less stringent, he said.

Four rangers were in the preserve when the fight broke out, but were unable to control it and called for help from at least 12 police departments. Three persons were arrested.

THE HERALD Thursday, August 4, 1977 Section I 7

Her son showed her importance of blood drives

Diane Mesh has a very personal reason for wanting to give blood: her son.

Although drugs keep 16-year-old Brad alive, blood has made his life worth living.

When doctors told the youth nearly two years ago that he had cancer, they said his form of leukemia was not difficult to control.

BUT THE chemotherapy, oral drugs and injections needed to do the job slowly reduced Brad from an active teenager to a boy too weak to walk upstairs. He had to cancel plans for his high school prom because he was too weak to attend.

A bed was taken downstairs from his room so he could be with his family during the many hours he had to rest. A wheelchair was bought for him.

Then, about three weeks ago, doctors gave him three pints of blood. It was like a shot of adrenalin.

"It was an instant improvement," his mother said. The color returned to his face even before the transfusions were completed. Before too long, he was running errands, water skiing and, this week, helping his parents drive to the Smokey Mountains and back.

AS SOON AS THEY return from their vacation, said Mrs. Mesh, 264 Cottonwood Dr., Elk Grove Village, she'll donate blood.

"I'd heard about blood drives," she said. "But I never gave them much thought before this."

When she told the hospital that Elk Grove Village takes part in a blood program operated by the North Suburban Blood Center, the transfusions were given quickly and without charge.

Her donation probably will help Elk Grove Village meet its yearly goal of getting donations from 4 per cent of residents.

'Ghost' state workers given new jobs

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau
SPRINGFIELD — Three state employees, whom Gov. James R. Thompson ordered fired in mid-June because they had no apparent duties, have been given new state posts.

The Herald has learned that the three, all of whom were active in Thompson's gubernatorial campaign, were retained on the state payroll after Thompson's director of operations, William Schilling, persuaded the governor to allow them to remain.

The three are David C. Canter and Martin C. Gorski both of Chicago, and Freddy C. Peavy of Oak Park.

TWO OTHER campaign workers who held similar state posts also were offered other government jobs but declined to accept. They are Sandra L. Wexler and John Gaters, both of Chicago.

Thompson said Wednesday his first impulse upon learning of the situation in June was to fire the five, but he said he did not like to "bounce" people.

THE PRACTICE was criticized by Thompson during his gubernatorial campaign and generally has been eliminated by the new administration, according to Thompson officials.

The five ghost employees were paid more than $30,000 over the five-month period, although no documents existed to show they were being supervised or had regular duties.

At least four weeks of pay for three of the employees was authorized by Schilling after the supervisor of the governor's Chicago office had refused to sign pay vouchers stating that the three had been working.

The three still on the payroll insisted Wednesday that they all had been given assignments in January and denied they had been collecting salaries without working.

GORSKI, 32, said he worked as the governor's liaison with the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, writing reports, and attending meetings around the state.

Gorski, who had worked on Thompson's finance operations during the campaign and for a consulting firm ment reorganization began his new developing a report on state government Wednesday at the IDOT. Dist. 1 office in Schaumburg.

Peavy said he met with persons who wanted to have interviews with the governor at the first job.

"I don't know why anyone would say I was not working," Peavy said. He now works at IDOT's Schaumburg

Woman charged in lover's murder

A Palatine woman was charged Wednesday with the murder of her 32-year-old lover.

Shirley Biedrzycki, 40, was charged with the murder of Frederick E. Kurschner, a cross-country truck driver, after she walked into the Palatine police station at 1 a.m. with her 11-year-old son to report the shooting.

Authorities said Kurschner's body was found on the porch of the small frame house the two shared at 552 N. Easy St. He had been shot six times in the chest with two weapons, .32 caliber and .38 caliber revolvers.

POLICE REFUSED to give a motive for the slaying, but neighbors and Kurschner's mother said other love affairs might have been the cause.

"Fred said something once about catching Shirley seeing another man," said his mother, Betty Palm, 423 S. Taylor St., Oak Park.

The two had lived together for about a year and a half, Mrs. Palm said, but "Shirley was always leaving — just walking out."

"Fred told her a couple of weeks ago that the next time she left he'd throw out her clothes. Well, she did, and he threw the clothes out," Mrs. Palm said.

Mrs. Biedrzycki is divorced, and Kurschner is seeking a divorce from his wife, Val, who lives in California, Mrs. Palm said.

"HE WAS VERY sturdy and very strong," Mrs. Palm said. "He would be up early mornings and ready to work. He was the workingest fool who ever lived," she said.

Employees at the Palatine Car Wash, 101 W. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, said they had known the couple and were surprised by the shooting. The car wash is near the Kurschner home.

"As far as we could see, there was never any problem," said John W. Meeters, owner of the car wash and a friend of Kurschner.

"He was gone a lot and might have been seeing people on the road," Meeters said.

But Meeters disagreed with Mrs. Palm's accusations that Mrs. Biedrzycki was the killer.

THE SMALL HOUSE at 552 N. Easy St., Palatine, is allegedly shot and killed by his girl friend, Shirley Biedrzycki, 40. Police Wednesday did not disclose a motive for the killing.

Rapp indicted in extortion

by TONI GINETTI
Suspended Buffalo Grove village engineer Carl W. Rapp, was indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury for attempting to extort $5,000 from a developer.

Rapp, 34, had been arrested more than two months ago by FBI agents as he left a village board meeting moments after allegedly accepting the money from developer Louis P. Shassian, president of Wilmont Homes Inc., Deerfield.

The money was to be the first installment on a $100,000 payment Rapp

allegedly demanded in exchange for speeding up zoning and plan approval of Shassian's Devonshire Unit One subdivision project at Mundelein and Busch roads.

RAPP, WHO ALSO is the director of community development, is charged with violating the Hobbs Act prohibiting extortion. Conviction on an extortion charge carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Rapp, 1170 Thompson Blvd., allegedly planned the shakedown several weeks before Shassian paid the $5,000 during the May 16 meeting of the village board.

Shassian earlier had complained to Rapp during a luncheon meeting about delays in getting approval for his project, a 19.2-acre, single-family home development. Rapp allegedly asked Shassian "what's it worth to you," then at a later meeting asked the developer for $100,000 in cash to influence the project's approval.

The amount later was cut to $50,000, with Shassian agreeing to pay the first $10,000 during the May 16 village board meeting.

SHASSIAN, however, went to federal authorities to report the incident. The FBI provided $4,000 of the $5,000 allegedly handed to Rapp during the board meeting and also wired Shassian with electronic monitoring devices to record the alleged payoff.

Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish suspended Rapp indefinitely following his arrest. Public Works Director Charles McCoy was named acting engineer and a consulting engineering firm was hired to review projects that had been approved during Rapp's tenure as engineer.

Rapp has had the post of village engineer since July, 1976.

'Taxes, utilities to drive area rent up by 10%'

Northwest suburban renters will pay up to 10 per cent more for apartments on new leases signed Oct. 1, a real estate management firm said Wednesday.

Higher real estate taxes and increased utility bills are two major factors pushing rents up, said Marilyn McGee in the property management division of Baird & Warner, Arlington Heights.

"Rent increases in the Northwest suburbs definitely should not exceed 10 per cent this fall," Ms. McGee said, explaining that some Chicago and north suburban rent increases may be higher.

"We still have a surplus of apartments in the Northwest suburbs and it's a very competitive market," she said.

BUT THE SURPLUS of apartments is expected to dry up in the next several years because new apartment construction is almost at a standstill, she said.

"Most apartment owners and operators are working with a negative cash flow right now and the only new rental construction is government subsidized housing for low-income families," she said.

"The (apartment) market in the Northwest suburbs is really going to tighten up in the next couple of years."

Most renters whose leases expire Oct. 1 already have received their new rents. Most management companies send out new leases three months before existing leases expire.

Higher winter heating bills, combined with higher electric and water rates substantially increased costs for building owners last year and some city leases now include "escalator clauses" allowing landlords to increase rents in mid-year if they encounter extraordinary expenses.

"WE (BAIRD & WARNER) haven't put in 'escalators' but it may be the wave of the future," Ms. McGee said.

Hogan & Farwell/Marken Realty Group Wednesday said rent increases in Chicago and northern suburbs will increase 10 to 18 per cent Oct. 1.

Renters in Evanston, Wilmette, Skokie and Lincolnwood are in for increases of 15 to 18 per cent, the firm said. Northside neighborhoods in Chicago have smaller rent increases, generally in the range of 10 to 14 per cent.

Ms. McGee said there are fewer and fewer desirable apartments in Chicago and the north suburbs because of changing neighborhoods and the conversion of rental apartments to condominium apartments.

The Northwest suburbs, where the majority of apartment buildings are newer, have not experienced massive condominium conversion.

CIA hired prostitutes for sex study: Turner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director Stansfield Turner Wednesday revealed that the spy agency operated a sexual behavior study in which agents paid prostitutes in New York and San Francisco and then spied on their activity through two-way bedroom mirrors.

During an appearance before two Senate committees, Turner also gave investigators the names of 185 private researchers and 90 institutions that conducted "abhorrent" CIA mind-control experiments on human "guinea pigs" in the '50s and '60s.

Under questioning, Turner disclosed the agency ran an apparent sexual behavior study called "Operation Midnight Climax" in New York and San Francisco "safe houses" rigged like fancy bordellos.

In questioning by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., another witness, former CIA official John Gittinger said a CIA psychologist, he was trying to get information on different cultures and subcultures and the way their members reacted to drugs and handled sexual relations. But he said he had no direct knowledge of how the "safe house" operation was carried out.

ANOTHER WITNESS, former CIA official Philip Goldman said he'd seen payment vouchers covering the purchase of red curtains and at least one two-way mirror for the "safe houses," but said he knew nothing more about it.

Turner and the other ex-CIA official testified before a joint session of the Senate Intelligence Committee and a Senate Health Committee.

"It is totally abhorrent to me to think of using humans as guinea pigs," Turner said. "There is no (such) experiment going on (now) in any way."

In Senate testimony on the top-secret human behavior research, he disclosed new details of the CIA's Cold War era testing of drugs, electroshock, poisons, chemicals, and germs on volunteers and unwitting subjects, including "criminal sexual psychopaths," in prisons, hospitals, colleges and elsewhere.

Turner testified about some 8,000 pages of newly discovered documentary evidence on a behavioral control project code-named "MKULTRA."

He said he will give Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell whatever materials he wants from the new evidence, for any investigation he may care to conduct.

MKULTRA, Turner said, hit its peak between 1963 and 1964 when 149 covert research projects were conducted, "many of which appear to have some connection with research into behavioral modification, drug acquisition and testing or administering drugs surreptitiously."

STANSFIELD TURNER

"We are now in possession of the names of 185 nongovernment researchers and assistants who are identified in the recovered material dealing with the 149 sub-projects," he said.

Other projects, he said, involved use of hypnosis, lie detectors and "aspects of magicians" are useful in covert operations, for example, surreptitious delivery of drug-related materials."

They fear end of true 'old' Schaumburg

by PAT GERLACH

A pair of brindled cows grazed lazily in the late morning sun, sometimes wandering toward the wire fence that separates their pasture from the dirt road called Lengel Street.

Five-year-old Jimmy Rodrian dropped his beach ball under a huge tree and bit deeply into the ripe apple he had just picked from a low branch, quickly wiping his mouth on his right sleeve.

And puffs of dust rose with every step aging Frank Winkelhake took as he rounded the bend where Quindel Lane turns south into Lengel Street.

HE STOPPED AND glanced to the west where automobiles could be heard braking for the stoplight at the busy intersection of Schaumburg and Roselle roads. He shook his head.

"I've lived on this road all my life," said Winkelhake, who would not tell his age.

He glanced around at the tall oaks, maples and pines lining the street and said, "I like it just this way. I hope they leave it this way in my lifetime anyway."

This is old Schaumburg, a tiny island of old homes and trees tucked away from the shopping centers and subdivisions.

Village officials hope it will become Old Schaumburg Centre, a half-mile square of turn-of-the-century architecture. And their plans call for Lengel Street to be the centerpiece, a Long Grove-style lane of quaint shops in old homes.

THAT PLAN IS NOT popular on Lengel Street.

"There are too many small shops in the neighborhood now and they're all dead. No good," Winkelhake said.

His neighbor, Hannah Lengel, whose husband the street was named for, agrees. "I'll just bring more people. We don't need them," she said, throwing her hands up.

HANNAH, WHO WITH her husband operated a tavern at Roselle Road and Quindel Lane for 45 years until a fire gutted the ancient brick building last year, fears that the notoriety the village's plan will bring to her street will attract vandals.

"Phooey! They talk about bringing antique shops and such in here. Who needs them? Antiques you want, go across the street where the stores are closing up one after the other," she said, her soft German accent rising with her temper.

Marion Ravagnie was born in the house across the street from the Winkelhake home. She has "mixed emotions" about the historic district plans.

"What they (the village) will do is push us right out. I've lived here all my life, 49 years, and I just don't know anywhere else," Mrs. Ravagnie said from behind the screened door of her neat farmhouse.

Mrs. Ravagnie and her brothers and sisters own 17 acres of the original 40-acre plot farmed by her parents, the Richard Gerschkes, who came to Schaumburg from Germany in 1918.

CINDY RODRIAN, who rents the house next door where Mrs. Ravagnie was born, says she would like to see the "old Schaumburg" remnants preserved.

"Everything around here is new," she said, looking to the south where 60 homes are being built. "I want to see some of the past preserved but I'm not so sure about the businesses and shops and everything."

But the neighbors agree. One thing they do not want is "trouble with the village."

"They are going to come in here and do what they want anyway," Mrs. Ravagnie said. "I don't care what they do with my farm once I'm gone, but in the meantime I've got to look out for my own welfare while I'm here."

Even the vocal Hannah Lengel is convinced the property owners will have "no say-so" when it comes to plans for the area.

BUT DEAN POLLOCK, associate village planner, said the residents are mistaken.

The historic district commission is planning a public hearing Aug. 25 to let property owners know what they are planning. "We want them to come and find out we are not forcing anything," Pollock said.

Pollock said commission members are studying an ordinance that would regulate new construction, rehabilitation and demolition in the area.

"New construction will be required to conform with the existing architecture in the area, that of the houses built before 1910, but we certainly can't tell someone what to do with an existing building," Pollock said.

He said the ordinance is being studied by the commission and has not been adopted by the village board. Pollock stressed that the commission "is an advisory board and the village board can either concur with its recommendations or deny them."

HANNAH LENGEL and a few other long-time Schaumburg residents are ready to shoo away strangers or village officials they fear will fill their quiet semi-rural brick with stores and offices. The village is considering a rustic shopping center in the Quindel-

Lengel-Illinois Avenue section of town tucked away near the busy Roselle-Schaumburg roads intersection.

Residents of the historic district area, Pollock said, will receive a letter notifying them of the public hearing at 7:30 p.m. in the village Civic Center, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct. "We hope these people will come out to the hearing. It should allay most of their fears," he said.

Meanwhile, Winkelhake hopes the officials will listen to his suggestion.

"One thing we need right here is a great big grocery store to sell us food and make money for the village," he said. "The politicians built everything so far away from us that we have to go all the way up to Golf Road to buy food."

LENGEL LANE today represents what all of Schaumburg was 30 years ago. Frank Winkelhake and others who live in the quiet, scenic area want to preserve their neighborhood from the commercial development being planned for an historic district called Old Schaumburg Centre.

Dist. 54 information day scheduled for Aug. 23

School Information Day in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 will be Aug. 23. On this day parents are requested to go to the school their children will attend in September.

Parents will receive information about the opening of school scheduled for Aug. 30, including class assignments, bus schedules, supply lists and student insurance applications.

Children may be registered for the Parent Paid Lunch Program on Aug. 23 at a cost of $35 per year for each of the first two children and half-price for a third child. Families with more than three children may register the rest of them free.

STUDENTS STAYING for lunch must bring their lunch from home and may buy milk at the school for $4.50 for the first part of the year at the elementary schools. Milk tickets will be sold at the junior high schools at a cost of 50 cents for 11 tickets.

Cost of student insurance is $3.50 for school time coverage and $18 for 24-hour coverage. Insurance is optional.

School Information Day hours will be from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 3:30 p.m. at all schools.

Parents of children who will be in kindergarten or fifth grade are reminded that children are required to have a physical examination before the first day of school. Completed exam forms may be turned in Aug. 23.

Drug sale takeover tied to Ned Brown fighting

by PATRICK DOYLE

The 20 persons who attacked a gang of 90 persons with bats, knives, chains and B-B guns at the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Sunday night were trying to take over drug sales there, a gang member said Wednesday.

The man, a member of the gang that was attacked, said he did not want to be identified because he feared retaliation. One hundred persons were involved in the fight, which lasted about 45 minutes before police could break it up.

Cook County Comr. Carl Hansen Wednesday called on forest preserve district officials to find out more about the incident and what can be done to avoid further fighting.

"I WANT to find out if this is a one-shot deal or if these groups are continuing this over a longer period of time," Hansen said.

Richard Sloan, chief ranger of the Cook County Forest Preserve District, said he did not know if drug dealing between rival gangs led to the melee.

Two days before the fighting erupted, Michael Wynn, forest ranger, arrested four persons near Grove No. 6 in Busse Woods in the preserve, Sloan said.

A man had identified them as the robbers who took an undisclosed amount of cash from him earlier in the day, Sloan said.

The complainant was one of the 90 young persons who gathered at the forest preserve Sunday, Sloan said. The four accused robbers came into the forest preserve with 16 companions seeking revenge, he said.

"They went in to get him and they got him," he said. Sloan said he believes the complainant was one of those injured. Only two persons were hospitalized.

ASKED IF DRUG dealing was behind the whole affair, Sloan said, "I can't verify it."

But one gang member who was beaten by members of the smaller gang said, "I think they are trying to take over drug sales in the preserve."

The men said he used to be active in dealing drugs in the forest preserve.

"You wouldn't even imagine how much money goes through that woods," he said. "It's a flea market of drugs."

Marijuana, hallucinogens and cocaine are a few of the drugs dealt in large quantities in the preserve, the man said.

HE SAID OTHER members of his gang also dealt in drugs and that the smaller group has wanted to control the business.

Harry Jenkins, Elk Grove Village police chief, said he is concerned about crime in the preserve threatening surrounding residential neighborhoods in the village.

He said he hopes the additional policemen can be used to patrol around the preserve.

"There is a chance that a major breakout could spill into the village," he said.

Both Hansen and Jenkins said rangers assigned to the preserve are not able to handle its problems.

But Jenkins said he has to tell worried residents who call that there is nothing the police department can do outside village limits except assist rangers when needed. The preserve is in Elk Grove Township.

BASED ON WHAT he knows about the preserve, Jenkins said, it is safe to assume that drugs were behind the dispute.

Hansen said he believes rangers should take the same training as regular Cook County sheriff's deputies. Although they attend the same academy, the training to become a ranger is less stringent, he said.

Four rangers were in the preserve when the fight broke out, but were unable to control it and called for help from at least 12 police departments. Three persons were arrested.

Parks plan vote on tax increase

Hoffman Estates Park District officials are planning to ask voters for a tax increase to pay for new equipment, facilities and park district operating expenses.

Officials are not specifying an amount for the proposed tax increase or when the referendum might be held. Included in their discussion is a proposal for a new youth center.

Park Board Pres. Gerald Lavey Wednesday said a referendum committee has been named to study funding of park facilities and the referendum proposal.

THE PARK DISTRICT tax rate presently is 32 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. This means a resident owning a home assessed at $10,000 pays $32 annually in park district taxes.

Comr. Charles Loveisky, referendum committee chairman, said the committee will have to evaluate the park district's financial situation before it can decide on a referendum figure.

Commissioners Diane Foley and

Thomas McGuire and several citizens also will serve on the committee.

Lavey has suggested the park district and village jointly sponsor the referendum. However, the proposal first would have to be approved by the village board and the park board.

NEITHER AGENCY has received a referendum proposal for review, park district officials said.

The youth center project is being studied by the park board's recreation committee and the Hoffman Estates Youth Commission. It will be a discussion item at Tuesday's recreation committee meeting.

Joel Finfer, chairman of the youth commission, said no definite plans for the center have been made.

This has been in the talking stages for a real long time," he said. "It's just more serious talking now."

FINFER SAID HE has turned over the job of planning the center to Park Director Allen Binder. But Finfer said he would like the center to include a multi-purpose gymnasium and a television game room.

Binder said students from Conant and Hoffman Estates high schools, who were surveyed for their ideas on the center, requested the youth facility be "their own place."

"Basically they're looking for a place that's separate from the high school," he said. "They'd like a lounge room, an active game area and an outside area."

Finfer said he does not know what such a center would cost or how large it would be.

ONE PROBLEM THE village faces is deciding where to locate the proposed building. The village is split into north and south halves by the Northwest Tollway, so a center on one side of town would be inconvenient for young people who live on the other side.

The problem so far has not been solved. "I think it will take a revelation from God," Finfer said.

'Ghost' state workers given new jobs

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau
SPRINGFIELD — Three state employees, whom Gov. James R. Thompson ordered fired in mid-June because they had no apparent duties, have been given new state posts.

The Herald has learned that the three, all of whom were active in Thompson's gubernatorial campaign, were retained on the state payroll after Thompson's director of operations, William Schilling, persuaded the governor to allow them to remain.

The three are David C. Canter and Martin C. Gorski both of Chicago, and Freddy C. Peavy of Oak Park.

TWO OTHER campaign workers who held similar state posts also were offered other government jobs but declined to accept. They are Sandra L. Wexler and John Gaters, both of Chicago.

THE PRACTICE was criticized by Thompson during his gubernatorial campaign and generally has been eliminated by the new administration, according to Thompson officials.

The three still on the payroll insisted Wednesday that they all had been given assignments in January and denied they had been collecting salaries without working.

GORSKI, 32, said he worked as the governor's liaison with the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, writing reports and attending meetings around the state.

Woman charged in lover's murder

A Palatine woman was charged Wednesday with the murder of her 32-year-old lover.

Shirley Biedrzycki, 40, was charged with the murder of Frederick E. Kurschner, a cross-country truck driver, after she walked into the Palatine police station at 1 a.m. with her 11-year-old son to report the shooting.

"Fred said something once about catching Shirley seeing another man," said his mother, Betty Palm, 423 S. Taylor St., Oak Park.

THE SMALL HOUSE at 552 N. Easy St., Palatine, is allegedly shot and killed by his girl-friend, Shirley Biedrzycki, 40. Police Wednesday did not disclose a motive for the killing.

Rapp indicted in extortion

This morning in The Herald

Bombs blow in N.Y.
Terrorist bombs set off by an underground Puerto Rican group exploded Wednesday at two office buildings in New York, forcing thousands to flee Manhattan's tallest skyscrapers. One person was killed and seven injured — Page 12

Phipps will start
Chicago Bear coach Jack Pardee, sticking with his game plan, said recent quarterback acquisition Mike Phipps will start against the New Orleans Saints Saturday night at Soldier Field in an exhibition game — Sect 2, Page 1

'Roots' leads Emmys
"Roots" captured 37 nominations Wednesday to lead all other shows in the 29th annual Emmy Awards race for television excellence during the 1976-77 season. "Eleanor and Franklin" received 16 nominations, the second highest, for a dramatization of the Roosevelt family — Page 16

Med student's debt
Howard White, 25, will finish Northwestern University Medical School next year up to his ears in debt. The source of the debt is Northwestern's tuition, which has climbed from $3,300 annually when White began to $6,855 for the coming school year — Page 14

Block parties
Some of the friendly small-town aspects of suburban life have disappeared, but here and there neighborhoods refuse to give up summer block parties. Some help preserve old ties and others introduce newcomers to the neighbors — Sect 6, Page 1

Heating up
Temperatures today will begin warming up to August standards under a 50-50 chance of thundershowers. Highs will be in the upper 80s with increased humidity. Friday should go even higher than that, again with a chance of rain — Page 2

by TONI GINETTI
Suspended Buffalo Grove village engineer Carl W. Rapp, was indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury for attempting to extort $5,000 from a developer.

Rapp, 34, had been arrested more than two months ago by FBI agents as he left a village board meeting moments after allegedly accepting the money from developer Louis P. Shassian, president of Wilmont Homes Inc., Deerfield.

'Taxes, utilities to drive area rent up by 10%

Northwest suburban renters will pay up to 10 per cent more for apartments on new leases signed Oct. 1, a real estate management firm said Wednesday.

Higher real estate taxes and increased utility bills are two major factors pushing rents up, said Marilyn McGee in the property management division of Baird & Warner, Arlington Heights.

"Rent increases in the Northwest suburbs definitely should not exceed 10 per cent this fall," Ms. McGee said, explaining that some Chicago and north suburban rent increases may be higher.

"We still have a surplus of apartments in the Northwest suburbs and it's a very competitive market," she said.

allegedly demanded in exchange for speeding up zoning and plan approval of Shassian's Devonshire Unit One subdivision project at Mundelein and Busch roads.

RAPP, WHO ALSO is the director of community development, is charged with violating the Hobbs Act prohibiting extortion. Conviction on an extortion charge carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

weeks before Shassian paid the $5,000 during the May 16 meeting of the village board.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director Stansfield Turner Wednesday revealed that the spy agency operated a sexual behavior study in which agents paid prostitutes in New York and San Francisco and then spied on their activity through two-way bedroom mirrors.

Residents' disgust with developer leads to protests

by RUTH MUGALIAN
"Builder misrepresents: Don't buy here," read the sign in front of the Meadow Edge townhouse in Rolling Meadows.

Another said: "Builder is all show and no go."

In all, four signs announced homeowners' disgust with builder Edward Zale in the 75-home townhouse development on the west edge of the city.

And all four signs mysteriously disappeared Tuesday afternoon after Zale agreed to meet with homeowners if the signs came down.

"I WISH I KNEW," said Pat Neubacher, when asked what happened to her sign. "I was gone for about two hours yesterday and when I came back, it was gone."

The signs were the latest expression of protest in what has been a year-and-a-half attempt by some homeowners to get Zale to address their grievances. Their next step was to have been picketing of the sales office.

Residents have written letters, made phone calls to Zale and refused to pay their $40 monthly maintenance fee.

One of the protesters, Diana Heier, who owes $120 of that fee, says she has never spoken to Zale and has never had an answer to two registered letters she sent him.

"The only letter he ever answered was the one saying we would picket if he didn't set up a meeting," she said.

ALTHOUGH ZALE did meet with the officers of the homeowners association Wednesday, Mrs. Heier says she may continue her protest.

"I don't know if I'll pay it," she said. "I'll have to talk it over with my husband and see how soon Zale does what he says he will. I know in the past he's said yes, yes, yes and never done anything. If it's the same old baloney, I'm not going to pay it."

Mrs. Heier's complaints include insufficient insulation in her home, landscaping that was not what was promised and shoddy maintenance.

"Another guy with the same model as hours punched a hole in his closet and there was no insulation. Our closet is over the garage and in the winter you can freeze meat in it," she said.

Mrs. Neubacher also complained about the landscaping.

"We finally did our own landscaping," she said. "It's included in the price of the home, but most people don't have it. We got tired of waiting."

THE PAINT ON the Neubacher's home is wearing off after one year.

"It was either diluted or not put on properly," Mrs. Neubacher said.

Linda Malis, secretary of the homeowners' association, said she felt the meeting with Zale was successful and that "we're making progress."

"Some of the little things he took care of right away," she said. "And on others he said he'd get back to us in a week or 10 days."

MRS. MALIS said she is sending a memo to the homeowners and asking them to contact Zale if they have insufficient insulation. She said Zale had paid for six inches of insulation and was unaware some residents had only two or three inches.

One of the demands of the homeowners is that Zale fire his landscaper. Mrs. Malis said that hasn't been resolved.

"I THINK THE TROUBLE is he (Zale) never walked the area; he only drove through," Mrs. Malis said. "He finally realized how bad it is. He felt he might have to keep the same landscaper through the fall."

Mrs. Malis said she didn't think holding back the maintenance fee was wise or effective, and that many residents didn't now the difference between Zale's responsibility and that of the maintenance company, Managers of Hinsdale.

"MR. ZALE NEVER even sees that money," she said. "It goes straight to Managers and they have nothing to do with original landscaping or some of these other complaints."

But Mrs. Heier feels her protest is effective.

"They said they're $2,000 short because people haven't been paying and Zale had to come up with the deficit," she said. "Maybe he'll get off his rear and do something about Managers."

She also said that when they take complaints to Zale, they are told to go to Managers and vice versa.

Mike O'Shea, of Managers, said he was surprised to hear about the complaints against the company.

"WE SAT DOWN with the homeowners two weeks ago and solidified everything and they seemed very happy," he said.

The $2,000 deficit was not due to a protest, he said, but to the fact that the fee varied according to whether the homeowner had partial or complete landscaping. He said this caused some confusion and a new fee schedule was sent out about 10 days ago. That, he said, will take care of the problem.

Zale could not be reached for comment Wednesday after repeated efforts to talk to him.

Several of the homeowners said Zale was concerned about publicity and responded only because of the threat of picketing and possible newspaper coverage.

"THE FALL FESTIVAL of Homes is coming up and we told him we'd picket," Mrs. Neubacher said. "I think that's the reason he finally agreed to meet."

Mrs. Neubacher and others said homeowners also are wary of publicity.

"I informed them that I contacted the newspaper," Mrs. Heier said. "Some of them are afraid their homes will depreciate in value."

Meadow Edge is a 60-acre, townhouse and single-family subdivision which opened in January 1975. The townhouses sell for between $50,000 and $75,000.

In October 1975, it won two awards from the Home Builders of Greater Chicago.

They don't want to lose charm of 'old' Schaumburg

by PAT GERLACH

A pair of brindled cows grazed lazily in the late morning sun, sometimes wandering toward the wire fence that separates their pasture from the dirt road called Lengel Street.

Five-year-old Jimmy Rodrian dropped his beach ball under a huge tree and bit deeply into the ripe apple he had just picked from a low branch, quickly wiping his mouth on his right sleeve.

And puffs of dust rose with every step aging Frank Winkelhake took as he rounded the bend where Quindel Lane turns south into Lengel Street.

HE STOPPED AND glanced to the west where automobiles could be heard braking for the stoplight at the busy intersection of Schaumburg and Roselle roads. He shook his head.

"I've lived on this road all my life," said Winkelhake, who would not tell his age.

He glanced around at the tall oaks, maples and pines lining the street and said, "I like it just this way. I hope they leave it this way in my lifetime anyway."

This is old Schaumburg, a tiny island of old homes and trees tucked away from the shopping centers and subdivisions.

Village officials hope it will become Old Schaumburg Centre, a half-mile square of turn-of-the-century architecture. And their plans call for Lengel Street to be the centerpiece, a Long Grove-style lane of quaint shops in old homes.

THAT PLAN IS NOT popular on Lengel Street.

"There are too many small shops in the neighborhood now and they're all dead. No good," Winkelhake said.

His neighbor, Hannah Lengel, whose husband the street was named for, agrees. "I'll just bring more people. We don't need them," she said, throwing her hands up.

HANNAH, WHO WITH her husband operated a tavern at Roselle Road and Quindel Lane for 45 years until a fire gutted the ancient brick building last year, fears that the notoriety the village's plan will bring to her street will attract vandals.

"Phooey! They talk about bringing antique shops and such in here. Who needs them? Antiques you want, go across the street where the stores are closing up one after the other," she said, her soft German accent rising with her temper.

Marion Ravagnie was born in the house across the street from the Winkelhake home. She has "mixed emotions" about the historic district plans.

"What they (the village) will do is push us right out. I've lived here all my life, 49 years, and I just don't know anywhere else," Mrs. Ravagnie said from behind the screened door of her neat farmhouse.

Mrs. Ravagnie and her brothers and sisters own 17 acres of the original 40-acre plot farmed by her parents, the Richard Gerschetskes, who came to Schaumburg from Germany in 1918.

CINDY RODRIAN, who rents the house next door where Mrs. Ravagnie was born, says she would like to see the "old Schaumburg" remnants preserved.

"Everything around here is new," she said, looking to the south where 60 homes are being built. "I want to see some of the past preserved but I'm not so sure about the businesses and shops and everything."

But the neighbors agree. One thing they do not want is "trouble with the village."

"They are going to come in here and do what they want anyway," Mrs. Ravagnie said. "I don't care what they do with my farm-ance I'm gone, but in the meantime I've got to look out for my own welfare while I'm here."

Even the vocal Hannah Lengel is convinced the property owners will have "no say-so" when it comes to plans for the area.

BUT DEAN POLLOCK, associate village planner, said the residents are mistaken.

The historic district commission is planning a public hearing Aug. 25 to let property owners know what they are planning. "We want them to come and find out we are not forcing anything," Pollock said.

Pollock said commission members are studying an ordinance that would regulate new construction, rehabilitation and demolition in the area.

"New construction will be required to conform with the existing architecture in the area, that of the houses built before 1910, but we certainly can't tell someone what to do with an existing building," Pollock said.

He said the ordinance is being studied by the commission and has not been adopted by the village board. Pollock stressed that the commission "is an advisory board and the village board can either concur with its recommendations or deny them."

Residents of the historic district area, Pollock said, will receive a letter notifying them of the public hearing at 7:30 p.m. in the village Civic Center, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct. "We hope these people will come out to the hearing. It should allay most of their fears," he said.

Meanwhile, Winkelhake hopes the officials will listen to his suggestion.

"One thing we need right here is a great big grocery store to sell us food and make money for the village," he said. "The politicians built everything so far away from us that we have to go all the way up to Golf Road to buy food."

HANNAH LENGEL and a few other longtime Schaumburg residents are ready to shoo away strangers or village officials they fear will fill their quiet semi-rural block with stores and offices. The village is considering a rustic shopping center in the Quindel-

Lengel-Illinois Avenue section of town tucked away near the busy Roselle-Schaumburg roads intersection.

Bill for garbage pickup is $2,900

by BILL HILL

A bill totaling $2,900 has been sent to the owner of an Arlington Heights house where garbage men Monday hauled away about 90 tons of trash.

The bill from the Laseke Disposal Co. to Aurelia Rau, 502 N. Arlington Heights Rd., includes charges of $1,386 for labor and $1,513 to dump the garbage.

The garbage was discovered Saturday when Cook County authorities evicted Shirley Bright, about 50, and her mother, Phoebe Mollenkamp, about 75, for not allowing Miss Rau in to fix a broken water pipe.

The whereabouts of the two women who lived in the rear of Miss Rau's two-story house were unknown.

THE ITEMIZED bill mailed Tuesday by Laseke charges for 136 man hours of labor and the dumping of two tons of trash and 295 cubic yards of compacted refuse.

This is equal to 12,200 of the standard 30-gallon garbage cans full of trash or two cans a week for 117 years, according to figures of Henry Laseke, president of Laseke Disposal Co., Arlington Heights.

Another rough estimate used by Laseke is that one gallon of garbage usually equals about one pound. Using that equation, the garbage hauled away Monday equaled 183,000 pounds, or 91.5 tons.

Although the bill for hauling the trash was sent to Miss Rau, the village may end up having to pay the charge and then put a lien on Miss Rau's property, Village Mgr. L.A. Hanson said Tuesday.

THE LIEN WOULD mean that a subsequent purchaser of the property would have to repay the village.

"The village is involved whether we like it or not. There was a health problem so we authorized Laseke to haul the garbage away," Hanson said. The lien could also involve the payment of water bills Hanson said, if Miss Rau is unable to pay the charges totaling nearly $1,000 because of the water pipe broken since January.

Miss Rau was unavailable for comment Tuesday, but her attorney, Stephen Jurco, said he does not expect her to file a suit for damages.

"A suit would have to be based on the possibility of recovery, and the likelihood of the tenants having any funds is very slim," Jurco said.

THE EVICTION proceedings which were begun in January, were not culminated until this week because authorities were unable to serve the court order on Mrs. Bright and her mother in previous attempts.

"They knew that eviction attempts were being made so they wouldn't answer the door and they concealed themselves," Jurco said.

One of the last persons to see the two women Saturday was Mike Raimondi, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center located in North School immediately south of Miss Rau's house.

"At first they were reluctant to talk to me. They felt their eviction was unjust," Raimondi said.

"THEY TOLD ME that they had legal counsel but no housing, so I went and called a social worker. When I went back they said they thought they had a place to go for the weekend," Raimondi said.

He has not heard from them since. The two women took only two shopping bags filled mostly with clothes, Raimondi said.

They left behind a house filled with garbage; newspapers dating as far back as 1962, old clothes, empty cereal boxes, empty vegetable cans, and milk cartons filled with urine and human excrement.

State fights Monoson's bid to dismiss charges

Cook county state's attorneys Wednesday objected to a motion seeking the dismissal of bribery and official misconduct charges against former Wheeling Trustee Gilbert Monoson.

David Cuprison, a spokesman for State's Atty. Bernard Carey, said the state filed a legal brief refuting a motion by Monoson's attorney, S. J. Micheletto, that the charges against the village official be dismissed because the evidence was improperly obtained.

The state also refuted a motion by Monoson's attorney, seeking to suppress a tape recording made July 22, 1976 in which Monoson allegedly makes a bribe offer to Wheeling businessman George Carpin.

Arguments on the motions will be heard Aug. 10 by Cook County Circuit Court Judge Warren Wolfson.

Monoson, 42 Berkshire Ln., Wheeling, who ran for village office in 1975 on a reform ticket, was indicted July 20, 1976, by a county grand jury. He is charged with three counts of bribery, one count of attempted bribery and four counts of official misconduct.

Monoson, who resigned from the board, pleaded not guilty to the charges.

THE CHARGES stem from Monoson's alleged offer to use his influence on the village board to obtain a zoning variation for Carpin, president of GEC Industries, 422 Mercantile Ct., Wheeling, in exchange for a $10,000 collateral loan. Carpin's factory did not meet village building codes.

Carpin in June 1976 asked the village board to grant a zoning variation so he would not have to install sprinklers or a fire wall in a recently completed addition to his building. The board denied the request and later told Carpin it would revoke his business license if the addition was not brought into compliance.

Carey said Monoson allegedly approached Carpin in July 1976 and offered to use his influence to obtain a zoning variation and occupancy permit for the company. Carpin reported in the incident to the state's attorney's office July 21, 1976, and was equipped with a recording device for a second meeting the next day when Monoson allegedly repeated his offer.

Drug sale takeover tied to Ned Brown fighting

by PATRICK DOYLE

The 20 persons who attacked a gang of 80 persons with bats, knives, chains and B-B guns at the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Sunday night were trying to take over drug sales there, a gang member said Wednesday.

The man, a member of the gang that was attacked, said he did not want to be identified because he feared retaliation. One hundred persons were involved in the fight, which lasted about 45 minutes before police could break it up.

Cook County Comr. Carl Hansen Wednesday called on forest preserve district officials to find out more about the incident and what can be done to avoid further fighting.

"I WANT TO find out if this is a one-shot deal or if these groups are continuing this over a longer period of time," Hansen said.

Richard Sloan, chief ranger of the Cook County Forest Preserve District, said he did not know if drug dealing between rival gangs led to the melee.

Two days before the fighting erupted, Michael Wynn, forest ranger, arrested four persons near Grove No. 6 in Busse Woods in the preserve, Sloan said.

A man had identified them as the robbers who took an undisclosed amount of cash from him earlier in the day, Sloan said.

The complainant was one of the 80 young persons who gathered at the forest preserve Sunday, Sloan said. The four accused robbers came into the forest preserve with 16 companions seeking revenge, he said.

"They went in to get him and they got him," he said. Sloan said he believes the complainant was one of those injured. Only two persons were hospitalized.

ASKED IF DRUG dealing was behind the whole affair, Sloan said, "I can't verify it."

But one gang member who was beaten by members of the smaller gang said, "I think they are trying to take over drug sales in the preserve."

The men said he used to be active in dealing drugs in the forest preserve.

"You wouldn't even imagine how much money goes through that woods," he said. "It's a flea market of drugs."

Marijuana, hallucinogens and cocaine are a few of the drugs dealt in large quantities in the preserve, the man said.

HE SAID OTHER members of his gang also dealt in drugs and that the smaller group has wanted to control the business.

Harry Jenkins, Elk Grove Village police chief, said he is concerned about crime in the preserve threatening surrounding residential neighborhoods in the village.

He said he hopes the additional policemen can be used to patrol around the preserve.

"There is a chance that a major breakout could spill into the village," he said.

Both Hansen and Jenkins said rangers assigned to the preserve are not able to handle its problems.

But Jenkins said he has to tell worried residents who call that there is nothing the police department can do outside village limits except assist rangers when needed. The preserve is in Elk Grove Township.

Hein, Evangel College; Curtis Anderson, Gregory Bubltz and Charmaine Novak, Western Illinois University; Kimberly Ann Garts, University of Iowa; John Pastor, MacMurray College.

Degrees were awarded to: Michael Caravello, Donald Buchholz, Donald Fiske, Leo Hoffman, Susan Jefferson, Sheila Scanlan and Pamela Spillios, University of Illinois-Champaign . . . Larry Pressl, Harvard University.

Completing requirements for master's degrees were: Catherine Cullen, Illinois State University; Jane Matthews, University of Illinois at Chicago Circle; James Baughman, North Texas State University.

Jim Mackin received a bachelor's degree with high honors from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, April 30.

BASED ON WHAT he knows about the preserve, Jenkins said, "it is safe to assume that drugs were behind the dispute."

Hansen said he believes rangers should take the same training as regular Cook County sheriff's deputies. Although they attend the same academy, the training to become a ranger is less stringent, he said.

Four rangers were in the preserve when the fight broke out, but were unable to control it and called for help from at least 12 police departments. Three persons were arrested.

6-week courtship ends at altar

by SCOTT FOSDICK

Love strikes at the most unlikely places — even nursing homes. That's where it struck Wednesday as Mary Rose Losch, 69, and Sidney G. Powell, 58, got married in a ceremony filled with tears, joy and smiles from a host of friends and nurses.

The happy couple met six weeks ago at the Brookwood Health Care Center, 2380 W. Dempster St., Des Plaines. Both say it was love at first sight.

"She came to me in the music room. She looked at me, I looked at her, and that was it," Powell said.

MARY ROSE SAID she was very surprised when Sid popped the question just a few weeks after they met, but added she didn't even stop to think of what to say.

"No, I knew it right away," she said.

The new Mrs. Powell has been married once before, so she approached the ceremony with a reserved, but sincere smile. But for Powell it was the first time he took the nuptial plunge, and he beamed with all the pride of a young groom.

"My mother always wanted me to get married before she died, but I never did," he said.

THE LAST FEW years since his mother died haven't been happy for Sidney Powell.

The former Mount Prospect postal worker was returning to his home in Des Plaines after work one evening last January when he was struck by a speeding auto. After three months in the hospital, Powell was told he would never recover enough to return to his old job.

Powell was a lonely, depressed man when he checked into the Brookwood Health Care Center in April. But all that changed when he met Mary Rose Losch.

"It gave him a reason to get well," said Rev. Larry Hilke, pastor of the Church of the Incarnation in Arlington Heights.

Rev. Hilke, who performed the ceremony, said he witnessed a dramatic change in Powell's attitude after he met his bride-to-be.

POWELL WAS THE very picture of marital bliss as he waited in the Regency Room of the health care center. Dressed in white shoes with a matching carnation in the lapel of his burgundy suit, Powell held hands with his fiancée and gazed wistfully into her eyes.

"You look so nice," she told him.

"Thank you, you're wonderful," he murmured tearfully. "I'm marrying a beautiful girl."

Mary Rose virtually glowed in a gaily floral patterned dress with a large, white corsage pinned to the shoulder. And her glow didn't fade while she waited for Herbert H. Volberding, Powell's brother-in-law and the mayor of Des Plaines, to show up with the wedding rings.

VOLBERDING BREEZED in 20 minutes after the wedding was supposed to have started, and the smiles returned to several worried faces.

It was a romantic wedding, capping a romantic, though brief, love affair.

"The Sidewalks of New York" tooted out of an antique concertina played by resident George Schwenne as the bride wheeled up the aisle in her wheelchair.

There won't be any trip to Niagara Falls for the elderly couple. They said they're just happy to be able to share the same room at the nursing home.

"We have our room all picked out, and we moved some things in last night," Powell said.

Have either of them had any second thoughts about getting married at this point in their lives?

"None whatsoever," Powell answered for them both. "Til death us do part!"

Crossing stalled by court appeal

The Chicago and North Western Ry. has filed an appeal of a court ruling that the Village of Arlington Heights does not have to compensate the railway for property taken for railroad crossings.

The appeal is expected to delay indefinitely the completion of a crossing at McKinley Avenue, which will link Northwest Highway and Davis Street.

Arlington Heights has finished its portion of the work at the McKinley Avenue crossing and traffic signals are now operating, but the railway company still needs to install the asphalt crossing and crossing gates.

"The intersection could be working if the railroad would do its part of the work," said William Bachem of the village's engineering department.

THE CROSSING IS considered important for emergency vehicles traveling north and south on the east side of Arlington Heights and from Mount Prospect. There now is no crossing between Central Road in Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights Road, a distance of about two miles.

The railway's appeal was filed Friday in the Illinois Appellate Court, said Stuart Gassner, attorney for the railway.

The dispute over right-of-way compensation began in 1971, 1½ years after the Illinois Commerce Commission ordered the railway company to install a crossing to connect Ridge and Walnut avenues. That crossing was finished last August after the village agreed to put the $16,500 demanded by North Western into an escrow account until the controversy was settled.

But the ICC has ruled that North Western does not have to complete the McKinley Avenue crossing until six months after a final court ruling on the right-of-way compensation issue.

THE RAILWAY COMPANY insists that it should be compensated by municipalities when railroad crossings are built because of the reduction in railway property, Gassner said.

Arlington Heights officials say that no payment should be required because the crossings are ordered by the ICC and that such compensation is not regularly part of grade-crossing agreements.

Gassner, however, said North Western has not had similar disputes with other municipalities. In most cases they are settled without even going through condemnation proceedings, he said.

Gassner estimated that arguments in the case will not be heard until October or November, with a ruling near the end of the year.

'Ghost' state workers given new jobs

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau
SPRINGFIELD — Three state employees, whom Gov. James R. Thompson ordered fired in mid-June because they had no apparent duties, have been given new state posts.

The Herald has learned that the three, all of whom were active in Thompson's gubernatorial campaign, were retained on the state payroll after Thompson's director of operations, William Schilling, persuaded the governor to allow them to remain.

The three are David C. Canter and Martin C. Gorski both of Chicago, and Freddy C. Peavy of Oak Park.

TWO OTHER campaign workers who held similar state posts also were offered other government jobs but declined to accept. They are Sandra L. Wexler and John Gaters, both of Chicago.

Thompson said Wednesday his first impulse upon learning of the situation in June was to fire the five, but he said he did not like to "bounce" people.

University of Illinois workers in payroll scandal — Page 15.

The five were originally put on the Illinois Dept. of Transportation payroll Jan. 17, one week after Thompson's inauguration.

However, none actually worked for IDOT and instead were assigned to Thompson's Chicago governor's office in a practice known as "ghost" payroll.

THE PRACTICE was criticized by Thompson during his gubernatorial campaign and generally has been eliminated by the new administration, according to Thompson officials.

The five ghost employees were paid more than $30,000 over the five-month period, although no documents existed to show they were being supervised or had regular duties.

At least four weeks of pay for three of the employees was authorized by Schilling after the supervisor of the governor's Chicago office had refused to sign pay vouchers stating that the three had been working.

The three still on the payroll insisted Wednesday that they all had been given assignments in January and denied they had been collecting salaries without working.

GORSKI, 32, said he worked as the governor's liaison with the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, writing reports and attending meetings around the state.

Gorski, who had worked on Thompson's son's finance operations during the campaign and for a consulting firm reorganization began his new developing a report on state government Wednesday at the IDOT. Dist. 1 office in Schaumburg.

Peavy said he met with persons who wanted to have interviews with the governor at the first job.

"I don't know why anyone would say I was not working," Peavy said. He now works at IDOT's Schaumburg

Woman charged in lover's murder

A Palatine woman was charged Wednesday with the murder of her 32-year-old lover.

Shirley Biedrzycki, 40, was charged with the murder of Frederick E. Kurschner, a cross-country truck driver, after she walked into the Palatine police station at 1 a.m. with her 11-year-old son to report the shooting.

Authorities said Kurschner's body was found on the porch of the small frame house the two shared at 552 N. Easy St. He had been shot six times in the chest with two weapons, .32 caliber and .38 caliber revolvers.

POLICE REFUSED to give a motive for the slaying, but neighbors and Kurschner's mother said other love affairs might have been the cause.

"Fred said something once about catching Shirley seeing another man," said his mother, Betty Palm, 423 S. Taylor St., Oak Park.

The two had lived together for about a year and a half, Mrs. Palm said, but "Shirley was always leaving — just walking out."

"Fred told her a couple of weeks ago that the next time she left he'd throw out her clothes. Well, she did, and he threw the clothes out," Mrs. Palm said.

Mrs. Biedrzycki is divorced, and Kurschner is seeking a divorce from his wife, Val, who lives in California, Mrs. Palm said.

"HE WAS VERY sturdy and very strong," Mrs. Palm said. "He would be up early mornings and ready to work. He was the workingest fool who ever lived," she said.

Employees at the Palatine Car Wash, 101 W. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, said they had known the couple and were surprised by the shooting. The car wash is near the Kurschner home.

"As far as we could see, there was never any problem," said John W. Meeters, owner of the car wash and a friend of Kurschner.

"He was gone a lot and might have been seeing people on the road," Meeters said.

But Meeters disagreed with Mrs. Palm's accusations that Mrs.

Rapp indicted in extortion

by TONI GINETTI
Suspended Buffalo Grove village engineer Carl W. Rapp, was indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury for attempting to extort $5,000 from a developer.

Rapp, 34, had been arrested more than two months ago by FBI agents as he left a village board meeting moments after allegedly accepting the money from developer Louis P. Shassian, president of Wilmont Homes Inc., Deerfield.

The money was to be the first installment on a $100,000 payment Rapp

allegedly demanded in exchange for speeding up zoning and plan approval of Shassian's Devonshire Unit One subdivision project at Mundelein and Busch roads.

RAPP, WHO ALSO is the director of community development, is charged with violating the Hobbs Act prohibiting extortion. Conviction on an extortion charge carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Rapp, 1170 Thompson Blvd., allegedly planned the shakedown several weeks before Shassian paid the $5,000 during the May 16 meeting of the village board.

Shassian earlier had complained to Rapp during a luncheon meeting about delays in getting approval for his project, a 18.2-acre, single-family home development. Rapp allegedly asked Shassian "what's it worth to you," then at a later meeting asked the developer for $100,000 in cash to influence the project's approval.

The amount later was cut to $50,000, with Shassian agreeing to pay the first $10,000 during the May 16 village board meeting.

SHASSIAN, however, went to federal authorities to report the incident. The FBI provided $4,000 of the $5,000 allegedly handed to Rapp during the board meeting and also wired Shassian with electronic monitoring devices to record the alleged payoff.

Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish suspended Rapp indefinitely following his arrest. Public Works Director Charles McCoy was named acting engineer and a consulting engineering firm was hired to review projects that had been approved during Rapp's tenure as engineer.

Rapp has had the post of village engineer since July, 1976.

'Taxes, utilities to drive area rent up by 10%

Northwest suburban renters will pay up to 10 per cent more for apartments on new leases signed Oct. 1, a real estate management firm said Wednesday.

Higher real estate taxes and increased utility bills are two major factors pushing rents up, said Marilyn McGee, in the property management division of Baird & Warner, Arlington Heights.

"Rent increases in the Northwest suburbs definitely should not exceed 10 per cent this fall," Ms. McGee said, explaining that some Chicago and north suburban rent increases may be higher.

"We still have a surplus of apartments in the Northwest suburbs and it's a very competitive market," she said.

BUT THE SURPLUS of apartments is expected to dry up in the next several years because new apartment construction is almost at a standstill, she said.

"Most apartment owners and operators are working with a negative cash flow right now and the only new rental construction is government subsidized housing for low-income families," she said.

"The (apartment) market in the Northwest suburbs is really going to tighten up in the next couple of years."

Most renters whose leases expire Oct. 1 already have received their new rents. Most management companies send out new leases three months before existing leases expire.

Higher winter heating bills, combined with higher electric and water rates substantially increased costs for building owners last year and some city leases now include "escalator clauses" allowing landlords to increase rents in mid-year if they encounter extraordinary expenses.

"WE (BAIRD & WARNER) haven't put in 'escalators' but it may be the wave of the future," Ms. McGee said.

Hogan & Farwell/Marken Realty Group Wednesday said rent increases in Chicago and northern suburbs will increase 10 to 18 per cent Oct. 1.

Renters in Evanston, Wilmette, Skokie and Lincolnwood are in for increases of 15 to 18 per cent, the firm said. Northside neighborhoods in Chicago have smaller rent increases, generally in the range of 10 to 14 per cent.

Ms. McGee said there are fewer and fewer desirable apartments in Chicago and the north suburbs because of changing neighborhoods and the conversion of rental apartments to condominium apartments.

The Northwest suburbs, where the majority of apartment buildings are newer, have not experienced massive condominium conversion.

CIA hired prostitutes for sex study: Turner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director Stansfield Turner Wednesday revealed that the spy agency operated a sexual behavior study in which agents paid prostitutes in New York and San Francisco and then spied on their activity through two-way bedroom mirrors.

During an appearance before two Senate committees, Turner also gave investigators the names of 185 private researchers and 80 institutions that conducted "abhorrent" CIA mindcontrol experiments on human "guinea pigs" in the '50s and '60s.

Under questioning, Turner disclosed the agency ran an apparent sexual behavior study called "Operation Midnight Climax" in New York and San Francisco "safe houses" rigged like fancy bordellos.

In questioning by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., another witness, former CIA official John Gittinger said a CIA psychologist, he was trying to get information on different cultures and subcultures and the way their members reacted to drugs and handled sexual relations. But he said he had no direct knowledge of how the "safe house" operation was carried out.

ANOTHER WITNESS, former CIA official Philip Goldman said he'd seen payment vouchers covering the purchase of red curtains and at least one two-way mirror for the "safe houses," but said he knew nothing more about it.

Turner and the other ex-CIA official testified before a joint session of the Senate Intelligence Committee and a Senate Health Committee.

"It is totally abhorrent to me to think of using humans as guinea pigs," Turner said. "There is no (such) experiment going on (now) in any way."

In Senate testimony on the top-secret human behavior research, he disclosed new details of the CIA's Cold War era testing of drugs, electroshock, poisons, chemicals and germs on volunteers and unwitting subjects, including "criminal sexual psychopaths," in prisons, hospitals, colleges and elsewhere.

Turner testified about some 8,000 pages of newly discovered documentary evidence on a behavioral control project code-named "MKULTRA."

He said he will give Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell whatever materials he wants from the new evidence, for any investigation he may care to conduct.

MKULTRA, Turner said, hit its peak between 1953 and 1964 when 149 covert research projects were conducted, "many of which appear to have some connection with research into behavioral modification, drug acquisition and testing or administering drugs surreptitiously."

STANSFIELD TURNER

"We are now in possession of the names of 185 nongovernment researchers and assistants who are identified in the recovered material dealing with the 149 sub-projects," he said.

Other projects, he said, involved use of hypnosis, lie detectors and "aspects of magicians" are useful in covert operations, for example, surreptitious delivery of drug-related materials."

Ecology-minded kids clean up their summer activities

by PAUL GORES

If water flows a little more freely through the culvert at Partridge Park or the landscape at Crabtree Nature Center looks a little neater this summer, give the credit to Palatine's Youth Conservation Corps.

Those are two of the projects worked on this summer by the group of about 15 Palatine teen-agers.

The job program is run by the Palatine Park District through an $11,000 grant from the Illinois Dept. of Conservation. It includes six hours of environment-related work each week-day and about two hours of environmental studies or projects. The youths are paid for eight hours.

"EVERY PROJECT is ecology-oriented," said Mary Sue Teresi, a Barat College student who directs the job program along with Harry Craig, 76. "We basically wanted to get these kids aware of the environment and let them earn some money at the same time."

Beside the nature center tree-clearing and building of an erosion wall at the culvert in Partridge Park, the teen-agers have improved a trail and constructed a bridge at Camp Reinberg in Palatine Township, improved a trail at Palatine Hills Golf Course and cleared a stream.

The teen-agers meet at 8 a.m. at the Palatine Park District office each weekday. From there they are taken to their project site in a van and usually are picked up around 2 p.m. for about two hours of environmental training.

The training has included a visit to a seedling forest, films, lectures, a trip to a sewage treatment plant in Mundelein and a mock town board meeting dealing with an environmental problem.

"INSTEAD OF just learning by a book we wanted to try things that were more interesting," Mrs. Teresi said.

The teen-agers participating in the six-week program were selected randomly and were hired without interviews.

Mrs. Teresi said the youths have learned to work well together after overcoming some apprehension when the program began. There were rivalries between students who attended Fremd and Palatine high schools, one student said.

"Now everyone gets along real well," Maryanne Jobst, 15, said. "I've learned a lot about nature and stuff."

MISS JOBST said the only thing she didn't like about the job is that "you have to work on the hot days in the sun."

George Stillwell, 15, said the job "is great" and that "Mary Sue is the best boss I've ever seen." Stillwell said he is "learning a lot" in comparison to what he might normally do in the summer — "Nothing, just bum around."

"It's excellent," John Kolkner, 15, said. "It's better than working in a restaurant."

INSTALLING AN EROSION wall along a culvert is no light task, but it's all in a day's work for the Youth Conservation Corps. The youth job program gives teen-agers a chance to learn about the environment while they earn some money.

Middle-of-road crosswalk riles parents

by LUISA GINETTI

Cross at corners and look both ways. It's a safety rule school children learn at an early age.

But students at Lake School in Palatine this fall will have to "unlearn" that rule because of a decision this week to place a new school crosswalk on Rohlfing Road between Mill Valley and Carpenter drives.

The crosswalk plan has received the support of the school PTA, the Palatine Township Dist. 15 Board of Education and Palatine Police. However, the plan is unacceptable to residents of the 900 block of Rohlfing Road across the street from the school, who say crossing in the middle of the block is dangerous.

"It's a terrible plan," Dan Dzielwski, 328 N. Rohlfing Rd., said. "It's not in the best interest of the safety of the kids to be crossing in the middle of the block."

THE PLAN APPROVED by the village board calls for a sidewalk to be installed on the parkway in front of Dzielwski's home. Children will be able to cross from the west to the east side of Rohlfing Road directly in front of the school. An adult crossing guard also will be stationed at the crosswalk.

Dzielwski said residents initially considered seeking an injunction against the village to stop construction of the crosswalk and sidewalk but have since decided to wait and see how the situation works after school opens later this month.

He said he is not upset about the prospects of children crossing his lawn. "I live across the street from a school and you expect that." But he is concerned about the hazard of crossing in the middle of the block because of the increased traffic expected on Rohlfing Road this fall when the new Palatine High School, 1111 N. Rohlfing Rd., opens.

"The traffic pattern on Rohlfing has not been established and if the village really is concerned, they should reroute the high school traffic around that block," he said.

DZIEWULSKI AND 35 of his neighbors who signed a petition urging the village board to reject the mid-block crossing plan would prefer children cross at Mill Valley Drive to the north of the school or Carpenter Drive to the south of the school where there is a stop on Rohlfing Road.

He said children until now have been crossing safely at the two intersections with only student crossing guards.

Police officials, however, rejected the Carpenter-Mill Valley Plan because they contend children will not walk north to Mill Valley or south to Carpenter to cross but will instead cross in front of the school even if there is no crossing guard.

Village and school officials have been working on a crossing plan for the school for three months ever since the school district requested and received approval from the village for an adult crossing guard at the school.

The village pays for crossing guards at all schools.

THE SCHOOL DISTRICT requested an adult crossing guard for Virginia Lake School because of the increased traffic anticipated on Rohlfing Road this fall when the new high school opens.

Because only one crossing guard was approved for the school, police said placing the crosswalk in the middle of the block with the crossing guard is the best workable plan.

In addition, no parking, standing or stopping will be allowed on the west side of Rohlfing Road across from

Next Teamster move up to employees

Teamster officials will meet within the next two weeks with Palatine patrolmen and public works employees to decide what steps should be taken next in the union's effort to gain recognition from the village board.

William Hogan, president of Local 714, said Wednesday neither patrolmen nor public works employees want to take "radical" steps such as a strike, but neither do they want to abandon their unionizing effort.

"We told them at the start that it would be a long, drawn-out process, but we're not giving up on them," Hogan said. "We're trying to get a meeting with both the police and public works people to see where they want to go."

HOGAN SAID THE meeting will be in Palatine and will take place late next week or early the following week.

"We don't want to force the issue because someone may get fired and we don't want that to happen. But they (the employees) have told us they want to stay with it," Hogan said.

"We will leave the decision up to them," he said. "They are the union. We are only the leaders and we told them we're here to do what they want us to do."

The village board has rejected the Teamsters' bid for recognition on behalf of the patrolmen and public works employees. The board also has refused to meet with union officials and will not answer questions posed to it by union leaders.

TEAMSTERS LAST month distributed more than 12,000 leaflets throughout the village, asking residents to support their efforts. Hogan said he is pleased with the results of the leafletting and said the general response to it has been good.

"We're still getting feedback from the flyer and, over-all, I think it was received well," Hogan said.

He said the union's next move will be determined by what the employees want to do. Hogan has said the union will not condone a strike or work stoppage by employees.

'Misunderstanding' of sewer plan

"A lot of misunderstanding" led homeowners to attend a Palatine Township committee meeting this week to protest a possible sewer hookup between Lake Park Estates and the area north of the subdivision.

Last week the township sent letters to homeowners living in the unincorporated area between Bayer Drive and Dundee Road, asking if they would like to hook into the Lake Park Estates sewer system.

The letter was meant to gauge interest in the hookup, but was not a formal proposal as several residents thought, said Donald Bellm, chairman of the township's planning, zoning and communications committee.

"THERE WAS a lot of misunderstanding about what we were trying to do," Bellm said of Monday's meeting.

The letter was sent to residents after the township learned that the owner of the Forest View Restaurant, Dundee and Quentin roads, and officials of Holy Resurrection Orthodox Church, 1490 N. Quentin Rd., are interested in hooking up with the Lake Park sewer system.

Bellm said he thought it would be a good time to find out if other residents between Dundee Road and the subdivision want to join the Lake Park system.

Bellm said one of the misunderstandings was about the size of the main that would connect the two residential areas. The owner of the restaurant had proposed installation of a two-inch main which would service only the restaurant.

"SOME THOUGHT we wanted to hook them up with a two-inch main," Bellm said of the protesters.

Bellm explained that if the two areas were joined, the main would be much larger than the one originally proposed by the restaurant.

"I think we answered a lot of their questions," Bellm said. "There may even be some who initially were strongly opposed to it who will want to join."

The costs of connecting and maintaining the sewers are not yet clear, Bellm said. He said more detailed information will be available when the committee meets Aug. 15.

Lake Park Estates has the only sewer system under township jurisdiction. Most homes in the unincorporated area operate on septic systems.

Rand-Long Grove roads crossing to get signals

Traffic signals will be installed at the intersection of Rand and Long Grove roads by January, said a spokesman for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

John Burke of IDOT said the state has awarded the contract for the traffic signals to Contracting and Material Co., Wheeling. The firm offered to install the signals for $27,945, nearly $11,000 less than the estimated cost of traffic lights for the three-way intersection.

The Palatine Township Road and Bridge District will be required to pay one-third, or $9,315 of the cost.

Last September, IDOT offered to fund part of the cost for signals after surveying traffic at the intersection.

Initial estimates for the project were set by IDOT at from $55,000 to $60,000.

Burke said IDOT "just got a good bid" on the project. He said the earliest that work could begin on the lights is November.

Local scene

Church concert Aug. 14

Holy Resurrection Orthodox Church, Palatine, will sponsor a performance Aug. 14 by Octet '77, a choir from St. Vladimir's Orthodox Theological Seminary, Crestwood, N.Y.

The performance will be at 6 p.m. at Prospect High School, 801 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect. The performance will include a concert of liturgical and folk music.

A buffet supper will be served after the concert.

Drug sale takeover tied to Ned Brown fighting

by PATRICK DOYLE

The 20 persons who attacked a gang of 80 persons with bats, knives, chains and B-B guns at the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Sunday night were trying to take over drug sales there, a gang member said Wednesday.

The man, a member of the gang that was attacked, said he did not want to be identified because he feared retaliation. One hundred persons were involved in the fight, which lasted about 45 minutes before police could break it up.

Cook County Comr. Carl Hansen Wednesday called on forest preserve district officials to find out more about the incident and what can be done to avoid further fighting.

"I WANT TO find out if this is a one-shot deal or if these groups are continuing this over a longer period of time," Hansen said.

Richard Sloan, chief ranger of the Cook County Forest Preserve District, said he did not know if drug dealing between rival gangs led to the melee.

Two days before the fighting erupted, Michael Wynn, forest ranger, arrested four persons near Grove No. 6 in Busse Woods in the preserve, Sloan said.

A man had identified them as the robbers who took an undisclosed amount of cash from him earlier in the day, Sloan said.

The complainant was one of the 80 young persons who gathered at the forest preserve Sunday, Sloan said. The four accused robbers came into the forest preserve with 16 companions seeking revenge, he said.

"They went in to get him and they got him," he said. Sloan said he believes the complainant was one of those injured. Only two persons were hospitalized.

ASKED IF DRUG dealing was behind the whole affair, Sloan said, "I can't verify it."

But one gang member who was beaten by members of the smaller gang said, "I think they are trying to take over drug sales in the preserve."

The men said he used to be active in dealing drugs in the forest preserve.

"You wouldn't even imagine how much money goes through that woods," he said. "It's a flea market of drugs."

Marijuana, hallucinogens and cocaine are a few of the drugs dealt in large quantities in the preserve, the man said.

HE SAID OTHER members of his gang also dealt in drugs and that the smaller group has wanted to control the business.

Harry Jenkins, Elk Grove Village police chief, said he is concerned about crime in the preserve threatening surrounding residential neighborhoods in the village.

He said he hopes the additional policemen can be used to patrol around the preserve.

"There is a chance that a major breakout could spill into the village," he said.

Both Hansen and Jenkins said rangers assigned to the preserve are not able to handle its problems.

But Jenkins said he has to tell worried residents who call that there is nothing the police department can do outside village limits except assist rangers when needed. The preserve is in Elk Grove Township.

BASED ON WHAT he knows about the preserve, Jenkins said, it is safe to assume that drugs were behind the dispute.

Hansen said he believes rangers should take the same training as regular Cook County sheriff's deputies. Although they attend the same academy, the training to become a ranger is less stringent, he said.

Four rangers were in the preserve when the fight broke out, but were unable to control it and called for help from at least 12 police departments. Three persons were arrested.

Boy meets girl...girl likes boy... 6-week courtship ends at altar

by SCOTT FOSDICK

Love strikes at the most unlikely places — even nursing homes.

That's where it struck Wednesday as Mary Rose Loech, 69, and Sidney G. Powell, 58, got married in a ceremony filled with tears, joy and smiles from a host of friends and nurses.

The happy couple met six weeks ago at the Brookwood Health Care Center, 2380 W. Dempster St., Des Plaines. Both say it was love at first sight.

"She came to me in the music room. She looked at me, I looked at her, and that was it," Powell said.

MARY ROSE SAID she was very surprised when Sid popped the question just a few weeks after they met, but added she didn't even stop to think of what to say.

"No, I knew it right away," she said.

The new Mrs. Powell has been married once before, so she approached the ceremony with a reserved, but sincere smile. But for Powell it was the first time he took the nuptial plunge, and he beamed with all the pride of a young groom.

"My mother always wanted me to get married before she died, but I never did," he said.

THE LAST FEW years since his mother died haven't been happy for Sidney Powell.

The former Mount Prospect postal worker was returning to his home in Des Plaines after work one evening last January when he was struck by a speeding auto. After three months in the hospital, Powell was told he would never recover enough to return to his old job.

Powell was a lonely, depressed man when he checked into the Brookwood Health Care Center in April. But all that changed when he met Mary Rose Loech.

"It gave him a reason to get well," said Rev. Larry Hilkemann, pastor of the Church of the Incarnation in Arlington Heights.

Rev. Hilkemann, who performed the ceremony, said he witnessed a dramatic change in Powell's attitude after he met his bride-to-be.

"I'm grateful to see the power that love and caring have. It's changed Sid's life... It gave him a reason to get well," he said.

POWELL WAS THE very picture of marital bliss as he waited in the Regency Room of the health care center. Dressed in white shoes with a matching canation in the lapel of his burgundy suit, Powell held hands with his fiancée and gazed wistfully into her eyes.

"You look so nice," she told him. "Thank you, you're wonderful," he murmured tearfully. "I'm marrying a beautiful girl."

Mary Rose virtually glowed in a garb floral patterned dress with a large, white corsage pinned to the shoulder. And her glow didn't fade while she waited for Herbert H. Volberding, Powell's brother-in-law and the mayor of Des Plaines, to show up with the wedding rings.

VOLBERDING BREEZED in 20 minutes after the wedding was supposed to have started, and the smiles returned to several worried faces.

It was a romantic wedding, capping a romantic, though brief, love affair.

"The Sidewalks of New York" tooled out of an antique concertina played by resident George Schwemmen as the bride wheeled up the aisle in her wheelchair.

There won't be any trip to Niagara Falls for the elderly couple. They said they're just happy to be able to share the same room at the nursing home.

"We have our room all picked out, and we moved some things in last night," Powell said.

Have either of them had any second thoughts about getting married at this point in their lives?

"None whatsoever," Powell answered for them both. "Til death us do part!"

State objects to Monoson bid for dismissal

Cook county state's attorneys Wednesday objected to a motion seeking the dismissal of bribery and official misconduct charges against former Wheeling Trustee Gilbert Monoson.

David Cuprison, a spokesman for State's Atty. Bernard Carey, said the state filed a legal brief refuting a motion by Monoson's attorney, S. J. Micheletto, that the charges against the village official be dismissed because the evidence was improperly obtained.

The state also refuted a motion by Monoson's attorney, seeking to suppress a tape recording made July 22, 1976 in which Monoson allegedly makes a bribe offer to Wheeling businessman George Carpin.

Arguments on the motions will be heard Aug. 10 by Cook County Circuit Court Judge Warren Wolfson.

Monoson, 42 Berkshire Ln., Wheeling, who ran for village office in 1975 on a reform ticket, was indicted July 29, 1976, by a county grand jury. He is charged with three counts of bribery, one count of attempted bribery and four counts of official misconduct. Monoson, who resigned from the board, pleaded not guilty to the charges.

THE CHARGES stem from Monoson's alleged offer to use his influence on the village board to obtain a zoning variation for Carpin, president of GEC Industries, 422 Mercantile Ct., Wheeling, in exchange for a $10,000 no collateral loan. Carpin's factory did not meet village building codes.

Carpin in June 1976 asked the village board to grant a zoning variation so he would not have to install sprinklers or a fire wall in a recently completed addition to his building. The board denied the request and later told Carpin it would revoke his business license if the addition was not brought into compliance.

Carpin said Monoson allegedly approached Carpin in July 1976 and offered to use his influence to obtain a zoning variation and occupancy permit for the company. Carpin reported in the incident to the state's attorney's office July 21, 1976, and was equipped with a recording device for a second meeting the next day when Monoson allegedly repeated his offer.

'Ghost' state workers given new jobs

by STEVE BROWN

Of our Springfield bureau
SPRINGFIELD — Three state employees, whom Gov. James R. Thompson ordered fired in mid-June because they had no apparent duties, have been given new state posts.

The Herald has learned that the three, all of whom were active in Thompson's gubernatorial campaign, were retained on the state payroll after Thompson's director of operations, William Schilling, persuaded the governor to allow them to remain.

The three are David C. Canter and Martin C. Gorski both of Chicago, and Freddy C. Peavy of Oak Park.

TWO OTHER campaign workers who held similar state posts also were offered other government jobs but declined to accept. They are Sandra L. Wexler and John Gaters, both of Chicago.

Thompson said Wednesday his first impulse upon learning of the situation in June was to fire the five, but he said he did not like to "bounce" people.

University of Illinois workers in payroll scandal — Page 15.

The five were originally put on the Illinois Dept. of Transportation payroll Jan. 17, one week after Thompson's inauguration.

However, none actually worked for IDOT and instead were assigned to Thompson's Chicago governor's office in a practice known as "ghost" payroll.

THE PRACTICE was criticized by Thompson during his gubernatorial campaign and generally has been eliminated by the new administration, according to Thompson officials.

The five ghost employees were paid more than $30,000 over the five-month period, although no documents existed to show they were being supervised or had regular duties.

At least four weeks of pay for three of the employees was authorized by Schilling after the supervisor of the governor's Chicago office had refused to sign pay vouchers stating that the three had been working.

The three still on the payroll insisted Wednesday that they all had been given assignments in January and denied they had been collecting salaries without working.

GORSKI, 32, said he worked as the governor's liaison with the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, writing reports and attending meetings around the state.

Gorski, who had worked on Thompson's finance operations during the campaign and for a consulting firm, ment reorganization began his new developing a report on state government Wednesday at the IDOT. Dist. 1 office in Schaumburg.

Peavy said he met with persons who wanted to have interviews with the governor at the first job.

"I don't know why anyone would say I was not working," Peavy said. He now works at IDOT's Schaumburg

Woman charged in lover's murder

A Palatine woman was charged Wednesday with the murder of her 32-year-old lover.

Shirley Biedrzycki, 40, was charged with the murder of Frederick E. Kurschner, a cross-country truck driver, after she walked into the Palatine police station at 1 a.m. with her 11-year-old son to report the shooting.

Authorities said Kurschner's body was found on the porch of the small frame house the two shared at 552 N. Easy St. He had been shot six times in the chest with two weapons, .32 caliber and .38 caliber revolvers.

POLICE REFUSED to give a motive for the slaying, but neighbors and Kurschner's mother said other love affairs might have been the cause.

"Fred said something once about catching Shirley seeing another man," said his mother, Betty Palm, 423 S. Taylor St., Oak Park.

The two had lived together for about a year and a half, Mrs. Palm said, but "Shirley was always leaving — just walking out.

"Fred told her a couple of weeks ago that the next time she left he'd throw out her clothes. Well, she did, and he threw the clothes out," Mrs. Palm said.

Mrs. Biedrzycki is divorced, and Kurschner is seeking a divorce from his wife, Val, who lives in California, Mrs. Palm said.

"HE WAS VERY sturdy and very strong," Mrs. Palm said. "He would be up early mornings and ready to work. He was the workingest fool who ever lived," she said.

Employees at the Palatine Car Wash, 101 W. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, said they had known the couple and were surprised by the shooting. The car wash is near the Kurschner home.

"As far as we could see, there was never any problem," said John W. Meeters, owner of the car wash and a friend of Kurschner.

"He was gone a lot and might have been seeing people on the road," Meeters said.

Rapp indicted in extortion

by TONI GINETTI

Suspended Buffalo Grove village engineer Carl W. Rapp, was indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury for attempting to extort $5,000 from a developer.

Rapp, 34, had been arrested more than two months ago by FBI agents as he left a village board meeting moments after allegedly accepting the money from developer Louis P. Shassian, president of Wilmont Homes Inc., Deerfield.

The money was to be the first installment on a $100,000 payment Rapp

allegedly demanded in exchange for speeding up zoning and plan approval of Shassian's Devonshire Unit One subdivision project at Mundelein and Bush roads.

RAPP, WHO ALSO is the director of community development, is charged with violating the Hobbs Act prohibiting extortion. Conviction on an extortion charge carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Rapp, 1170 Thompson Blvd., allegedly planned the shakedown several weeks before Shassian paid the $5,000 during the May 16 meeting of the village board.

Shassian earlier had complained to Rapp during a luncheon meeting about delays in getting approval for his project, a 19.2-acre, single-family home development. Rapp allegedly asked Shassian "what's it worth to you," then at a later meeting asked the developer for $100,000 in cash to influence the project's approval.

The amount later was cut to $50,000, with Shassian agreeing to pay the first $10,000 during the May 16 village board meeting.

SHASSIAN, however, went to federal authorities to report the incident. The FBI provided $4,000 of the $5,000 allegedly handed to Rapp during the board meeting and also wired Shassian with electronic monitoring devices to record the alleged payoff.

Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish suspended Rapp indefinitely following his arrest. Public Works Director Charles McCoy was named acting engineer and a consulting engineering firm was hired to review projects that had been approved during Rapp's tenure as engineer.

Rapp has had the post of village engineer since July, 1976.

'Taxes, utilities to drive area rent up by 10%

Northwest suburban renters will pay up to 10 per cent more for apartments on new leases signed Oct. 1, a real estate management firm said Wednesday.

Higher real estate taxes and increased utility bills are two major factors pushing rents up, said Marilyn McGee in the property management division of Baird & Warner, Arlington Heights.

"Rent increases in the Northwest suburbs definitely should not exceed 10 per cent this fall," Ms. McGee said, explaining that some Chicago and north suburban rent increases may be higher.

"We still have a surplus of apartments in the Northwest suburbs and it's a very competitive market," she said.

BUT THE SURPLUS of apartments is expected to dry up in the next several years because new apartment construction is almost at a standstill, she said.

"Most apartment owners and operators are working with a negative cash flow right now and the only new rental construction is government subsidized housing for low-income families," she said.

"The (apartment) market in the Northwest suburbs is really going to tighten up in the next couple of years."

Most renters whose leases expire Oct. 1 already have received their new rents. Most management companies send out new leases three months before existing leases expire.

Higher winter heating bills, combined with higher electric and water rates substantially increased costs for building owners last year and some city leases now include "escalator clauses" allowing landlords to increase rents in mid-year if they encounter extraordinary expenses.

"WE (BAIRD & WARNER) haven't put in 'escalators' but it may be the wave of the future," Ms. McGee said. Hogan & Farwell/Marken Realty Group Wednesday said rent increases in Chicago and northern suburbs will increase 10 to 15 per cent Oct. 1.

Renters in Evanston, Wilmette, Skokie and Lincolnwood are in for increases of 15 to 18 per cent, the firm said. Northside neighborhoods in Chicago have smaller rent increases, generally in the range of 10 to 14 per cent.

Ms. McGee said there are fewer and fewer desirable apartments in Chicago and the north suburbs because of changing neighborhoods and the conversion of rental apartments to condominium apartments.

The Northwest suburbs, where the majority of apartment buildings are newer, have not experienced massive condominium conversion.

CIA hired prostitutes for sex study: Turner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director Stansfield Turner Wednesday revealed that the spy agency operated a sexual behavior study in which agents paid prostitutes in New York and San Francisco and then spied on their activity through two-way bedroom mirrors.

During an appearance before two Senate committees, Turner also gave investigators the names of 185 private researchers and 80 institutions that conducted "abhorrent" CIA mind-control experiments on human "guinea pigs" in the '50s and '60s.

Under questioning, Turner disclosed the agency ran an apparent sexual behavior study called "Operation Midnight Climax" in New York and San Francisco "safe houses" rigged like fancy bordellos.

In questioning by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., another witness, former CIA official John Gittinger said a CIA psychologist, he was trying to get information on different cultures and subcultures and the way their members reacted to drugs and handled sexual relations. But he said he had no direct knowledge of how the "safe house" operation was carried out.

ANOTHER WITNESS, former CIA official Philip Goldman said he'd seen payment vouchers covering the purchase of red curtains and at least one two-way mirror for the "safe houses," but said he knew nothing more about it.

Turner and the other ex-CIA official testified before a joint session of the Senate Intelligence Committee and a Senate Health Committee.

"It is totally abhorrent to me to think of using humans as guinea pigs," Turner said. "There is no (such) experiment going on (now) in any way."

In Senate testimony on the top-secret human behavior research, he disclosed new details of the CIA's Cold War era testing of drugs, electroshock, poisons, chemicals and germs on volunteers and unwitting subjects, including "criminal sexual psychopaths," in prisons, hospitals, colleges and elsewhere.

Turner testified about some 8,000 pages of newly discovered documentary evidence on a behavioral control project code-named "MKULTRA."

He said he will give Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell whatever materials he wants from the new evidence, for any investigation he may care to conduct.

MKULTRA, Turner said, hit its peak between 1953 and 1964 when 149 covert research projects were conducted, "many of which appear to have some connection with research into behavioral modification, drug acquisition and testing or administering drugs surreptitiously."

STANSFIELD TURNER

"We are now in possession of the names of 185 nongovernment researchers and assistants who are identified in the recovered material dealing with the 149 sub-projects," he said.

Other projects, he said, involved use of hypnosis, lie detectors and "aspects of magicians" are useful in covert operations, for example, surreptitious delivery of drug-related materials."

Doney seeks fuel funds for CB patrol volunteers

Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph J. Doney is asking the village to reimburse members of the Citizens' Band radio patrol for gasoline expenses. But the proposal might not make it past Village Mgr. Robert Eppley, who says the village doesn't "need the extra cost."

Doney's request amounts to $25 a week or about $1,300 annually for gasoline used by the 20 citizens who use their own automobiles and CB radios to assist police with crime prevention in the village. For the past two years patrol members have paid for their own gas.

The volunteer Special Teams On Patrol group was initiated by Doney in 1975 and since has been used as a model program in neighboring communities. "For the past two years this group of dedicated citizens has been patrolling our streets on weekends and some week nights without ever asking for any compensation," Doney said. "To date, through their observation and reporting, numerous crimes have either been prevented or solved."

DONEY SAID paying the volunteers for gasoline "is the least the village can do for these people" who each spend between 16 and 24 hours a week assisting the police. "I am requesting that consideration be given these volunteers to refuel whatever gasoline has been used per tour of duty from the village gas pumps and charged to the police department," Doney added. "After all these people are indirectly working for me in a patrolling effort."

Similar citizens groups in Des Plaines and Arlington Heights are not compensated for their volunteer work with the police and Eppley believes that is how it should remain in Mount Prospect.

"I'm not so sure I'll recommend we do that," Eppley said. "It started out as a good citizens program and they've been doing this out of the goodness of their hearts. If first it is money for gas then why not maintenance to the cars later on? Where will it all end? We don't need the added costs."

Eppley said he will review Doney's request more thoroughly before sending it on to a village board committee for consideration.

Doney said each STOP member uses between two and three gallons of gas per night. Five citizens cars usually are assigned per shift.

STOP members are used as additional "eyes and ears" patrolling the high crime rate areas of the village and reporting suspicious activities to the full-time sworn police officers.

Drug deals tied to gang fighting in Ned Brown

by PATRICK DOYLE

The 20 persons who attacked a gang of 80 persons with bats, knives, chains and B-B guns at the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Sunday night were trying to take over drug sales there, a gang member said Wednesday.

The man, a member of the gang that was attacked, said he did not want to be identified because he feared retaliation. One hundred persons were involved in the fight, which lasted about 45 minutes before police could break it up.

Cook County Comr. Carl Hansen Wednesday called on forest preserve district officials to find out more about the incident and what can be done to avoid further fighting.

"I WANT to find out if this is a one-shot deal or if these groups are continuing this over a longer period of time," Hansen said.

Richard Sloan, chief ranger of the Cook County Forest Preserve District, said he did not know if drug dealing between rival gangs led to the melee.

Two days before the fighting erupted, Michael Wynn, forest ranger, arrested four persons near Grove No. 6 in Busse Woods in the preserve, Sloan said.

A man had identified them as the robbers who took an undisclosed amount of cash from him earlier in the day, Sloan said.

The complainant was one of the 80 young persons who gathered at the forest preserve Sunday, Sloan said. The four accused robbers came into the forest preserve with 16 companions seeking revenge, he said.

"They went in to get him and they got him," he said. Sloan said he believes the complainant was one of those injured. Only two persons were hospitalized.

ASKED IF DRUG dealing was behind the whole affair, Sloan said, "I can't verify it."

But one gang member who was beaten by members of the smaller gang said, "I think they are trying to take over drug sales in the preserve."

The man said he used to be active in dealing drugs in the forest preserve.

"You wouldn't even imagine how much money goes through that woods," he said. "It's a flea market of drugs."

Marijuana, hallucinogens and cocaine are a few of the drugs dealt in large quantities in the preserve, the man said.

HE SAID OTHER members of his gang also dealt in drugs and that the smaller group has wanted to control the business.

Harry Jenkins, Elk Grove Village police chief, said he is concerned about crime in the preserve threatening surrounding residential neighborhoods in the village.

He said he hopes the additional policemen can be used to patrol around the preserve.

"There is a chance that a major breakout could spill into the village," he said.

Whirlwind courtship ends in nuptials at Brookwood

MARITAL BLISS — Newlyweds Mary Rose, 69, and Sidney G. Powell, 58, kiss after their wedding at the Brookwood Health Care Center.

by SCOTT FOSDICK
Love strikes at the most unlikely places — even nursing homes.
That's where it struck Wednesday as Mary Rose Losch, 69, and Sidney G. Powell, 58, got married in a ceremony filled with tears, joy and smiles from a host of friends and nurses.
The happy couple met six weeks ago at the Brookwood Health Care Center, 2380 W. Dempster St., Des Plaines. Both say it was love at first sight.
"She came to me in the music room. She looked at me, I looked at her, and that was it," Powell said.
MARY ROSE SAID she was very surprised when Sid popped the question just a few weeks after they met, but added she didn't even stop to think of what to say.
"No, I knew it right away," she said.
The new Mrs. Powell has been married once before, so she approached the ceremony with a reserved, but sincere smile. But for Powell it was the first time he took the nuptial plunge, and he beamed with all the pride of a young groom.
"My mother always wanted me to get married before she died, but I never did," he said.

THE LAST FEW years since his mother died haven't been happy for Sidney Powell.
The former Mount Prospect postal worker was returning to his home in Des Plaines after work one evening last January when he was struck by a speeding auto. After three months in the hospital, Powell was told he would never recover enough to return to his old job.
Powell was a lonely, depressed man when he checked into the Brookwood Health Care Center in April. But all that changed when he met Mary Rose Losch.
"It gave him a reason to get well," said Rev. Larry Hilkemann, pastor of the Church of the Incarnation in Arlington Heights.
Rev. Hilkemann, who performed the ceremony, said he witnessed a dramatic change in Powell's attitude after he met his bride-to-be.
"I'm grateful to see the power that love and caring have. It's changed Sid's life. It gave him a reason to get well," he said.
POWELL WAS THE very picture of marital bliss as he waited in the Regency Room of the health care center. Dressed in white shoes with a matching carnation in the lapel of his burgundy suit, Powell held hands with his fiancée and gazed wistfully into her eyes.

"You look so nice," she told him.
"Thank you, you're wonderful," he murmured tearfully. "I'm marrying a beautiful girl."
Mary Rose virtually glowed in a gas floral patterned dress with a large, white corsage pinned to the shoulder. And her glow didn't fade while she waited for Herbert H. Volberding, Powell's brother-in-law and the mayor of Des Plaines, to show up with the wedding rings.
VOLBERDING BREEZED in 20 minutes after the wedding was supposed to have started, and the smiles returned to several worried faces.
